THIRD FASTEST TIME'

New York, July 25 (AP)— When William Woodward's Omaha won the classic at Arlington Park he turned in the fastest mile and a quarter run in the United States in 21 years and took the lead from Azucar, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, in the last of money-winners thoroughbreds for 1935.

Omaha's time of 2.01 2-5 last Saturday goes into the record books as the third fastest mile and a quarter ever run in America, but Whirlaway, it's official record of two minutes flat, set in 1932, is disputed because there is evidence the timer stopped his clock too soon. Gresham's 2.00 4-5 at Latonia in 1926 is the unofficial American record. Omaha's figure is next to that in speed.

POLICE BLOTTER

Two weary transients were the sole occupants of the cell block at the police station last night, both wending their way out of the city early this morning. No arrests were necessary in Belleville yesterday, as past 24 hours, although minor investigations, kept the police department busy.

Late yesterday afternoon P. C. Evans answered a call to the East Belleville play grounds where a 13-year-old girl had been struck on the hip by a pellet discharged from an air rifle in the hands of a playmate. Evans soon located three boys, between the ages of 10 and 12 years, who were shooting at a target in the vicinity. The lads assured the officer they were shooting at a target and explained that the pellets had missed the target, striking the little girl. The officer confiscated the air rifle and severely reprimanded the youths for their carelessness. Fortunately the little girl was not injured seriously.

A trucker from Western Ontario was stopped peddling fruit in Belleville last night, when in his discovered by police he was using a truck improperly equipped for that purpose. According to the Highway Traffic Act, all trucks and tractor-ans must display the name of the owner or company truck name on the sides thereof. This the driver was not complying with the law with the result that P. C. Taylor ordered the trucker to discontinue his selling activities in Belleville. The trucker was instructed to comply with the law in the future.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Belleville Intelligencer by Financial Service.

Coniagarum Mines Limited production of 71,275 tons in the second quarter ex against 38,920 tons in the first quarter. Income from metals previously announced at $281,021 and operating profits at $57,384 up from $53,431 in the first quarter. Before taxes, depreciation and deferred development, profits are estimated at $98,184 compared with $60,402 in the first quarter.

According to reliable information in the land it appears that quite a bit of recent buying in Montreal Power, which stock has been inactive, has originated in the United States. Considerable buying of C.P.R. for New York accounts as well as reported London demand for International Nickel, makes it appear as though outsiders are quite bullish on Canadian issues.

The majority of opinions on the outlook for the New York mart also are by no means in this connection. The Financial World says:

"Regarding the trend the nearer term trend of the general market may be, there is no change in the prospect that further substantial business improvement should be seen during the latter half of the year. With business volumes and profits rising there is no change in the abnormally low level of money rates, a favorable attitude toward securities is obviously warranted. Congressional developments might conceivably change the picture, but no important suggestion thereof is on the horizon at the present time."

The recent firm trend in Canadian Pacific is attributed to New York buying. Demand for the issue from that source appears to have been inspired by strength in the American rail group in Wall Street and the hope that the new Grain Commission will decide to sell wheat instead of holding it, in which event the company's traffic returns will show improvement in the latter part of the year.

For some time past Noranda has given evidence of being under accumulation. Particularly of late there one hears talk of considerably higher prices for the stock. By comparison with the value of the company's assets, Noranda's shares appear to be more satisfactorily priced than the majority of issues, as, valuing reserves of gold and silver at current prices, there are equities behind the stock equivalent to over $120.00 per share.

Montmagny, Que., July 25 (CP)—A small boys' quarrel with a fatal ending will be aired in the coroner's inquest today on Real Langlois, 13, who died from a boy friend's anger's wheel here yesterday when a stone said to have been flung by a small companion struck him on the temple.

According to the story parents gathered the Coulombe boy was tossing his companion at 11 years of age by holding his toes with a handful of grass. The older boy then gave pickup up a stone and threw it at young Coulombe, striking him in the temple.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, July 25.—(CP)—Selling sentiment produced a few nicks in the prices of the gold shares today on the Toronto Mining Section and a lower average resulted at the close. Volume was a little thin from the end of Wednesday, leaving off particularly in the Silver issues and the Base Metals.

A deep mining share market today caused a set-back in a few spots but on the whole the general tone remaining steady. Pioneer surged about 40 cents, Dome was off 1-4 and Hollinger and Bralorne steady to strong.

Interest in the Silver shares eased up and recessions up to 5 cents appeared in Beaver, Castle and Bear and in the Base Metal group a gain of ¼ for Noranda was about the only change.

Volume was rather normal for McWatters and Cody's Lake and these issues were closely to strong and Lamaque appeared also for Little Long Lac, Pickle Crow and Sisco.

Dome dropped a couple of cents to 67.

TORONTO STOCKS, CLOSE

Toronto, July 25 (CP)—The liquor issues were sold for substantial losses today, Walkers common with a drop of about two points leading a display of weakness. Walkers was unsettled by reports that the company's loss as a result of the fire at the Peoria plant might be greater than was first estimated. Selling pressure predominated among the interlisted leaders, the foods and the golds.

Walkers common sold down to 35¼ before the company's interests will suffer as a result of the recent fire at the Peoria plant. By early afternoon the selling had eased up with the price holding at 35¾ for a net loss of more than two points. Distillers Seagrams at 20¾ was down a half point and Canadian Alcohol A at 8¾, off ¼. The general price tone was a bit heavy.

Consolidated Smelters weakened off to 26 1-8 and International Nickel was also off at 27¾. Slightly lower prices ruled for Ford A. Brazilian and C.P.R., but the oils were practically unchanged.

NEW YORK, CLOSE

New York, July 25 (AP)—Stock prices trends were irregular today as some traders decided to go home with at least part of their recent gains.

Against a number of scattered soft spots, selective buying pushed other equities substantially. Many new highs for the year were registered before the undertone appeared.

Coca-Cola got up 5 points and advances of fractions to around a point were shown by Johns-Manville, Goodyear, Inland Steel, Consolidated Gas and North American. A host of others were bolstered by Corn Products. Most of the alcohols, Allied Chemical and Dupont.

Trans-Lux approximated 1,250,000 shares.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, July 25—(AP)— The stock market today tip-toed cautiously through a maze of realizing and selective buying.

There were few weak spots in the list but a number of issues backed up a trifle as some traders decided to cash in their gains.

In the Canadian section of the list Dominion Stores and International Nickel ruled even, while Dome and Canadian Pacific were slightly lower. On the other hand Noranda edged more than a point but Lake shore held steady. Montreal funds remained unchanged at 35 7-8 cents.

Fractionally higher prices were recorded by Shamrock Steel Hoop, American Tobacco "B", Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, National Cash Register, Bendix Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber and N. Y. Central.

Among leaders about unchanged to as much a point lower were General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric, U. S. Steel, National Steel, Case, Bethlehem; Anaconda; Kennecott; Alaska Juneau; American Smelting; Santa Fe; Schenley; National Distillers and Southern Pacific. Corn Products dropped 2 points.

Tigers Win and Cards Lose In "Crucial Series," Martin Giving Giants Lead With Error

Detroit Only Percentage Point Behind The Yankees

LARGE CROWDS

Chicago Cubs Crowd Both Giants And Cards

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Cochrane and his Detroit Tigers today found themselves in the very ambitious position of being both first, and second in the American League. After handing the Yankees a great 4-0 trimming yesterday in the third game of their important series, their standing showed 54 victories and 35 defeats, while the Yanks had 51 games won and 33 lost.

For anyone to could add and subtract that made it very simple to show that Detroit was a half game ahead but the Yankees percentage were worked out it took the services of an expert mathematician to show any difference between them and then it favored Yanks .607 to .607.

Meanwhile Giants made up a little lost ground and entered today's doubleheader finals of their series with St. Louis for top place with the comparatively huge lead of 1 1-2 games.

They squared the series at two-all yesterday when Carl Hubbell pitched Dizzy Dean and got the benefit of one inning of effective hitting to win 6-2.

For the second time Cochrane sprung a veteran trick on the Yanks and saw craft subtlue them. "General" Alvin Crowder, the ancient but by no means feeble right hander, mowed the Yanks down with four practically meaningless hits. Tigers slapped out on the right foot, when Jo-Jo White, the first man up, clubbed Charley Ruffing for a home run and they kept it going to the tune of 11 hits. The rest of the scoring came in the third, just after a rainstorm, when Ruffing's two walks and three hits brought in three tallies.

Pepper Martin, the brilliant but often erratic Cardinals third baseman, brought the holder day crowd of 28,000 onto its feet in the third inning, when he sprinted to second base on Dick Bartell's fumble, stole third and scored on Jack Rothrock's fly to give St. Louis a 1-0 lead over the Giants.

Joy Turns to Gloom

But that same Pepper turned joy into gloom in the seventh when, after Mel Ott had singled and Hank Leiber had doubled, he uncorked an epic wild heave that let both runners score and Travis Jackson reach third. Two more Giant hits wound up the five-run rally.

Hubbell did most of the other work, limiting the Cards to five hits, three of which came in the eighth for the second run, fielding his position brilliantly and driving in one tally.

Chicago Cubs, taking advantage of the rise and downs of this battle of the leaders, slashed Cardinals' margin to a single game by taking their second doubleheader in a row from the Dodgers, 9-3 and 7-6. The second game with 11 innings before Ken O'Dea's homer broke it up after Danny Taylor had hit for the circuit with the bases full in the ninth and Cubs had replied with a two-run rally to tie the score.

Pittsburgh also won a doubleheader, beating Phillies 8-4 and 6-3 as Woody Jensen produced a circuit swat in each game. The Bucs also did likewise with a great outburst of late-inning slugging that produced 23 hits and beat the Senators 10-6 and 12-3, and moved into fourth place in the American League standing, ahead of the Red Sox, who took a 8-3 licking from the Browns.

Bosh moved into fifth place in the National, one point ahead of Brooklyn, by turning back Phillies 5-4 in their fifth night game of the season.

WITH THE

McElheran & Watkin

We were delighted to see Fred Hindle on Tuesday night and trust in his next game we will have him with us bowling.

In a game triples on Tuesday night between John Shaw, H. Slack and C. Woodley vs. C. Fisher, W. Walsh and G. Watkin, the Wembley rink won by a score of 24 to 19.

A game of doubles was played between R. A. Backus and C. Sullivan vs. Bert Black and Ald Symons. The Sullman rink won 36-26.

I would suggest in our Binery next week that the 2nd and 3rd year players skip the games. This will help give those players more experience. Now that our club has doubled in number it is necessary to train new skips so that next year we will have enough skips to carry on.

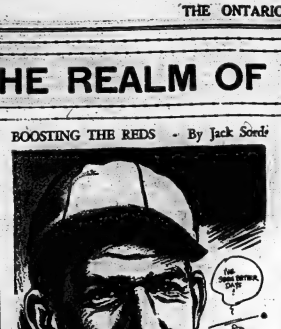
Now that we have three nights each week where players can play for competition, we find it hard to get rinks to go to outside games. It is very important that we should keep in contact with outside clubs and hope that the older skips will see that we are represented with at least one team at all games in our district.

Our mixed rinks called for July 31st is cancelled. Instead of this a grand rally of all members of our club will be called and we hope that every member who is in the city will be present. We ought to fill our greens and a good time is assured for all. The game will start at 7.30 sharp with two 15 end games, so make a point to keep this date open. Wednesday, July 31st., time 7.30 p.m. This game will be mixed rinks.

It is the intention of the games committee to invite outside rinks to several evening games in the near future. We feel that these games will be more beneficial to our club than the long tournamentis.

The winners in Friday night's Binery, July 19th, the following players were successful in winning three games— W. Walsh, H. Middleton, Bob Dewar, Ed. Catcher, H. Holland.

Monday night's binay, July 22nd., the following players were successful—H. Thompson, Mrs. Black, Joe Black, Geo. Woodley, H. Wilson, F. Harker, H. B. Stock, C. Hyde.



In a matched game of singl's Geo. Watkin defeated R. M. Mitchell in a 31-end game, 25-15.

Last night's mixed rinks the following rinks were successful. High rink—Tom Hallam, Jr., who Kirkland, H. Bryant, Rev. Kirkland, H.

HEPBURN'S CROP DAMAGED

Toronto, July 25.—"Mitch" Hepburn, Liberal premier, again a farmer, is going to have to take a heavy loss on his grain crop after recent storms. No mention of the loss has been forthcoming from the Prime Minister's office at Queen's Park. Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Attorney-Minister of agriculture, said yesterday that the Premier had been a heavy loser with some 300 acres of grain —"from which it may be difficult to save a dime's worth."

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Knotty Lee's Peterboro seniors, moved into a tie with the league leading Kingston Frontes yesterday, when they downed the Oshawa crew 4 to 1 in the Motor City last eve. The Quaker City win leaves the local Stewart-Warners well entrenched in third place, fully one game ahead of the "Brewers." As the first three finishing clubs in the C.O.B.L. participate in the league play-offs this season; it looks as though the Radio aces' rivals are pretty well cared as sitting pretty; that is if they return to their usual hitting powers on Saturday at Peterboro.

At the present rate of writing the C.O.B.L. standing reads:

	W	L
Peterboro	11	5
Kingston	9	7
Belleville	7	7
Oshawa	7	10

On Saturday the local Radios step into Peterboro for a league game while at the same time the Pontes journey to Oshawa for an important league tilt. Incidentally today sees the first time this year that the Littlock City crew has step been a title for first place in the Central League this season, so close has been the league race. Since the inception of the loop in 1919 the league has never experienced such a torrid battle for play-off positions.

Before a mediocre crowd the local Kiwanis juniors managed to eke out a 7 to 6 victory over the Canniffon "Sluggers" in an abbreviated five inning game played at the Fair Grounds on Tuesday. The pastime ended rather abruptly as the visitors objected to the rulings of the umpires, but, as the game was purely an exhibition affair there are no records for such animosity. Both clubs should remember there were players participating on either side who were interested in the welfare of their clubs, regardless as to which team won the pastime. Our only regret was the indifferent manner in which the Kiwanis kids played so tentatively, as they made absolutely too many errors, which, Offensively they previously looked fairly well, but on the defence Coach Meagher has many beurs of labour before him.

Local baseball fans have been complimenting or complaining to President Charlie Meagher in relationship to the playing of a ball game last Wednesday afternoon senior ball game in Belleville. In seasons past Belleville fans always considered a Wednesday afternoon town and a goodly crowd could always be looked for, but of more recent years the half-holiday crowds fell off with the result, that the C.O.B.L. clubs have been forced to introduce "tet-light" baseball in local fame. This seems to have proved a boom, but lately the crowds have been falling off slightly. President Meagher announced today that next week's Peterboro at Belleville C.O.B.L. game will be played on Wednesday afternoon instead of Tuesday as per schedule. Incidentally we understand the R.A.F.A. is planning a gala baraba day for Belleville next Monday, of which more will be heard of in the near future. All any rain fame dawtown of Wednesday afternoon ball games can have their appreciation by turning out in larger numbers than have these partial to tet-light games. If the crowd is larger next Wednesday, well then, naturally the Stewart-Warners will revert back to the old half-holiday dates.

We hear that Stan (Wallpaper) Wilbur has a new set of golf clubs and balls and irons. Stan, so the story goes, experiences little trouble in luring the black beauties onto his hook, he can even be assured of parking them safely in his bag and can go so far as to plant the fishies firmly on the dock, but here's where Stan falls down. After getting a prize bass all of the way ashore downtown, the darn thing gave a little flip of its tail and disappeared into the water giving Stanley the well known sayonara. Oh well, fortunately on this particular fishing trip Doc Marshall had a can of sardines so Herb Muir, Doc and "the walloping kid" did have a fish supper after all. No little children, this is no fairy tale.

Although it may be rather early in the season to be talking of football, Bill Fry, guiding light of Q. E. F. C. football in Belleville, tells us that extensive plans are in the making towards assuring Belleville with not solely a good O.R.F.U. squad but also a splendid grooming. Incidentally we have been authentically informed that Dr. H. E. "Kewpie" Kennedy with coach the team.

It was a case of too much Blazetich, when the local intermediates bowed to the Napanee Gilbards yesterday 12 to 0. The ex-Toronto right-hander had just enough on the ball to continually force the local batters to either pop up or hit to the pitcher, Blazetich having no less than eight assists while he was usually the case with a Belleville baseball team nearly ever error committed by the locals resulted in runs ultimately crossing the plate. Perfect frames for the Napanee Blazetich hooked up in a beautiful hurlers' contest, but in the seventh an error followed by a subsequent hit saw the removal of Smith, but the damage had been done. The local victory in no way impedes the progress of the Belleville intermediates in their quest for a play-off position in the loop, while the home town win materially assists the Gilbards in elevating their standing, however.

The latest news from the Senior softball loop front is to the effect, that the Nortonville crew is back into the fold once again and all is hotsy totsy now. The Prince Edward County nine claims they are visable in return to the wars in order to qualify for the class "A" O. A. S. A. play-downs. Softball games are being played in both the Merchants and Senior softball loops in Belleville tonight.

In a friendly inter-club golf match the members of the Belleville Golf Club defeated the Port Hope golfers on the home links yesterday afternoon. The day's play was thoroughly enjoyed by all participants and a return match has been already arranged. While all of this was going on the Cobourg golfers were downing the Bay of Quinte golf enthusiasts at the other end of the city links. The Cobourg-Bay of Quinte match was keenly contested as the winner was not decided until the final pair had finished. Both matches drew a large following.

INTS. SHUTOUT BY NAPANEE 3-0 IN SMART GAME

Both Teams Held Scoreless Until The Sixth Frame

ERRORS HURT

Blazetich Only Fanned One And Allowed But Five Hits

Errors cost the Belleville intermediates their ambitious scheduled Bay of Quinte League intermediate start at Napanee yesterday, when the homesters downed the Belleville nine by the score of 3 to 0. The game developed into a brilliant pitcher's battle between Ernie Smith, hurling for the Panningites and George Blazetich, hurling for the Gilbards as the moundsmen carried sway for six innings with out any sign of scoring being in evidence. In the sixth session with two successive hits, resulting in a run being scored forced Smith to retire in favour of "Bud" Wilkins, who finished the pastime, but yielded two more runs in the next frame.

Blazetich was in rare form as he kept the five Belleville hits well scattered, only fanning one and starting one by the strike out route, some lusty batting, coupled with fielding chances faultlessly and aided by three single free hits to the initial sack. The Belleville errors continually entered into the final result of the scoring, however.

Ernie Smith, previously with Belleville seniors, matched Blazetich's great form throughout the early innings but in the seventh, with two down, Hughie Brennen singled Bessie Cook from second base to the first run of the game. Blazetich followed with a safe hit to right and Manager Panning yanked Smith for Bert Cook, Wilkins, also a senior recruit and he promptly struck out Bearlett, in the eighth Card singled hard to right scoring two which put the game away for the locals.

In spite of a half dozen miscues the fans were treated to the best baseball defensive display of the season which saw Napanee total 23 assists of which 21 went to the winners, Little and Morgan were best for Belleville, while Gibbard Card and Dunn along with Blazetich, formed the Napanee ball-warks.

Latchford was forced out in the fourth inning when he had a right hand finger smashed reaching for a wide pitch.

The line-ups—Belleville — Little, 2b, Cook ss; Barriage 3b; Cretney 1b; Hammett rf; Latchford and Scott c, Rigby lf; Morgan cf; Smith and Wilkins p.

KIWANIS KIDS DOWN CANNIFTON

Five Innings Played And Errors Enter Into Score

In a listless abbreviated five inning exhibition baseball game the Belleville Kiwanis juniors downed the "Cannifton Sluggers" by the score of 7 to 6 at the local Exhibition Grounds last evening. Joe Belleher went to the mound for the homesters, while "Bullet Joe" Morrison hurled for the visiting crowd.

Simpson struck out seven Belleville batters in the five innings while Kelcher only sent two back via the strike out route, permitting entered into the pastime, however, as both teams continually booted the ball for glaring errors. Both squads collected five hits, Kooch with a pair leading the player to hit for extra bases.

Three singles and a walk resulted in two runs being scored in the fifth by the Kiwanis kids and brought their total of runs up to seven, thereby eking out a last minute rally. The Kiwanis juniors journey to Foxboro for another exhibition game tonight.

EAST ONTARIO NOT AFFECTED

100 Delegates

The convention which attracted over one hundred delegates from the various municipalities between Ottawa and the Quebec boundary concluded late in the afternoon with the formation of a new Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association with the appointment of Mayor Ross Sirtis, Bowmanville as president of the new organization. He will be assisted by vice-president Frank Mamder, Lindsay, for the western territory, and vice-president Geo. Findlay, Carleton Place, for the eastern territory. Also assisting will be Geo. Chase of the Bowmanville Commission, named secretary, and three directors, James Halliday, Kingston; Geo. A. Reid, Belleville and G. A. Carson, Russell.

The new association was formed solely for the purpose of protecting the interests of the eastern division and for the purpose of further solidarity in Hydro affairs as applied to the smaller municipalities.

Following a luncheon by the local Commission at the Hotel Quinte at noon the many delegates were welcomed to the council chamber of the city hall by Mayor Geo. O. Tice, who took the occasion to especially thank Mr. Stewart Lyon, and Mayor Simpson, chairman of the Municipal Electric Association, for their appearance. "There are a few bright spots now and then in the duties of any Mayor and this is one of them in being able on behalf of the city I represent and the Belleville Hydro Commission to extend to you the appreciation we feel for your presence here," concluded Mayor Tice. "I hope if your inspection of the city and convention are pleasing ones, that they will be lasting also," added the Mayor.

The meeting, it was pointed out, had been called principally for the purpose of organizing the Eastern Ontario Division into an integral unit, which would work harmoniously with the parent association in the best interests of all municipalities within its territory.

Director Heard

Mr. Frank Smith, Madoc, director of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association District No. 1 who was first called upon by Mayor Tice, thanked the delegates for the support they had given him in the past in electing him to the present office he held.

The chief object of the meeting was outlined by Mr. Smith: "We want to bring our organization up to full strength and are desirous of having every municipality in the Eastern Division a member of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association join. The municipalities have no quarrel with Hydro, but what is needed is closer co-operation and a closer relationship between the governing bodies and the users of electrical energy. Hydro has one set of rules and regulations known as the Power Commission Act, which is applied to the whole Province of Ontario, and as you know, certain sections of it do not fit in all districts alike. Sometimes this is not in the best interests of some of the municipalities concerned."

"What we would like", continued Mr. Smith "is the privilege of doing some of the thinking ourselves, a voice in the governing affairs of our separate municipalities, as we are in a better position to know the needs of the people."

W. R. Reynolds, Brockville, also a Director, urged the delegates to work in closer unity to match the efforts of other districts. He paid tribute to the work performed by Mayor Geo. Tice of this city, in arranging the convention and prophesied, that much good should accrue as the result of the gathering.

Gordon Matthews, Peterboro, Director, outlined again the purpose of the convention and declared that many questions still remained to be answered with regard to Hydro in the Eastern Division. Chief among these was the question of power contracts and the change from 25 cycle to 60 cycle in power.

At this point Mr. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario was introduced to the delegates by Mayor Tice, who expressed his appreciation at the honor accorded. "Mr. Lyon will be able to answer many of those questions, which have been bothering you," declared the Mayor.

Niagara District Affected

"Again Mr. Lyon reiterated the statement that power users of the Eastern Division would not be imposed on with regard to any changes made at Chats Falls. Only the Niagara District was concerned with this, he pointed out. "No money for any excess power is being levied on the Eastern District, and it will not suffer in any way in connection with the Quebec contracts", said the Ontario chairman.

The statement which is reproduced at the opening of this article and made by him under the authority given by the Commission was read to the delegates, wherein it was promised, that the rates for electrical energy would not be increased as the result of any steps taken by the Ontario Commission.

This statement was received with much applause by the attentive representatives of the various municipalities.

"If it costs more to change from 25 cycles to 60 cycles, the money required will be charged to the people through the savings of the Niagara System," amplified Mr. Lyon.

In a technical discourse on power and the use of it in various sections of the Province, it was shown by Mr. Lyon, that the retail price of power had not greatly increased even though the cost had been more to the Commission. Each district, he declared had its own peculiar problems, but one angle was being watched, for example, to make up losses, for example, here that have been made in the Niagara District, and vice versa. The Commission is ready at all times to remedy any fault that it could."

Eastern Ontario power rates were not greater than those of the Niagara District, maintained Mr. Lyon, many of the municipalities in the Eastern District were in a very favorable condition in this respect. At this point Mr. Lyon contrasted the various cities and towns for average cost. Belleville, it was shown used an average of 137 kilowatt hours a month at an average cost of 1.6 cents. Kingston, domestic, 100 hours at 1.5 cents, Ottawa, 226 at .6 cent of the hydro (city owned Commission). Oshawa 96 hours, 2.4 cents; Brockville, 93 hours at 1.5 cents.

Cheapest Power in World

"Ontario users buy the cheapest power in the world," declared Mr. Lyon. "In Belleville last year you paid $180,000.00 for electricity. If you had purchased a similar amount south of the Great Lakes you would have paid just $400,000.00 for the same if purchased from a private company."

Rural power is fast being developed, it was pointed out by the speaker. This year over 300 miles more rural line will be built. Authority has already been granted for this construction. Last year 185 miles were constructed. "What is good for the farmer is good for the whole of the country, and we are attempting to develop the rural districts as cheaply as power can be had as we are able," it was added.

In concluding his all too brief address, Mr. Lyon promised once again: "So far as the cost and supply of power in Eastern Ontario is concerned, you will not suffer, either in power or hardship or inconveniences through any act of the Commission."

Following his address, Mr Lyon declared his willingness to answer any questions that might be asked.

"How many units are there at Chat's Falls?" queried one delegate.

"We generate some 96,000.00 horse power there, with four units at present," declared the Ontario chairman.

Mayor James Simpson, who was introduced as "Jimmy Simpson of Toronto," by Mayor Tice, as chairman of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, prophesied that from the geology of the meeting as he had observed it, much good should result because of the frank and open discussion of Hydro affairs.

"Our Association is primarily interested in the development of the Commission for the mutual advantage of all. There has been a certain degree of uncertainty regarding this utility lately, and the whole system has been thrust into the arena of political discussion," continued Mayor Simpson. "But we have arrived at a better understanding of the system as a whole."

Always Surprises

"Mr. Lyon has the happy faculty of being able to surprise conventions of this nature with announcements that are most pleasing. He has given you that today, the pronouncement of the change in cycle from 25 to 60, and no extra cost to your division must have been one of those agreeable statements, and one, that should be entirely satisfactory. I would guarantee against any increase in the price of power as the result of any changes that might be made."

Mayor Simpson referred to the cost of power in Ontario as contrasted with that of communities south of the border. There should be no disagreement on this point at least, he added.

New faces were being added to the various conventions, and each succeeding one, pointed out the Twenty Municipal Electric Association; we have become a going concern as a result of organization," he declared. "At this meeting we are to be the inspired to help as that is being taken," to have one of the finest representations we have ever had. Numbers are not always an indication of the strength of any organization. It is the interest, that is displayed and, the effort that is being spent. Every municipality should join this Association. We want to make it one hundred percent."

Mayor Simpson concluded his remarks with a personal thanks to the convention for being allowed the privilege of addressing it and declared himself ready and willing at all times to assist the Association in any manner possible.

Outlined Steps Needed

Secretary Treasurer T. J. Hannigan of the O.M.E.A. referred to his visit to Belleville in 1930 when he had served under his former chief the late Sir Adam Beck. Formerly of Campbellford, he was well acquainted with this city and district and had always found a friendly welcome here, he said.

"Belleville has one worthy contribution to Hydro," continued Mr. Hannigan. "In February, 1934, at a Hydro convention held at Toronto a paper entitled "The Hydro Map and Why" was read by Mr. O. H. Scott of your local Commission. From there we have sent that address to points all over Canada and some parts of the United States. They wanted to know "why the Hydro shops in the municipalities."

"When you want to sell power it has to be sold through the Commission and its staff. When your shop sells and services appliances you do a favor to the man, who buys it, and you create a good impression," added Mr. Hannigan.

The speaker expressed the hope that the meeting would not only sell into an organization similar to that of Western Ontario District No. 8 where a complete and solid organization of all municipalities was to be found. To do this, it was pointed out, hard working committees were necessary to success.

"If you are elected to office as a commissioner, carry out your duties without regard to your personal self and for the benefit of the community you represent. You will at least have the satisfaction of knowing, that you tried to look at any rate."

Mayor T. P. Nolan, Ottawa declared, that the chief aim of any organization was to carry on the service at the least cost. To do this it was necessary to have the close co-operation of all municipalities. Once assured of this it would be possible to make a greater success of it than ever," he said.

Briefly Mayor Nolan explained how Ottawa had prospered through the purchase of her Commission.

"Thirty years ago the idea of Hydro was instituted there. It started with a special act. The Old Coumners' Company was purchased by the city for a sum of $200,000.00 and this grew at a because due and was paid. Meanwhile the plant has gone ahead and paid for itself. The plant today has an equity of almost three millions and it never cost Ottawa a red nickel. It is an example, that other municipalities might know, and outstanding example of public ownership. We believe that in a few years we will be sitting pretty."

Belleville Hydro Healthy

At this point ex-Mayor Reid of Belleville declared that he was glad that Belleville didn't like to blow its own horn, "but when we have such an asset for today next we will have several millions," he added. "We've got the plant and the shop now after only five years, and have a few dollars left over," said Mr. Reid.

Morley Duff, Commissioner also added to the statement of Commissioner Reid.

"We don't have to take any backwash from Ottawa when it comes to Hydro ownership. We owe $14,000.00 and have $36,000.00 in assets of the Commission. We could pay off our debts and have some left," he pointed out.

With the conclusion of the addresses, Mayor Tice relinquished the chair which was then taken over by Secretary Hannigan for the purpose of nominations for office for the new organization to be formed—the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Nominations for President were: Mayor Ross Sirtis, Bowmanville. Mayor Geo. O. Tice, Belleville. T. Folger, Kingston.

Mayor Frank Mamder, Bowmanville. With the withdrawal of the previous nominees, Mayor Sirtis was elected by acclamation.

Nominations for two Vice Presidents were:

Frank Mamder, Lindsay.
Frank Smith, Port Hope.
James Halladay, Kingston (withdrew).
Geo. E. Findlay, Carleton Place.
Mayor T. P. Nolan, Ottawa.
Morley F. Duff, Belleville (withdrew).
E. G. Tufts, Madoc (withdrew).

Voting by a show of hands, Mr. Mamder was elected Vice President for the western territory, and Geo. Findlay, Vice President for the eastern territory.

Geo. Chase, Bowmanville, Secretary of the Bowmanville Commission was unanimously elected to office as Secretary of the new organization.

Three directors named were J. Halladay, Kingston, Geo. A. Reid, Belleville and G. A. Carson, Russell, Ontario.

Immediately following the nomination a meeting of the newly elected officers was called for the purpose of arranging dates for a further meeting at which first work of the organization will be commenced.

McCARDELL TAKEN TO DETROIT FOR CANADIAN POLICE

Moved From Crown Point and Extradition is Assured

LIKELY TO WAIVE

Police Interviews Prisoner But He Refuses to Talk

Windsor, Ont., July 24 (CP) — Michael McCardell, reportedly identified as the "three-fingered Abe" of the Lasalle kidnapping, has been brought to Detroit from the Crown Point, Ind., jail where he was held as a suspect in the case and is expected to waive extradition, according to reports this morning.

Legal machinery is moving fast toward a clean-up of the year-old kidnap case, it is understood, with Crown Attorney Newton of London and Provincial Police, K.C.M.P. detectives and United States "G" men in Detroit concentrating their activities on bringing McCardell to London.

Detective Sergeant Ted Weeks of the R.C.M.P. and Inspectors Gardner and Cousins of the Provincial Police are in Detroit, arranging for the proceedings necessary to bring McCardell to Canada.

It is not known definitely whether the suspect, born in Huron County, Ontario, is still a Canadian citizen, or has become a naturalized American, However, one report has it he entered the United States illegally in which event deportation proceedings will be undertaken by United States authorities.

Start Proceedings

Hammond, Ind., July 24.—(AP) — Two Royal Canadian Mounted police officers left today for London, Ont., to start extradition proceedings against James Parker, alias Michael McCardell, 42, a suspect in the John S. Labatt kidnapping.

The officers, Inspector Hamar Gardner and Sergt. Ted Weeks, came to Hammond to interview the prisoner arrested after a gun fight with Hammond police.

Inspector Gardner told Police Chief Tom Martinson he would ask his government to take quick steps for Parker's extradition.

Parker, held in the Hammond police in an undisclosed jail, has been named by Crown Attorney Newton, of London, Ont., as one of the men long sought for the kidnapping. David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker, is serving a 15-year sentence for the crime and "Piccolo Pete" Murray is awaiting trial.

Reports Labatt and his brother, Hugh, viewed Parker in the Crown Point, Ind., jail last Saturday, were denied by Chief Martinson. He said however, Parker was viewed by Crown Attorney Newton, Inspector Gardner, Sergt. Weeks, an employee of Labatt and a U. S. Department of Justice agent.

Parker refuses to say anything, Martinson stated.

The Canadian brewer was kidnapped last January by three men and held for three days for $150,000 ransom. Labatt during the ransom was paid.

INDOOR SPORTS FORBIDDEN YOUTH

Catholic Youth Activities Limited to Cultural And Religious

Karlsruhe, July 24 (AP)—The official communique announcing the dissolution of Catholic youth organizations in Baden today reads:

"For months has been observed an attitude of youth organizations and unions not affiliated with the State youth organizations (meaning the Hitler youth) which could not be tolerated permanently in a well-ordered State.

"These organizations have more or less intentionally opposed the State and the Nazi movement by misconstruing their tasks and arrogating to themselves political aims of their own.

"They objected to the exclusive rights of the State youth movement to incorporate the coming generation in Nazi youth ranks for the purpose of political education, thereby endangering the political unity of the German nation, demanded by Nazi ideas.

"In consequence to this anti-State attitude, they did not appeal to the Bower of our youth. To a greater part, the elements lay interested in constructive education and more in reckless rowdyism joined the non-Nazi ranks.

"Outrages, especially assaults on individual members of the Hitler Youth, which broke out on the Minister of the Interior (Dr. Wilhelm Frick) found it necessary to dissolve all non-Nazi youth organizations to wear uniforms or engage in open activities in order to prevent riots endangering the public security.

"The assaults continued. The members of the Deutsche Jungendkraft (German youth-strength) were mainly involved. This organization is mostly suspect in sports although, under a religious pretense, it endeavored to undermine the Hitler youths.

"To obviate these abuses, the Minister of the Interior dissolved the Deutsche Jugendkraft in all sub-divisions and simultaneously confiscated the property.

Open Air Sports Banned

"Furthermore the former decree is extended. Non-Nazi youth organizations and those connected with youth welfare are forbidden every open air activity and gymnastics as well as indoor sports, thus limiting the activities of these organizations to their religious, cultural and charitable works, which is guaranteed by the police."

Meanwhile an independent investigation in Catholic Upper Silesia revealed the campaign of the Hitler youth for attracting the growing generation to its banner already has worn rich fruit and the Roman Catholic Church there was having difficulty in retaining its grip outside devotional hours upon the Catholic youth.

The Steel Helmets—the German war veterans' organization—thanks to the personal intervention of Franz Seldte, leader of the organization, with Reichschancellor Hitler seems as a national body to have been given a brief breathing spell, possibly until October.

Baltic Fighters' Band' Blamed

However, another "band" of former service men is being dissolved. It is the Reich's Federation of Baltic Fighters. This federation, said to have been made up mostly of German Nationalists, never merged with the accredited formations of the Nazi party whereas the Steel Helmets did merge.

It is an open secret that many of these nationalist fighters in the unofficial so-called free corps do not approve of certain tendencies in the presents of political jobs to Nazi party members and they freely vented their criticism at their meetings.

Catholic circles believed the action against the Catholic youth in Baden foreshadowed an end to the entire Catholic youth movement.

ETHIOPIAN ENTITY IS LEAGUE STAKE

Britain and France Feel League Must Get Down to Brass Tacks

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
British Press Staff Writer

London, July 24—(CP Cable) — Britain and France at last have agreed the special council meeting of the League of Nations next week must get down to brass tacks on the issue of peace or war between Italy and Ethiopia.

The council meets tentatively to appoint a fifth and neutral arbitrator to the joint commission investigating the Ualual frontier incident of last December and which broke up in deadlock at Scheveningen recently. But in the British view the issue is now far graver than the frontier incident. It affects the political independence of a state that is a member of the League.

Right up to the coming meeting of the council Britain will not cease her efforts to bring the disputants together in a spirit of conciliation.

Italy, it is felt here, can not very well decline to accept the jurisdiction of the council to consider the dispute. By accepting the May resolution providing appointment of the arbitration commission she recognized the League's jurisdiction. The British hold the council should go ahead with the merits of the dispute whether Italy objects or not and the council should not seek by some technicality to divest itself of the responsibility.

POLICE URGED AVOID POLITICS

Chief Draper of Toronto Blames Home Training For Crime

North Bay, Ont., July 24 (CP)—The Ontario Police Association convention went behind closed doors today to discuss political interference with the operations of police forces in cities and towns.

Abolition of "cheap politics" and politicians who run police forces" and establishment of police commissions totally immune from government connection throughout the country was urged by Chief Constable S. Newball.

"Every police officer," the Peterboro Chief declared, "should have nothing whatever to do with politics".

The morning session was occupied entirely by an address, "The Public and the Police" by Eric General D. C. Draper, Chief Constable, Toronto, "motor cars throughout Ontario in our opinion should be equipped with radio," Chief Draper said.

"It is a sad fact today the great majority of criminals are found amongst those between the ages of 16 and 25 years," he added. "There is something wrong with the home training or the school which allows such a great percentage of youths to enter a life of crime."

The problem of under-staffed forces in the small cities and towns was brought up by Chief William Grant, North Bay. All cities and towns, it was stressed, are entitled to a police officer for every thousand residents. The question was referred to the resolutions committee.

SINISTER SHADOW

By JOHN GOODWIN

CHAPTER TWO

Bannister rose, with a little laugh. His face healed, with the evidence his blue eyes twinkled merrily.

"Of course there's a girl behind all this. My dear boy," he said gaily. "Tell me all about it."

"Nothing to tell," replied Brian curtly. "Too late, anyway."

"Why—too late?" Bannister laid a kindly hand on his shoulder. "Brian, tell me about her; let me help you."

Bannister was difficult to resist, when he chose. As that swift touch of sympathy, Brian turned to him.

"Meant to keep this—to myself, Bannister, old man. I've had a hard knock," he said quickly, "and it'll last me my life. You see . . . there was a girl . . . on the armenia. Folks get drawn together—on board ship. She was a girl in a thousand . . ."

Bannister nodded.

"A girl in a thousand. On the New York boat. American, I take it. And she hit you as badly as all that—well, these things do happen, Brian—you're rather an attractive youngster yourself, as I suppose you know. Go on boy. Had she money?"

"I should say not."

"Um!" said Bannister.

Brian checked himself abruptly as the door opened, and Selby, the big grey-haired butler of King's Elm House came in with the mail on a silver tray, together with the letters. One bore a U.S.A. stamp and he snatched it open. As he glanced through it a change came over his normally impassive face, and in his blue eyes a quick gleam of triumph.

"Good news there?" asked Brian.

"Big news!" said Bannister. "Big news!" He folded the letter between his fingers. "But go on telling me about this girl, Brian. She liked you?"

"I—don't know."

Bannister laughed.

"Modest boy! That means she did. Well, why didn't you ask her? Brian Chalmers, heir at law to the Cooke property and Kings's Elm—that should be good enough."

"How the devil could I?" The way things are, I couldn't support a dog, let alone a wife. If I were on my own, it would be different. I haven't even a home, except on sufferance. I couldn't borrow a cent on the Cooke inheritance. I've no contract with you; good friends though we are, you could throw me out if you chose, at the end of the month. I couldn't offer such a prospect to any girl, especially such a girl as that . . ."

She certainly seems to have hit you hard. What's her name?"

"Sonia Nell."

The letter fell from Bannister Cooke's hand. He stooped slowly to pick it up, his face averted. Then he dropped into his chair.

"Sonia!" said Brian grimly, "she's booked to another man. She has travelled six thousand miles to marry him. So that's that."

Bannister looked at him from under his eyebrows.

"I'd hardly have expected that to stop you, Brian. As you say—that's that. An end to this romance of yours."

He rose and laid his hand on the younger man's shoulder.

"There's a cure for that, Brian we've never had a difference between us—you're right, and I'm wrong. We're going to put things on a business footing—now!"

He struck the desk with the folded letter in his hand.

"Ten hours—this big news. That trip home to America of yours hasn't turned out so badly after all. And I'm going to send you on another; to take you in my confidence. I'm guaranteeing you two thousand dollars for the job, with a thousand for expenses. And, Brian, make good with this and I'll raise your pay to four thousand a year, sirr."

Brian's eyes shone.

"Now you're talking, Bannister! I'll have that in writing—down here on the table."

"Certainly. But you must hustle, lad; you've got to start tonight. Inside the hour."

"Tonight!" said Brian, startled.

"Without fail. New York boat sails eleven tomorrow, Southampton. You can go right through by car. Go and pack; I'll have your instructions ready for you. Jump to it!"

"I am!" said Brian, and the library door slammed behind him.

Bannister Cooke gave a deep sigh. The benevolence faded from his face; it grew sly and a glare of venomous hostility, directed at the closed door.

"Damn you!" he said under his breath, "always in my road. I'll be rid of you this time—for good 'n' all." He sank back in his chair. "Good Lord! What a thing to happen!"

He opened the New York letter, with strong white hands that shook a little, and re-read it. It was in a woman's hand.

"My dear Bannister:

"I'm going to take you at your word. I've been thinking over your letter, and a woman is allowed to change her mind.

"Since you want me so much, I will marry you. If you ask for love, I don't know that I have it to give. But I liked what I know of you, when we were together. I regretted since that I said no. And I'm tired of being poor.

"Your letter has convinced me; if it's to be now or ever, let it be now. I'm sailing by the next boat, bringing my answer with me and it's—Yes.

"That's all till we are together. I'll wire on arrival and come to you at King's Elm.

"Yon,

"SONIA NELL."

Bannister folded the letter.

"Sonia Nell! So you've fallen to it, Sonia, have you? Since you want me so much . . . ! I'd come! You, little beauty! Ha! Ha! Ha! Couldn't take to another woman, not after you—no. Got to buy you. Well, I've had to buy most of the things I wanted. And I've found it safest in the long run.

"Came right over on the boat—and met him! Damnation! It had to fall that way . . . it would. Of course, never told him about me—never connected him with me! Why should she? And he doesn't dream—"

There was a bump on the floor overhead, where Brian was packing his steamer trunk. Bannister looked up and grinned; his eyes shone, with an extraordinary malevolence.

"You pup, you cursed pup—you're in the clouds because you've got your chances of ever touching the Cooke money! A girl you wanted, of mine! You or any of your breed get hold of King's Elm! Me! Mine—mine and for those who'll come after me.

"Clever, young pup; but never quick enough to see. I hated you the hell I have, the first time here with my foot on your neck—hovvery much I hated you. A job coming for you, Know it, soon. Then—the big boot right on the back. Crush you out on your pale face. Pauper! Mighty self-confident boy, too."

A thought struck him. Almost with panic. He glanced at the postmark on the letter.

"The 29th. Lord! Suppose she got here tonight—before he clears? You never know, with women—"

The door opened, and the butler appeared.

"Telegram, sir."

Bannister took the orange-tinted envelope and turned away as he tore it open. It was dated from Southampton.

"Arrive King's Elm 6.30 p.m. tomorrow. SONIA.

Bannister blinked.

"Selby! Have Mr. Chalmers' car brought round at once; he's leaving for his bargare stowed on it."

"Very good, sir."

The butler withdrew. Bannister half closed his eyes, and chuckled.

"Got her—good and right! And you Brian . . . you're for it!"

He snatched up, and, selecting a sheet of foolscap, wrote carefully in a clear, neat business hand. He sealed it in an envelope, as Brian in cap and travelling ulster, swung the door open). Mr. Cooke beamed at him his eyes misty with affection.

"Thank goodness I've got you, Brian. Now you're going to win your spurs. Your instructions." He handed him the envelope. "Study 'em on the boat. You'll have plenty of time. Here's your paper and fifty two hundred pounds on account of expenses; check them and sign this receipt.

A great time coming for you, Brian. Get to it! Good luck to you my dear boy—and God bless you!"

Brian, a little shamefacedly, took the hand that was held out to him.

"Sorry I was rude, Bannister. It's the shake-up I've had. You've been very good. You can rely on me, old man!"

He turned quickly and went down the stairs. In the wide hall of the old house a huge, lowney bull-mastiff dog ambled up and thrust a cold jowl into Brian's hand; he paused a moment to pat his head and tickle him under the ear. In the porch Selby, the statuesque butler, was watching a young footman put Brian's luggage into the back of a shabby sports car.

"Leaving us again, Mr. Chalmers?" he said courteously.

"We shall miss you, sir."

"Will you, Selby?" said Brian a little grimly. "I wonder."

He walked past and with a nod and a pleasant smile to the young footman, jumped into the car, and started.

Selby, standing alone on the porch steps, watched the red tail-light vanish down the avenue. The light of the upper servants' faded from the butler's big flat face; his eyes narrowed and his jaw stuck out.

"Confound you!" he said under his breath. "And if I'd been the boss I'd have sent you away before now!"

Brian's car whirred down the long slope from the park gates and shot through the village street of King's Elm.

The moon was obscured. A misty rain dimmed the wind-screen. A blurr of lights shone through it from the corner where the signpost of the old inn was creaking; the Ring O'Bells.

As Brian swung round the bend, a dark figure lurched suddenly right into the glare of his head-lights, and though he wrenched the car aside in, I found it under the door. It's

As they raced toward Tarzan, Usanga's warriors saw him take a long grass rope from about his shoulders as he ran. They saw the noose swinging and caught in an undulating circle above his head. The white girl in the machina glance down. Twenty feet above the running spe-man soared the plane. Tarzan's arm shot up to meet it. The girl half guessing the spe-man's intentions, reached out for the noose swinging and caught the rope. Standing herself she clung tightly to it with both hands. Simultaneously, Tarzan was dragged from his feet. The plane lurched forward.

Now the open noose shot up to meet it. The girl half guessing the spe-man's intentions, reached out for the noose swinging and caught the rope. Standing herself she clung tightly to it with both hands. Simultaneously, Tarzan was dragged from his feet. The plane lurched forward.

Usanga clutched wildly at the control and the machine shot upward, as a sleeping Tarzan, dangling at the end of the rope, the spe-man swung, pendulum-like, in space, Roger, bound and helpless, witnessed all. His heart stood still as he saw Tarzan's body hurtling through the air.

But Tarzan did not crash into the trees. The plane rose rapidly so that the beast-man cleared the topmost branches. Then slowly, hand over hand, he climbed toward the fuselage. The girl, clinging desperately to the noose, strained every muscle to hold his weight.

"Naughty Marietta"
Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy a Sensation

Haunting music of Victor Herbert, blended with thundering drama of the founding of a great city, and with a delicate love romance running through it; such is "Naughty Marietta", Metro Goldwyn Mayer's spectacular translation to the screen of Victor Herbert's masterpiece, which returns to the Belle screen for a one day engagement tomorrow (Friday) both matinee and evening.

Jeanette MacDonald, who never was more beautiful nor sang so divinely, and Nelson Eddy, young American operatic baritone, who makes his debut as a screen hero star, a performance that indicates he is on the screen to stay, head the elaborate cast.

The story, is staged on a spectacular scale. Huge settings, including a replica of old New Orleans of Creole days, gorgeous costumes and intense dramatic action embellishing such song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", "I'll Sing In Love With Someone", "Chansonette", "The Italian Street Song" and other immortal Herbert music.

W. S. Van Dyke, directing "Naughty Marietta", has also built into the romance of the French princess who fled to New Orleans to escape a state marriage and there found romance in a young English army officer.

A special elaborate setting surrounds the two principals, including Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Charles Laughton), Cecilia Parker, who plays the pleasure-loving governor Douglas Dumbrille, the stern French prince and others.

Miss MacDonald's wardrobe is elaborate costumes throughout the action of the picture in Paris and Acadiana. She appears in a whimsical role which she plays deftly, is also elaborately costumed. Comedy is provided by Edward Brophy and Frank Morgan, the latter two sergeants, and little Cora Sue Collins (Baby Gaby) adds charm as Miss Eddy's child companion and player-in-the great cast are Akim Tamiroff as the typewriter; Joseph Cawthorne as Herr Schumann, Greta Meyer, Walter Catlett, Cecilia Parker and Walker Long.

The grand capture of the ship and the Cacouche Girls, the "Marriage Auction" of New Orleans, the fight in the Everglades between scouts and pirates, the rescue of the betrothed, are among the dramatic highlights of the production.

"David Copperfield" To-Night

Romance, comedy and pathos are deftly blended on the screen of the Belle today where by popular request the management has again brought to this popular playhouse one of the most outstanding productions ever produced, "Davig Copperfield" the prize winning photoplay of 1935.

It also is the picture that introduces the sensational new child star, little Freddie Bartholomew, who plays the juvenile David. Adapted from Dickens' best known and best loved novel, the picture was produced by David O. Selznick and directed by George Cukor for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

"David Copperfield" is a picture that you will want to see again and again, do not miss the opportunity to-night. Two performances tonight only, commencing at 7.00 and again at 9.10.

Piles Go Quick

Under Dr. Leonhardt's Internal Method

Large numbers of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that this real lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine, when salves do not help and wish is to escape operation.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation and help heal the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt was one of the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. His prescription HEMROID contained and prescribed it for large numbers of patients with a time record of success and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEMROID tablets from their own druggist, with money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

So don't it was when other ways failed to go to J. S. McKeown, who says, "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe, sure way to get rid of your Pile misery or money-back.

BAY OF QUINTE SUMMER CAMP OPENS AT LAKE

Inspiring Twilight Service Held on Pinnacle of Sunset Hill

Stirling, July 25 (Special)—The Bay of Quinte Summer Camp was officially opened for its 1935 session on Monday, July 22nd, at Oak Lake Park with the registration of approximately 100 guests. This camp, which is conducted yearly by the United Church in Canada, is established as a training school for young people, including C.G.I.T. and C.S.E.T. groups for the study of the Bible, Missions and methods of work. With a staff of very efficient officers, carefully chosen because of their knowledge of young people's work, and a well arranged program to cover the entire seven days during which the camp is in session, great work is being accomplished in the lives of young healthy Canadians. Wise parents who have arranged for their children to spend a portion of their vacation period there are to be congratulated on their foresight. For here, every worthwhile characteristic within the lives of young people are brought to the fore. Physical training, with for the development of the body, study periods for the development of the mind, and the association of fine Christian companions all have their effect in making it a helpful and constructive holiday.

One visitor to the camp casually drops into conversation with the camp leader, and is immediately impressed with the fine appearance that young people of this rapid moving generation are still actively interested in. In fact a serious things of life. One standing out evidence of modern youth can be proud to have his opponents witness this splendid spirit and sincere Christian young folk.

On Wednesday evening, this young, a hundred strong, camp sat in a body, to circle the lake, on foot (nearly miles) playing their crowded pleasure resorts, dance halls, etc., to the Lake Park, there for the purpose of taking part in a twilight devotional service. Gathering on the pinnacle of Sunset Hill which commands a view for miles around, they remained in silence for several minutes to observe the grandeur of the scene and to offer silent prayers of preparation for the inspiring service which was to follow. The service was then conducted by Rev. Elgie Jobbin, son of Rev. F. J. Jobbin and until just recently resided in Stirling as minister, of the Rawdon charge. The address of special interest to young folk and in accordance with the general atmosphere of the evening in the great out of doors a very appropriate one, including one of the Misses Sykes, "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day". It was a most inspiring hour for all those taking part and also for the visitors from the surrounding cottages. After the service they repaired to the lake shore for a picnic supper on food to be present for the camp fires.

The officers in charge of this fine work are: Hon. President, Rev. Dr. Semple of Belleville; President of the Conference, President, Rev. W. H. Smyth, of Port Perry; Vice President, Rev. J. O. McKee of Campbellford, Secretary, Rev. Sunder VanCamp of Blackstock, Director of Music, Rev. R. H. Rickard of Tweed, Business Manager, Rev. R. M. Patterson of Sutherland, Assistant Business Manager, Rev. H. A. Mellow of Glen's Landing. These along with Rev. R. T. Richards, Miss Helen Clarke, Miss Hazel DeGoerre, Miss Marion Pickard, Mr. Stephen Sayford and Rev. Elgie Jobbin from the Executive Committee. Mrs. R. T. Richards, Camp Mother, Mrs. Mansel Smith, Camp Nurse are assisted by Miss Nellie Lyle, Rev. Mrs. D. M. Shingo, Dean of men and boys.

WEEK-END STOP TO BE TRENTON

Will Likely Arrive in Belleville Some Time on Monday

"Unless our information is incorrect, the "on-to-Ottawa" marchers will not arrive in Belleville this week, but are planning to spend the week end in Trenton," stated a local police official to the Ontario Intelligencer today.

Following the announcement, that two trekkers, acting as a vanguard for the marchers, were in town yesterday city officials were first of the opinion that the trekkers were contemplating marching directly through to Belleville, before nightfall, but subsequently the trekkers hailed in Port Hope for a full day yesterday and the following city officials to believe the marchers had abandoned their plan of camping in Belleville over the week-end. The marchers are making Colborne their objective today. It was announced by police officials.

Unofficial reports from the trekkers are to the effect they intended to spend the week end in Trenton before coming to Belleville on Monday, if possible. Although nothing authoritative has been given out definitely as to where the trekkers will camp in Belleville, it is understood that they will be quartered in the

NORMAN "RED" RYAN

In January, 1924, Norman "Red" Ryan, notorious bank robber and prison fugitive was sentenced to life imprisonment in Kingston penitentiary. To-day he is a free man, released for good conduct. Prison officials fully accept Ryan's declaration that he from now on was on the side of society. He has been a "trusty" at Kingston for the past ten years. One cloud marred the happy release. A letter from Ryan's wife, written nearly 16 years ago, advising her willingness to stand by her husband, was only just delivered to him as he left the prison gates. Ryan has not written to or heard from her in that time. The letter is reproduced ABOVE. She is thought to have returned to her home in St. John's ABOVE.

John's Newfoundland, though Ryan himself says he heard she had died in 1927. Ryan, now 43, years old, is as law abiding Canadian citizens as we will be—his every interest in their activities while in Belleville," stated Chief Kidd, when questioned on the subject today.

W. SCHULMERICH HITS TWO HOMERS

Leafs Win From Bisons 11-9 Although Outhit

(By The Associated Press)

When checking over the reasons why Montreal Royals are leading the International League pennant race by three games, take a look at the record record of Pete Appleton. Pete has been around a long time, having played in the Majors under the name of Jablonowski, but he still has what it takes to win ball games.

In his last seven starts he has gone the route, winning six games and frequently has stepped in as relief hurler. His last three games have seen him turn in two, three, and four-hit ball.

The four-hit game yesterday, when he pitched Montreal to a 7-6 victory over Rochester Red Wings in the second game of a double-header after Chad Kimsey had turned back the Cardinals' farm mates 7-2 in the opener. Appleton struck out seven and held the wings to two runs until the last inning and after his mates had piled up a big margin.

Syracuse Chiefs continued to play fine ball by downing Baltimore Orioles twice—in a night doubleheader for their sixth and seventh victories in their last eight games. The second game was featured by the league's first triple play of the season in which Spooner, Wright and Savino figured, as the Chiefs won 7-6 after taking the first 3-2.

Ity Vandenberg held the Orioles to five hits in the opening contest with the slightest it took a three-run ninth, inning rally, featuring triples by Don Legett and Dalleo-candro, to give Syracuse victory.

Buffalo Bisons were slowed down by Toronto Maple Leafs but the two home runs by Wes Schulmerich driving in four tallies, to give the second place club a 11-9 decision. Schulmerich's second circuit drive came in the ninth and scored Pool ahead of him to provide the winning margin. The pitchers, evenly divided, paraded to the mound as relief hurlers during the fray.

The Senators-Bears game at Newark was rained out after two innings.

Greatest Technical Expert on Explosives a Victim

Waverley, N.S., July 26.—(CP) The crushing deaths of three explosives in Canada's Industries Limited, lay in a Halifax morgue today while a coroner's jury prepared to investigate the explosion of nitro-glycerine which buried them under tons of debris near an abandoned manufacturing plant they had been making safe for the public.

A few hours after the blast early last night volunteer rescue workers recovered the body of Joseph Alfred Bigaud, Que., considered one of the greatest technical experts on explosives in Canada but it was not until today the bodies of Harold M. Roscoe, district sales manager of the C.I.L. explosives division in Halifax, and Thomas Pitcher, works manager of the company's fertilizer plant in Halifax, were found in the ruins.

Willis Langille, of Waverley, carrying ten sticks of dynamite into the woods for safety, when the explosion occurred, escaped instant death as he was hurled into an old well filled with stone and rubbish.

Renewing Danger

The company had decided to remove danger of explosions among land and abandoned plants in the country and for months Cole and other experts had been clearing them of tracts of nitro-glycerine.

Last night, however, he ventured to have been caused by a greater quantity of the explosive than he thought had saturated the property during the many years the plant was in operation.

The piety of four went to the property near Dooley Lake yesterday and began testing with "time detonators. One had lead already gone off and they were in the shelter of a building awaiting what was expected to be another minor explosion when Roscoe noticed sticks of dynamite in the debris.

He motioned to Leighton who hailed the physical and ran back into the woods.

Seeking cover in a muffled roar and a devastating blast tons of "earth shot skyward.

"It just picked me up and turned me head over heels and threw me into the air," Leighton said today in describing the shock afterwards.

Rocking Unconscious

For a moment he there in semi-conscious condition as debris fell all around him. Slowly he pulled up on his feet, still unaware of the fate of his companions. He was dazed and blinded by fumes on the edge of a crater 100 feet long and 50 feet deep until he suddenly realized, what had happened.

Then he ran to a truck he had left parked on the road and sped away for the police.

time Royal Canadian Mounted police, road workers and other volunteers were on the scene, digging frantically in search of the missing men.

Before dark the body of Cole was found under earth and stone near, where the building had stood. It was in crouched position with arms drawn up over the head as for protection. When the police searched his clothes to establish identity his watch crystal was broken.

All through the night organized gangs dug in the ruins and early this morning they found the bodies of Roscoe and Pitcher, close together.

Cole's body was found about 10 feet of debris and belief was expressed the others had been standing by the magazine window, when the blast occurred.

R. T. Granville of Bedford, organizing a coroner's jury last night, but the inquest was adjourned until today.

The only hope for averting war lies now in the League of Nations council meeting.

Anti-British posters and unfriendly shouts against the British in Fascist demonstrations here overnight produced a most unfavorable impression among the British colony.

Government leaders said Italy would not welcome a council meeting because, of danger of a rupture between Italy and the League.

It was explained the Italian people, and Premier Benito Mussolini have their minds set on an occupation of Ethiopia—as symbolized by the wave of monster Fascist demonstrations sweeping the nation.

Mussolini has ordered the conscion cry in demonstrations by crowds of cheering Italians parading every downtown plaza or square.

One ancient civilization cannot without risk be destroyed to make room for a new.

Few Able-Bodied Single Left On Relief Here

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's manifesto with regard to stopping all relief for able bodied single men throughout the Province will mean little as far as Belleville is concerned. At the present time, according to Miss Helena Lynch, superintendent of the local Central Relief Office only a bare dozen men on the local relief lists would fall into this category.

This does not include the half dozen or so single, unemployable men unable to work, it was pointed out.

Married men with families however, would still receive relief and on relief in this city is a healthy state. These men listed are called upon in turn to perform an occasional day's work for the relief vouchers tendered, on the various forms of work provided by the department of public works.

A weeding out process of the single able bodied men in this city was carried out by officials of the relief office some time ago resulting in the greatest time in a reduction to the lowest possible level.

Barge Sinks In Reality In Filming Of Picture; Cameraman Lost At Sea

Laughton, Tone and Gable Artists in Picture, Not Aboard

PUMP FAILED

Barge Was Fitted up to Represent British Ship Pandora

Hollywood, Calif., July 26—(AP)—Divers and salvage men were rushed to San Miguel Island 50 miles southwest of Santa Barbara, to search for the body of Glen Strong, assistant cameraman, who went down when heavy seas late yesterday foundered an 80-foot barge fitted up to represent the British warship Pandora.

Strong was one of a movie company of about 75 at work in the picture "Mutiny on the Bounty" in which the warship Pandora figures.

The coast guard earlier today had understood the sunken vessel was the "Bounty" itself.

After an all night search for Strong, hope he might have survived was abandoned.

Artists in the picture, including the three top stars, Clark Gable, Charles Laughton and Franchot Tone were not with the barge when it sank.

The United States coast guard cutter Hermes was dispatched to aid the crew and salvage was standing by the submerged hulk.

First word of the accident was sent by Director Frank Lloyd aboard the yacht Dolphin, which was in the middle here. Details of the mishap were meagre.

The cameraman was supposed to show the sinking of a ship...it was believed the barge struck a submerged rock in the barge failed to function properly, causing it to really sink.

Film equipment estimated at $50,000 was reported lost.

Price of Milk To Make Cheese Is Stabilized

OTTAWA, July 26.—(CP)— New regulations, seeking stabilization of the price of milk entering the manufacture of Canadian cheese, were effective today with the official approval of the dairy products marketing equalization scheme. A departmental statement has been sent to all cheese factories in the Dominion outlining details of the plan.

The statement declares a considerable disparity has arisen in prices between milk entering into the manufacture of cheese and milk required for domestic consumption, the latter being marketed in products not regularly exported. The result has had the effect of stimulating the diversion of milk from the manufacture of cheese to other outlets.

As a means of correcting this condition, a levy has been provided by parliament from which payments will be made on the basis of quality of cheese manufactured.

"Cheese is still a very important dairy product," the departmental statement says, "and as an outlet for milk has a very important effect on the industry as a whole. Maintaining cheese exports demands a higher price in the markets of the United Kingdom than cheese of the same type from any other country."

Administration of the scheme will be under the Federal Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner. The scheme sets forth that payments from the equalization pool into the fund must be apportioned among the producers on the same basis as proceeds from the sale of cheese.

Chinatown Leader Great Mission Worker

New York, July 26.—Tom Noonan, the "Bishop of Chinatown," is dead. The "cardinal of the underworld" today was without a diocese.

In Dover Street, centre of the best-willed Bowery, the bums and down-and-outers paid Noonan in the only coin at their command the tears of real sorrow, a grateful word in memory of "a good guy."

Noonan, ex-convict, better known head of the Chinatown mission, died of heart disease at the age of 57.

He wasn't a 'bishop' and his mission wasn't a "cathedral." Those were only the names invented by the Bowery as Noonan's fame spread. His work of giving a hand to the needy can never be translated into tangible figures and results.

The women who came to him—girls and women availed themselves of the mission's shelter and a parting cup of coffee.

Shooting Affray in London Marked by Death of Girl

London, July 26—(CP Cable)—Ellsworth Fontaine, 23, lightweight wrestler, today was committed for trial at the Old Bailey on a charge of murder and another charge of attempted murder.

RELIEF CUT OFF TILL HARVEST END

South Dakota Relief Boards Take Action

New York, July 26 (CP)—Announcement of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario all unmarried able-bodied men would be dropped from relief rolls in the Province followed closely somewhat similar action in South Dakota where farmers complain they cannot get harvest help.

South Dakota relief authorities last Monday removed from their rolls 10,000 of 18,000 families in a move intended to force men to work in the harvest fields. This was the most drastic action of the kind since the depression struck the United States.

The usual reason given by relief boards for refusal to go to farms was that wages there were less than the 30 cents an hour they get on Federal relief projects.

UNIVERSAL USE OF SHORTS SEEN WITHIN 10 YEARS

LeRoy Manck, Fresh Air Devotee Passes Through Town

SCORNER OF RIDES

Purity of Thought Attributed to Vegetables

LeRoy Manck, exponent of sunlight and fresh air, and a disciple of the cult of modern dress and healthful living, a visitor in the city today from Montreal, prophesied that in ten years the present raiment particularly as supplied to the male sex would be reminded as the automobile of 1900 vintage.

Dressed in sandals, sockless, with khaki shirt open at the throat at the collar, and wearing a pair of abbreviated shorts, Manck who stated he was enroute to Toronto that he was enroute to Toronto where speaking engagements had been arranged for him presented a striking contrast to other pedestrians as he strode along Front St., bushy hair waving in the breeze. He disdained the aisles of the curious who shied him walking by with springy step.

Vegetarian Principle

Somewhere in the sixty's, Manck who has followed his present mode of living for the past twenty-five years, a strict vegetarian and non-user of tobacco and alcoholics, also foresaw the day when such nerve and body killing would be outlawed by official legislation of the country.

"Life is too short to poison your body with such narcotics. There is too much to see, too much to do and we are alive to enjoy every bit that way. God put us on earth to look after and care for our bodies—that has not yet found this secret. Even I, feel at times I have failed," said the reporter.

To a small gathering at the side of No. 1 Fire Hall on the upper end of Victoria Park this morning, the fresh air cultist, held forth. A picture of strength and health myself, deeply tanned and with muscles that any wrestler might envy, he pointed to proof in himself.

Smothered by Clothes

"Make that clothing you have on" as he slapped his own bare legs and shorts covering his thighs. "You're smothering your body. You were never intended to dress that way, to cover yourself up with heavy woolen clothing and binding neckties. How can a man be healthy and dress that way? In ten years men will dress in shorts the year around, undressed more than they will forget how to make the full length garment. Shirt makers will make shirts without buttons at the collar, neckties will be a thing of the past, though even today they have found the secret of comfortable, healthful dress."

Walking is Best

Le Manck who scorns the rides offered by occasional motorists on the highway, is practicing the high-way, haversack on his back, believes that the art of walking for walking's sake, has been lost. Sedentary occupations, the use of the automobile and other conveniences have been left us a weakened nation of flat chested, fatty anaemic persons. Cramped at a desk all day, seated in a comfortable chair during part of the day and resting uncomfortably on an unhygienic and unbeautiful soft mattress at night has been responsible for retarding of the normal functions of the human body, fatal, enjoyable, living, he believes.

Thoughts Are Things

But that's not all, he hastens to add. That tempting meal at the table during the Sunday dinner, he declares, is just poison in another form to the body that makes the food he eats. Vegetarians are the only ones who have "beautiful, clean healthy thoughts" he says, and heavy meat eaters are just that—heavy in thought, slow in action and possessors of a peculiar neurosis that prohibits them from enjoying the ordinary pleasures of living.

"Look at me", he challenged, exhibiting a brawny arm to one of his audience, "I quit eating meat thirty years ago, I found out that I could get along without it, and feel better, much better into the bargain. That time will come, too, when men will find better ways to eat and enjoy doing so."

Manck who says he has lectured in some of the principal cities under the auspices of various health cults is also an author, having written and had published a treatise "Scientific Living". Besides offering copies of his book for sale, the proceeds of which he expends on the ordinary expenses connected with his travels, he distributes several leaflets in the city in which was outlined the cardinal principles of his health regime.

Following his brief visit here he will leave for Toronto, but will travel by rail to that city in order to be on time for his lecture which will be delivered in that city on Saturday evening.

COMBUSTION RISK WARNING GIVEN

Poorly Cured Hay And Crops Create Dire Threat

Spontaneous combustion the dread threat of city farmer, is almost sure to result following the storage of wet hay in the barn warns the Ontario Fire Marshal in a reminder being sent out to the province from the Toronto office.

To offset the annual toll of spontaneous combustion, responsible for an annual fire loss of thousands of dollars provincial authorities have worked out a prevention program.

Combustion they say, can never occur in dry, well cured hay or grain. But wet or damp pockets in the mow are very dangerous. Farmers are warned not to assume that only one load or less of wet hay will do no damage.

Fire may break out within a few days but generally within four to six weeks after the hay mow has been filled. The outside danger limit, however, reaches as high as several months. The first heating, according to officials, is due to fermentation, which develops rapidly when moisture is present. Then the temperature reaches a certain point chemical reactions set in and the heat rises rapidly to a point where the hay or straw will ignite if the right amount of air reaches the spot.

Salt, the Fire Marshall's office declares is a fermentation preventative and retards the production of heat. The officers prescribe twenty pounds of salt for each load of clover and ten pounds for timothy. The coarse hays are more hazardous because their stems contain more sap than timothy.

To detect "hot spots" the use of metal rods is recommended. These are probed into the mow at various places and after five to twenty minutes are examined for warmth.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

LET THE BARK ALONE

Dog owners will not acquiesce in the elimination of barking of dogs as suggested by persons who seek surgical means. One hundred per cent owners would fight so silly a proposal and most non-owners would reject silence at such a price.

A writer in the New York Times relates the story of a blind woman who was killed when thrown from a window, "the despairing barking of her small pet dog" leading neighbors to send for the police.

But there is no need to cite such cases for scarcely a day passes but one reads in the press of families roused from sleep in burning homes by the barking of dogs or the mewing or scratching of cats, in many cases the warning almost losing its life. Dogs which act as guardians over children, ready to give an alarming bark if anything goes wrong, are not rare.

Nature did not mean, because she has not denied, a barkless dog. Dogs must bark, it is part of their nature. Without an opportunity to bark their nature would inevitably change. It is part of their expression of interest in life.

Really it must be a rare person who could suggest so cruel a thing as to render a dog barkless. One has but to think of the frenzy of a guardian dog trying to give an alarm of danger or calamity to his owner if he found it impossible as a result of a surgical operation to emit a bark.

ETHIOPIAN LIONS

People are making funny comment on the report that the Ethiopian army may utilize lions against the brave Italians in the event of a war on Ethiopian territory. Cages of those big circus lions which have become old in the service of the public may even have to return to the black land to help drive out the possible invader, some say.

It is related that many hundreds of years ago, almost two centuries before the great Julius Caesar arrived on the European scene with his conception of imperialism as a doughty man, from the African side of the Mediterranean Sea, Hannibal, invaded Italy with his troops and brought along with him elephants which terrorized the Roman soldiery under Fabius. Elephants' training was a well-learned art of the Carthaginians or the tribes which Hannibal enrolled. But through some unexplained reason, Hannibal lost the war after many years and after threatening the gates of the ancient city. Yet the elephants did not play so great a part as might have been expected in that war.

What the Ethiopian lions could do except exhibit on their own account without control by the Emperor Haile Selassie is difficult to see. They might frighten the Italian troops but they could terrify Italians without cause havoc to the Ethiops themselves. Doubtless Haile Selassie will have stronger friends than the lions, in the climate and conditions which make life almost unbearable to a white, in the unexplored state of a country and in the primitive manner of fighting which will render even the most effective a modern war machine such as Mussolini is boasting and preparing.

FROM RUSSIA

Word from Russia is that the divorce laws are wrecking the morals of the people. Laxity has led to this situation shown by the fact that last year for every one hundred marriages in Moscow there were 44 divorces.

In matters of economics and politics the Soviets are ruled with an iron hand, but in the matters of the inner life and in the family chaos is allowed to prevail.

Taking of children from parental control as under the Soviet destroys the tie of home and rolls up a mighty barrage of criticism. The problem for a time not far in the future when the state-controlled children will have reached the age of youth and adulthood. How will they act?

The Soviets have an odd manner of dealing with these things. They turn churches into museums for exhibition of things that have not life and destroy life in living inspiration and in the case of such institutions as the church.

How long a nation can go with laxity of this character such as shown in the marriage laws will ultimately be shown in Russia, for scorpion lashes were prepared by the very men who have done their best to eradicate religion and marriage as a divine state.

I knew a wise man who had for a byword when he saw men hasten to a conclusion "stay a little that we may come to the end sooner."—Bacon.

AN ALARMING PROSPECT

Bacon and eggs, bacon and eggs!
Surely that witness was pulling our legs?
Or is it, then, true that our race has forsaken
The Britisher's breakfast of fried eggs and bacon?
Have we turned from the fare that supported our souls?
Do we feed like a Frenchman on coffee and rolls?
Or do we, adopting Columbia's plan,
Now flourish on grape-fruit and packets of bran?
The Dutch, I have heard, break their fast upon cheese;
Have the Turkish adopted that singular wheeze?
Or do we stoke up for the duties that burgeon,
A la Russe upon vodka and slices of sturgeon?
I know not; but this is the point I would stress,
That England can never be England unless
She holds to the faith of our fathers, t'Pegs,
And sticks to her breakfast of bacon and eggs.
Bacon and eggs, bacon and eggs—
That takes the foreigner down a few pegs,
And if that fare fails us 'cos prices are high,
Then England is doomed and her glory must die.

—Lucio, in Manchester Guardian.

EDITOR OF NAPANEE BEAVER is making a trip to Russia to study conditions and there is no doubt to acquiring first hand knowledge of one of the most interesting countries in the world and one of the most interesting experiments in the history of the human race. The Beaver editor before going makes several observations about the editorial policy of the Weekly Press and he says that "a study of the Weekly Press shows that in an increasing way it is giving intelligent consideration to public affairs." This is a time not long ago when the weekly editor confined his editorials to the town hall, which needed repairing, to the fife hall which needed a new coat of paint, to the policeman whose uniform had shown signs of wear, and was glossy at the elbows, or to the lack of shed room for the farmers' horses on a Saturday." All that is changed now, in his opinion, and the Weekly Press is turning its attention editorially, to world affairs, and giving opinions on why the Italians should keep out of Ethiopia, and why the Japs should not be allowed to swallow up Manchuko, or for breakfast and China for lunch. However, we still think that the Weekly Press can best employ itself, editorially and locally with local affairs in which its readers are more interested than in international complications thousands of miles away. The metropolitan dailies and magazines have experts who can write with intimate knowledge on world events, and their views are easily available to those interested, but only a weekly editor can create an interesting article about the town hall, the fire hall, or the market building back home, or the home baseball game the other night played by the blacksmith shop, besides the hundred and one other things that the city chaps only hazily remember as incidents of childhood. No Siree, the weekly editor is a Specialist, just as big and important in his class as the guy who can write a column about Manchuko, mostly culled from the Encyclopedia Britannica. However, we are all in favor of editors, weekly or otherwise visiting Russia, or anywhere else they wish, and getting information to, as a personal can wangle transportation to, as a personal benefit in added knowledge—only—we'd like to have them inform us how these trips are financed, what they use for money, etc!

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

T. E. LAWRENCE

So we picked out the six best riders and put them on the six best camels, with Nasmat Sinah their officer and greatest-hearted man, to lead them. He decided that this little party would be fitted armed with just one Vickers gun. It was a very serious reduction of our offensive power, but it could be carried at it, the less fortunate seemed the development of this Yarmuk plan of ours.

The Beni Sakhr were fighting men, not disturbed by the Arabic. So Ali and I decided to make the Beni Sakhr, rather than Nasmat's gathering party. We would leave some Serahin to guard the camels while the others carried the blasting gelatine in our dismounted charge upon the bridge.

Ali ibn el Hussein took six of his servants, and the party was completed by twenty Beni Sakhr and forty Serahin. We left the lame and weak camels behind at Azrak in the charge of the balance of our men, with instructions to get them to Jemal's camp at dawn tomorrow and wait there for our news.

Just at sunset we were good-bye to them, and went off up our valley, feeling miserably inadequate for such an all Darkness gathered as we rode over the first ridge and turned west for the shallow depression in whose rutu would be our best guide. We were stumbling forward in the heavy hillside, when the men in front suddenly dashed forward. We followed and found them surrounding a terrified pedlar, with two sore and two-thirds laden camels, flour and cloaks. They had been going to Mafrak, the railway just behind us. That was awkward; and in the end we told them to camp, and left a Serahin with them who did not stir; he was to release them at dawn, and escape over the line to Abu Sawana.

We went plodding across country in the same shallow valley till we saw the gleam of the white furniture of the pilgrim rest house. The same road along which the Arabs had ridden with me on my first visit to Arabia ran by Rabegh. Since then in twelve months we had built up for some 1,000 miles railsns, flour and cloaks. They had been going to Mafrak, the railway just behind us. That was awkward; and in the end we told them to camp, and left a Serahin with them who did not stir; he was to release them at dawn, and escape over the line to Abu Sawana.

We went plodding across country in the same shallow valley till we saw the gleam of the white furniture of the pilgrim rest house. The same road along which the Arabs had ridden with me on my first visit to Arabia

GLORIOUS END TO SILVER JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

The glorious close of the silver jubilee of the accession of King George and Queen Mary to the throne is recorded in this brilliant view of the fireworks display that marked the close of the royal review of the British fleet; the final pageant of the jubilee celebration.

The King went to sea with his fleet, saw a mimic battle, and an air attack by Robot-controlled aeroplanes, and after the shooting returned to Portsmouth to witness this tribute in fireworks by his sea-fighters.

"TREATY MONEY" PAID TO OVER 4,000 ONTARIO INDIANS

Mr. H. W. Awrey, of the Department of Indian Affairs, has just completed another of his yearly trips into the remote sections of Northern Ontario to pay treaty money to more than 4,000 Indians. The 6,000-mile trip was done by air, two seaplanes manned by members of the Royal Canadian Air Force being used, and the itinery of the expedition was carried without any mishap and exactly to the date. Mr. Awrey is an old hand at the game, having paid treaty money for more than 25 years. He is shown above (LEFT) paying one of the Indians. At all posts visited the treaty party was greeted with a salvo of rifle bullets and immediate steps were taken to arrange for the annual dance which synchronizes with the arrival of the official party. Each Indian was given four dollars by Mr. Awrey as the Indians are entitled to receive this sum annually in perpetuity. There was 4,274 Indians in the areas visited, and during the year there had been 182 births and 85 deaths. Layout shows (BELOW) Mr. Awrey with party in boat at Fort Hope, Northern Ontario. At Right, Indians dressed in ceremonial robes for the occasion. Before advent of aeroplane, Mr. Awrey covered this ground by foot, dog-team or canoe. The only sure way to get to the Boy Scout jamboree to be held in Washington, August 21, this year is to ride there on your bicycle, as my boy would do. He will pedal across the continent to Washington.

CARDENAS "BREAKS" NAZI

CARDENAS AND STATES WHICH DEPOSED REGIMES UNFAVORABLE TO HIM

President Lazaro Cardenas struck swiftly to break the 15-year dictatorial rule of Tomas Garrido Canabal, Mexican Nazi leader in Tobasco state when he replaced the governor and named a new state military commandant with orders to see that in approaching state elections there is a chance for all. At the same time, the president sent word to Governor Rafael Villareal of Tamaulipas—besieged in his palace at Ciudad Victoria by 9,000 angry pro-Cardenas agrarians—to quit or be fired. The president's point action was considered a great victory for the 40-year-old chief executive, who now is undisputed leader of agrarians and laborites.

A peaceful auction of seized cattle, in Fermoy, Ireland, turned suddenly, on July 13, to a scene of confusion and rioting as women gathered at the sale indulged in stone-and-egg throwing at policemen who tried to disperse them. In this picture a squadron of police some of them shown reaching for their guns, are seen charging the group of women at the LEFT, who bravely stood their ground for a time. The riots grew out of the Catholic-Protestant quarrels during an Orangemen's celebration in Fermoy and Belfast. At least six were killed and hundreds injured in these riots.

Generations Gather To Honor Mrs. Hercules Thompson, 93

Birthday of Belleville Woman Celebrated at Ronelle Cottage, Hastings

Ronelle Cottage, Hastings, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Connor, was the scene of a happy gathering on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Hercules A. Thompson of Belleville was honored on the occasion of her ninety-third birthday. Children, grandchildren and great grandchildren were present and the gala occasion was thoroughly enjoyed, especially by the guest of honor, who was being entertained by the day's activities. Mrs. Thompson was at the Toronto next day to be the guest on Saturday at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Flowers who were married in Belleville fifty years ago.

Mrs. Thompson has been enjoying splendid health and is looking forward to the celebration of her one hundredth birthday, seven years hence. A resident of this city for the past seventy-five years, Mrs. Thompson was born in Lisbon, Lincoln County, and in that country when she was about eighteen years of age.

Festive Scene

Guests arrived at Ronelle Cottage, where Mrs. Thompson had been spending a few days, at noon on Wednesday. A delicious dinner was served on the spacious verandah and on the table, which was beautifully decorated with flowers, were two birthday cakes, the larger a white iced one, was the gift of R. F. Dickens and Son, and was artistically decorated in color with the inscription in pink "Happy Birthday, July 24, 1935—93 Years, 1838." A specially attractive cake was presented by the hostess, Mrs. Thompson being many lovely gifts during the day and also several cheques.

A delightful afternoon was passed. The guests attending were Mrs. Hercules A. Thompson, guest of honor, and Miss Doll Thompson, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. John Elenor, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Ketchenon, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Connor; Jack and Bruce Connor; Mrs. J. Neale, Belleville; Mrs. W. Brooks, Belleville; Mrs. O. Williams, Toronto; Miss Gertrude Williams, Toronto; Mrs. A. Dingwall, Toronto; Miss Gwen Dingwall, Toronto.

5 Sets of 4 Generations Present

It is interesting to note that the party included three sets of "four generations." They were, Mrs. Thompson, her daughter, Mrs. Elenor, Mrs. Elenor's daughter, Mrs. O. Williams and her daughter, Miss G. Elenor Williams; Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Minnie Dingwall and Miss Gwen Dingwall; Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Elenor, Mrs. Dingwall and Jack Connor.

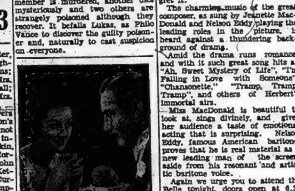
What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings



AT THE CAPITOL

"The Casino Murder Case"

Van Dine Mystery Shares Honors With Ben Bernie

Murder mysteries are always expected to baffle an audience and some of the finest efforts to ever come out of the studios is "The Casino Murder Case" now current at the Capitol theatre. Paul Lukas is the Philo Vance of this picture and he is ably assisted by a new and charming leading lady, Rosalind Russell in solving the "perfect crime."

The baffling plot concerns the wealthy Llewellyn family. One member is murdered, another dies mysteriously and there are two attempts on the life of Vance before he discovers the guilty poisoner, and, naturally to cast suspicion on everyone.

Rosalind Russell and Paul Lukas in "The Casino Murder Case" che of the two fosterns now at the Capitol.

Alison Skipworth is seen in one of her finest roles as the eccentric Dr. Lloengren, and Ben Bernie as daughter-in-law; Donald Cook as son; Arthur Byron as her brother and Leila Penion as her secretary. Charlotte where he was sworn in as the Dominion's Governor-General, will delivered address of leave-taking.

Ben Bernie invites a fascinating tour of Bernie's band in a specially designed set. The band kidnapped by a gang of thugs who insist on being entertained in their hide out. Enter Ruth, who plays a saxaphone in Bernie's band is recognized by one of the gang as a former convict, but, as he is endeavoring to go straight after having served a prison term, he feigns allegiance to the gang and at an opportune moment thwarts the plans of the thugs and saves the troupe from their treachery.

The picture abounds in lilting musical numbers and clever bits of entertainment with Ben Bernie leading the memoers of the cast in inviting laughs.

George Raft is seen as a dancer and he is also musician and gives splendid support to the old maestro and his boys.

Grace Bradley, an attractive young miss, does a dancing number with Raft that is one of the highlight of the play.

Excellent comedy is provided by a hitherto unknown team, Iris Adrian and Charlie Arst. Arst's performance in Cuban dress is sure to country in a taxi cab calls for comedy of the first water.

The Fox Newsreel has some interesting shots of tropical reversals. The engagement continues throughout the week, with the last showing beginning each evening at 8.30 p.m.

AT THE BELLE

"Naughty Marietta"

Returns to Belle Screen Today

Music, romance, stirring drama and spectacle fill the cup of the most outstanding screen productions of the year in "Naughty Marietta", Mutro-Goldwyn-Mayer's haunting screen transcription of Victor Herbert's masterpiece, which pays a return engagement at the Belle today and tomorrow, starting at 7.15 and 9.15. We guarantee this musical treat to you and you'll say by all means to make a special effort to attend one of tonights performances, you will never regret it.

The charming music of the great composer, as sung by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy playing the leading roles in the picture, is heard against a thundering background of drama.

Amid the drama runs romance, and with it such great song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", "I'm Falling in Love with Someone", "Chansonette," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp", and others of Herbert's immortal airs.

Miss MacDonald is destined to look at, sings divinely, and gives her audience a taste of emotional acting that is surprising. Nelson Eddy, famous American baritone, proves that he is real material for a new leading man of the screen, made from his resonant voice and his baritone voice.

Again we urge you to attend the Belle tonight, doors open at 6.30 p.m.

Saturday and Monday

"No More Ladies"

A brilliant interpretation of a famous stage play will be the next offering at the Belle where it is always a hit after its run. "No More Ladies" co-starring Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone is the attraction for two days beginning on Monday with the usual matinee and two complete evening performances daily.

With Joan Crawford cast as a beautiful young "Modern," and Montgomery as a charming Lothario, the picture is set against lavish New York and Westchester County backgrounds. Closely following the play in theme, it is a penetrating study told with irresistible humor, of the problems of a 1935 wife who suspects her husband of unfaithfulness.

Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald co-starred in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" at the Belle tonight only.

Along with the co-stars, supported cast, is that tremendously array of talent implicit in such features as Cora Sharlie Ruggles, Edna May Oliver, Gail Patrick and Reginald Denny.

Fast, spirited and very funny, the story builds rapidly to climax of pure humor, to a party which will go down in screen history as one of the funniest parties ever filmed.

Adrian again has designed a wardrobe for Miss Crawford that is dazzling as to make one forget the procession of beautiful gowns she has worn before.

"No More Ladies" is definitely the best picture that these noted stars have yet appeared in, and no doubt will be raised as one of the ten best pictures of the year.

A (Popeye) Cartoon, a two reel comedy and the Fox Movietone News will be shown at each performances in addition to "No More Ladies".

Montreal, July 26 — Rev. Dr. Bruce Hunter arrived in Montreal Thursday after an eight-day motor trip through Ontario to take over his duties as pastor of St. James' United Church. He stopped over in Toronto, Ontario, to visit the congregation to which he ministered several years ago.

Dr. Hunter expressed the belief recent strikes and labor unrest in Vancouver were the result of Communistic propaganda and activity, but said he also was causing trouble in Government unemployment camps.

"I have inspected various camps in which unemployed are gathered in British Columbia and found conditions very good," he said, "if the soldier lad had as good conditions they would have thought themselves very well treated." He believed dissatisfaction in the camps arose out of the fact the men there saw little for themselves in the future.

Dr. Hunter complimented Mayor G. C. Miller of Vancouver, for his work in "cleaning up the administration of affairs in Vancouver."

BUSINESS GREETINGS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I should like to know the correct form of greeting to use when making business calls?

2. Is it necessary to thank those who serve us in business? I am sometimes at a loss as to whether or not to thank people when I know they are being paid for their services by those who employ them.

Grace.

1. If you have an appointment, you simply go to the proper clerk; "Good morning. I am Miss Graham, of Jones & Company. I have an appointment with Mr. Atkinson."

If you haven't an appointment, you would say, "Good morning. I am Miss Graham, of the same Company. I would like to see Mr. Atwater. Would you send him, please, if he can see me?" Then you give your card to the receptionist, or, if you have no card, she will either ask you to write your name on a piece of paper and gives you, or, she, herself, will write your name on a card to take to Mr. Atwater's desk.

2. Yes, it is always the proper thing to thank anyone who serves us. A service whether or not the person is paid for this service, and, lady, it is the wise and gracious thing to be generous with your expressions of thanks to all those who serve you, socially and professionally. A great deal of kindness is shown by a few words of thanks will get you nowhere.

Mrs. Beeckman,

Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Madam:

You helped so many with their problems I thought you might help me with mine.

I received an invitation to attend the wedding of a friend who lives in a distant city. The invitation reads thus:

(Invitation enclosed)

1. Does this invitation cover both the ceremony in the church and the reception at the home?

2. What would you suggest as a suitable gift.

3. I have a pen green georgette crepe dress, a flared flounce with a jacket which has short sleeves. It also have a short cape, made of thesame goods, which reaches to my elbow. Would this be a suitable dress to wear with white gloves, shoes and hat.

4. Which would be the more appropriate the cape or jacket?

5. If do not know as yet whether or not I will be able to accept the invitation. If I do how should I answer and if I am unable to say how shall I word my regret.

Thanking you.

1. Yes.

2. That is rather a difficult question since you have not mentioned the sum you wished to spend. A silver dish is a very good choice and offers many selections in the price range. Glassware is equally attractive, but you must be careful to find out if the bride-to-be has a preference for any particular pattern. China is made in both her silver-pattern, if you wish to match her silver, want is a thoughtful gift, and of course there are lamps of all kinds that would come well within any sum you had thought of.

3. Yes.

4. This is simply a matter of personal taste. Either would be correct. The cape might be more summery.

5. If accepting .....

IN MEMORIAM

KEMP—In loving memory of our darling Hazlen, who died July 26, 1922.

You cannot see, you may not hear
That she is dead. She is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a word of say
She passed into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there;
So think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of here.
Think of her still as the same, and say
She is not dead—she is just away!
—Sadly missed by Mother, Sister and Brothers.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS, CLOSE

Toronto, July 26 (CP) — Weak through most of the day, liquor shares were inclined to firm up in the last half hour of today's trading and closing prices in the group were with little or slightly better than Thursday's final level. The general tone was a bit soft, particularly in the oils, mines and steel issues. Volume on the whole was small.

Trading on the Montreal exchange was of a casual character today and prices were fairly firm. Market operators are extending their weekends through the hot weather and board room attendance is below par of customers today. Liquor shares changed hands in reduced volume with Walkers Common holding at 26 and Distillers-Seagrams off a point to 20¾.

At the opening Ford A advanced sharply but was holding only the minimum fraction of its gain this afternoon as Ford B, Canadian steel at 6¼, the bottom price for the year and nickel had a minor recession. In the oil group trade was slow at unchanged prices.

TORONTO MINES, CLOSE

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—Mining shares are still highly today in quiet trading on the Toronto Exchange though the retreat was not so low and appeared mainly in the secondary gold and penny groups. Base metals and golds stocks showed little action and the silvers were also slow and unchanged. Hollinger was a strong spot in the senior gold group, selling up to $13.35.

Minor advances appeared in the mining list this afternoon, mainly in the medium price and penny gold while base metal, silver and senior golds were marked on the whole. Reaction developed a weak condition, selling down 15 cents to $8.45 while Hollinger was fairly active at $13.30 up 30 cents.

Penny gold stocks selling down a few cents each were Little Long Lac, Central Patricia, McCensky, Dividend Corporation Canada. Textures was slightly higher at 87.

Although metal prices were moderately soft some of the base metal stocks ruled higher, including Noranda and Falconbridge.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, July 26 (AP)—Profit taking developed rapidly to dry up in today's stock market and scattered selling pressure forced prices lower.

Shares up fractionally to around a point included American Telephone, U. S. Steel, National Steel, Otis Steel, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Johnsmanville, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, Santa Fe, N.Y., Central, DuPont, Union Carbide and U. S. Industrial Alcohol dropped 2 points and National Distillers and Eastman Kodak 1 point.

A narrow price range was maintained in the specialties such as Dome, McIntyre, International Nickel and Homestake. Around the Curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker ruled unchanged to a shade lower. Commodity and Government Bonds were inactive. Montreal Power held unchanged at 59 7-4 cents.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, July 26 (AP)—Firmness of the utilities and scattered small advances in other stocks marked today's closing dealings on the New York Stock Exchange.

Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey got up about a point each, along with American Can, Johns-Manville and Liggett & Meyers "B". Fractional gains were shown by American Telephone, Santa Fe, Otis, Central, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse and Eastman Kodak. The alcohols were a little heavy and Hercules Powder dropped a point. The late tone was steady to firm. Transfers approximated 960,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip
As reported to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Bureau.

It is reported that the first round of drifting on the new 400-foot level of Stadacona Rycon Mines has yielded $48 a ton across 3 feet. On the 600-foot level there is some 20 more feet to go to reach the vein and news is expected in a few days.

Bankfield—The high grade ore shoot on the first level west has a length, to date, of 109 feet; channel sampling averaged over 11 ft. gave an average of better than 3 ounces per ton across drift width.

San Antonio—The No. 18 vein has been developed for a length of 320 feet on the 1050 or deepest level. Vein is mine average across drift width.

McKenzie Red Lake—From inception to end of June 13,333 tons of ore were milled, average grade .401 ozs. Value of production $164,487. All ore is hauled to the mill during the period has come from the 150 and 250 foot levels and from development.

Another Canadian public utility stock that has shown quite an attractive yield under existing conditions is Canada Northern Power. Selling at 19¼, and paying $1.20 per annum, the yield is slightly better than 6 per cent. Earnings of the company have shown steady progress for several years past and dividend increases accrued to shareholders in 1921, 1934 and again in 1935, when the present quarterly rate of 30 cents a share was inaugurated. Operations are in the mining area of northern Quebec, which are served by the company's transmission lines, have continued to be favorable. Earnings in 1934 were around $1.67 a common share and, judging from the trend of earnings in the first six months, profits for the present year will show a satisfactory increase.

Tomorrow morning shareholders of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Limited will hold the annual meeting which was adjourned from last, 9 because of legal proceedings in which some of the company's officials were then involved. Now that the charges have been dismissed by the courts and a clearer atmosphere prevails the shareholders will probably ask for official confirmation of reported high earnings by the company and its American subsidiary during the past year.

Craig, Ballantyne and Co., has the following to say in connection with the effects of inflation: "Buying stocks: "Inflation with all its complexities is the foremost subject of discussion by this time, but it urges investors to keep a friendly eye on the metal markets. In a period of economic recovery the speculative possibilities of stocks ranked as Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel and Noranda are undeniable, but current prices of the two seem to take into account present probable earnings. Base metal lead are the primary products of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. the statistical position of zinc is improving and the outlook is further revival in the building trade would affect the price of lead. Noranda Mines is the premier copper as a lower cost than most companies of its kind, and the gold bullion from its properties is also of considerable importance."

IDLE SINGLE MEN WILL BE FORCED TO AID HARVEST

Names Will be Taken Off Relief Lists on July 31

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—Aimed at aiding the province's relief expenditure of $3,000,000 monthly, the decision of the Ontario government to remove able-bodied single men from relief rolls Aug. 1, was before municipalities today. The demand for farm help could be met through this step, Premier Hepburn explained, at the same time expressing the opinion there was no reason for feeding single fellows with work waiting for them on the land. Municipalities will lose relief grants in event of refusal to comply.

"We are going to compel single men to go out and take farm work," said the Premier. "After the harvest is over we will reconsider our action. But until then relief stops for single men."

Twelve Men Acting Premier

Ottawa, July 26.—(CP)— Five youthful delegates from the Manitoba Relief Camp strikers met Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister and members of the Cabinet today and presented six points dealing with the Relief Camp workers, at George Lamb, from the Relief Camps were receiving the consideration of the government which would be given as promptly possible to improve them.

At the same time, it said, it could not be denied Canada had looked after its workers during the years of depression better than any other country. There was a great deal of seasonal work available and farmers needed help to take off their harvests. He urged all men in the camps to get out and help the farmers by competing against the food which everyone needed.

Men's Demands

Harry Binder, 21, Winnipeg, was the spokesman for the group which included John Sommers, 24, born in England, and reared in Kingston, Ont.

Binder's six points were—

1.—Work and wages for the men now in the Relief Camps.

2.—The camps should be administered under some government department or agency other than the Department of Militia and Defence.

3.—Men injured in work at camps should receive compensation.

4.—The right to vote;

5.—The right to form committees to negotiate with those in charge of camps regarding working conditions, grievances and other matters.

6.—Non-contributory unemployment insurance.

POLICE COURT

J. H. Adams, Enterprise, was given a one year's suspended sentence when he appeared in today's police court. He was charged before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., the accusation having been found guilty of fraud in a previous court. The man you had better discontinue your cheque-writing activities before you get yourself into serious difficulties," stated His Worship. He was before informed by Crown Attorney D. C. Donnelly, K.C., that restitution in the matter had been made. Before leaving the court he suspended sentence Adams was also bound over to keep the peace.

One of the busiest police court dockets of the year confronting Magistrate Butler today but despite the lengthy court one peculiar incident stood out, and a single charge was presented during the entire court, that lasting nearly two hours. William McGivern, of this city, who came up for sentence after having been previously convicted on a keeping liquor for sale, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation in the common jail.

Edward Courtney, Toronto, motorist, who appeared in a previous court on a charge of reckless driving when all evidence was submitted and His Worship enlarged the case for sentence, was found guilty as charged. "There were some intoxicated persons in the car at the time of the accident and I believe this created confusion and materially assisted in the accident," stated His Worship as he found the charge laid guilty. A six months' suspended sentence upon the payment of the costs of the court was meted out while Courtney's driving license was suspended for one month also. W. Smith, Enterprise, represented the accused as counsel. Charged with throwing glass upon the open highway and there-by causing a hindrance, one John Quigley of this city, five dollars and costs. Situation Brighter for Giants After Defeating St. Louis In Double Header 3-1 and 13-2

Cards Down in Third Place as Cubs Move Up

YANKS RAINED OUT

All Games in Junior Circuit Postponed by Rain

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The situation, in the National League was looking somewhat brighter for Giants today.

Where they entered St. Louis for a "crucial" week last Monday staggering under four straight losses at Chicago, bemoaning the injuries, which cost them the services of two star pitchers for their important western tour and watching their lead, dwindle almost daily they returned home in somewhat resembling triumphant march after walloping Cardinals twice in their concluding double-header yesterday 3-1 and 13-2, shoving St. Louis down to third place and moving up a three-game lead over the Cubs, who moved into second.

In addition they were going back to their own park within a few days for a long period with the second Division Clubs and there was some prospect that the injured Giants, Hubbell, Schumacher and Clydell Castleman, would soon be ready for action.

Yankees Still Lead

Meanwhile Yankees, after an exceedingly unpromising start against the west, still led the American League by a fragment of a percentage point as their final clash with Detroit was rained out yesterday along with the rest of the day's schedule in the junior circuit.

Before a crowd of 38,500, which helped set a St. Louis attendance record for a week-day series, Giants put a highly successful conclusion on the series, which saw them momentarily into second place by virtue of the loss of the first game on Tuesday's tenth, till. Hal Schumacher, beaten once, came back to pitch a brilliant game in yesterday's opener while young Paul Dean faltered just long enough in the fourth to take a beating.

The Cubs entered ahead of St. Louis by knocking off Dodgers for the fifth straight time, 6-4, behind Carleton's five hit pitching to make it 18 victories in 19 tries against the Eastern Clubs. The Pirates kept pace by turning back the Phillies 8-4 in a four-game tuck battle, which was finally settled, when Red Lucas pitched a no-hit, no-run double with the bases full in the ninth to finish a three-run rally. Rain halted Braves and Reds.

BISON PITCHER WINS OWN GAME

Delivers Hit to Defeat Albany Fourteenth

(By the Associated Press)

Riding the crest of a winning streak that has carried them to victory in eight of their last nine games, the last five in a row, Syracuse Chief's today held down fourth place in the International League by only a hair of the second place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Although they failed to gain on the fast moving Montreal Royals, who hold first place by a four-game margin, the Chiefs did vault over Orioles into the first division yesterday by whipping the Leafs 8-6 in a free slugging contest that saw seven pitchers parade to the mound.

The Chiefs made five errors but made up for them with timely hitting power as the plate. They had to do some fence mending, however, after the winning run in the ninth, when Stan Schino delivered a single with the bases loaded.

The pace setting Royals helped the cause of the Chiefs as well as themselves by downing Baltimore Orioles 5 to 4 in 10-innings of a night game. Del Simonette broke up a pitching duel between Lefty Stoneham and Harry Gumbert by smacking a home run with two on base in the 13th. That single was the only effective game hitting streak to 23, only one short of the league record.

The third place Buffalo Bisons managed to hold their position when they were carried to 14 innings, the longest game of the league season, before they turned back Albany Senators 3-1 in another game played under the lights. Jim Bivin was the own game, when he drove Meyers home with his third hit of the game.

The Rochester-Newark game was rained out.

Buffalo Sculler Sprint Champion Canadian Henley

Fort Dalhousie, Ont., July 26.—(CP) — Apparently packed with more and better boats than ever in many years, the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta moved forward with rowing squarons from the United States already on the run and the old double blue of Toronto Argonauts on the way up the mashed. Thirties—the Argo shellwork fold up completely today and tomorrow after having taken a firm grip on aggregate point honors yesterday, the highest club prize of Canada's greatest rowing festival will be returned to Canada. Buffalo wrestled here held it the last three years.

Fresh from a similar victory last week in the United States National Regatta at Princeton, N.J., the Buffalo took a serious setback on Henley's opening day. While Argos were winning three of the five finals decided, the Buffalo Club sent out only one winner—Edwin Konrad, single sculls star.

Konrad not only scored the outstanding triumph of the afternoon but established himself the most versatile oarsman in Canada and the continent. He conquered Johnny Kelly of Boston and Charlie Campbell, two fall Argo sensations, to add Canadian sprint supremacy to his American laurels he captured last week.

Campbell Beaten

It was a double victory for Konrad, Campbell, International Single Sculls champion, was strongly favored to beat the American Ace at any distance. Konrad covered the distance in one minute, 16.4 seconds to beat Coulson handily with Campbell third.

Today the Buffalo Sculler will set out in another effort to dethrone the Toronto youth. He will took on Coulson, M. Miller of the University of Toronto, R. W. Bates of Boston and freshly-crowned junior champion in the final of the Association singles. The winner will face Campbell Saturday for the title.

Konrad won his heat over the longer distances yesterday with ease in 8.46.6 while Coulson was not pressed any harder in winning his qualifying test in 8.54.2. Kelly and Bates qualified by taking seconds.

Junior singles finalists will go to the mark in the third event today, the winner getting a place a couple of hours later in the Association final. The juniors are George Richardson and Bill Reid of Argos, Glenn Murphy of St. Catharines Rowing Club and Austin de Cotaret, Robinson and Murphy are joint favorites.

Buffalo a Bad Last

Aside from Konrad's triumph, Buffalo boats failed unexpectedly and completely. Wedaddy were a bad last in the junior 140-pound fours, won by Argos, They placed second to Argos in the Junior fours but failed to qualify for the finals in the 160-pound eights which saw Detroit, Hamilton Leanders, St. Catharines and Argos made the grade.

They did no better in the junior eights., University of Toronto, Fort William, Detroit and Brockville qualified for the finals which will run on today. The first heat of the eights pitted the club's classic Buffalo, of T. defeating Fort William by three-quarters of a length in a gruelling struggle.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

With the O.B.L. schedule practically two thirds finished and the clubs heading into the home stretch for that final dash, excitement is running high. The Stewart-Warners only have three more games on the road, one each at Peterboro, Oshawa and Kingston. The Radios make their final appearance of the regular league schedule at Peterboro on Saturday, while the Petes close up with the locals there next Wednesday afternoon. On the other hand the Millerites have four home games remaining, one with each club except Oshawa, who come here twice more. If the locals can win their four home stands they will be assured of a play-off berth to say the least, but if they have higher aspirations and want to finish atop the loop ladder they cannot afford to lose many more games. Doubtlessly the locals got a bad game cut of their system on Tuesday eve, and will naturally try for revenge on the Petes tomorrow.

During the progress of the Kiwanis junior-Chamilton exhibition game at the Fair grounds on Wednesday eve, the old bone of contention, that confronts baseball clubs and umpires again arose — that is the "rule ruling of how far a base runner may advance on a passed ball." Last year in the O.B.A. Jr. series officials and clubs argued fully 20 minutes over this question. At last local park the home club has a ground rule of "one base over first, third or home," so base runner must make the next base, unless the ball touches the fence in front of the grandstand or the dugouts." When a base runner is standing between second and third and an overthrow occurs at the plate or third, then there is always a heel go to whether the base runner should score or not. However, the local rules makers would define that "in case of an overthrow the base runner would get one base and the batter he is going to," all this would simplify matters for all concerned and climate continued arguments.

We observe, where no less a personage than "Lefty" Judd has turned up as a pitcher in the St. Lawrence Baseball League (Perth, Smith's Falls, etc.) This should be the last straw for the amateur moguls as Judd is an out-and-out professional coming directly from the Los Angles club of the Pacific Coast League to the St. Lawrence loop. Judd was heralded as a star pitcher and numerous clubs do leave Canadian shores, but his success in class AA ball is short lived. Now that Judd is daily appearing in the box scores of the St. Lawrence loop, there should be little trouble for the O.B.A.A. in the future. Incidentally we understand the St. Lawrence League is about ready to "call it a day" during mid-summer, as it is not to be compared with the old O.B.L. which after all is said and done has had a stormy career, but is still the best senior baseball league in this part of the Dominion.

Frank "Duke" Smith's Jobs went out and won the Mayor's challenge pennant on Wednesday from Masrthis Saturday and if the Chiefs in prime form he may give the Millerites a nice boost forward. Kitchen will likely throw for the locals.

AAJMAAS LOSE 9-6 AT TWEED

Gordon Steel Works Team Score Win Over The League Leaders

TWEED.—Gordon Steel Works' team won a well-deserved victory over the league-leading Aajmaa Club at the local ball diamond on Wednesday afternoon by a score of 9 to 6. The game was a see-saw affair, the honesters going into the lead in the second inning when McCutcheon scored on Sinclair's sacrifice. They added another in the third. Aajmaa cut the lead to one run in the sixth when the Dents tallied. The locals tacked on three more in the sixth to take a commanding lead, two juicy errors by the visiting second baseman with two down allowing two runs to be scored.

The game seemed to be safely stowed away as Gordon pitched her, was twirling great ball and his team-mates were backing him up with excellent support. The visitors however, showed why they are worthy leaders in the league by staging a five run rally in the seventh to take the lead for the first time. Gray led off with a single over the infield. Clark followed with another safe hit. The next two men went out and then the parade began. Bawden tripled to clear the bases, St. Denis and Kiser singled and Bawden scored when Kiser's head but was thrown out at the plate by Gray. Bawden made a perfect peg to Orr, retiring the side with the locals leading by 6 to 5. Not one whit discouraged, the local squad sent eight men to bat in their half of the eighth, registering three runs, also after two were down. With the bases filled, Bawden weakened and walked Luffman to force in Orr who had previously received a charity. Perro in centre then contributed a costly error when he dropped Mercer's fly, two runs coming in. Rollins struck out to end the inning. With two down in the eighth, Orr laced out a four base knock and counted for scoring.

Luffman contributed some sterling relief pitching, only seven men facing him in the last two innings, Bawden securing the only hit.

Perreal at the third sack handled several hard chances in splendid style. Perro was great at the bat, whiffing every time up. Tummon and Critchley made spectacular catches. Sinclair had a perfect batting average with two singles, a home and a three-bagger in four trips. Orr, McCutcheon and Tummon also had two hits.

St. Denis was the leading batter for the visitors with three safe hits. He was forced out at third base on two occasions, the third inning ending in the third inning, his lack of sportsmanship showed itself, when he deliberately knocked Perreal, local third baseman, who had retrieved the ball, off the bag after leaving the field and passed out. Gordon, in his way, Harris and Jr. Bawden both mt triples and singles.

Bawden retired ten on strikes, but six walks and six errors, kept him from registering a shutout. Gowsell struck out but one batter and allowed one hit in his three nine hits. One man did not strike out a batter, and his control was perfect.

Line-ups: Aajmaas — St. Denis, 3b; Kiser lf; Hanna rf; Ehler 1b; Bawden ss; H. Bawden c; Perro cf; J. Bawden p.

Gordon Steel Works — Meraw ss; 3b; Rollins 2b; Quinn 1b; Gowsell p; Orr c; McCutcheon lf; Tummon cf; Sinclair rf; Prevost 3b; Luffman p.

SOFTBALL

Alemites and St. Paul's A. C. softball clubs will play their regular ball loop last evening when the "lubricants" downed the "Saints" 9-8 in a game by the score of 7 to 3 on the latter's diamond, while at Alemite Park the two leading clubs Aajmaas lost their second consecutive game, when they met Stirling Rubbers and emerged over them to the tune of 15 to 8.

Batteries at Redeerville Vic White, Alemite moundsman, was in rare form as he scattered the four hits garnered by his mates, only allowing hits in two innings at which times he struck out seven batters, Bowden also. The "lubricants" swung mean bats from base to base, which made a total of 13 hits to run up a total of seven runs. Dickey with three safeties, Bowden and Boyd with a double and a single were the big swatsmiths for the winners. At Aajmaas Redeerville batter was credited with more than one safe blow as Perro, pitcher, got a hit throughout. Dempsey hurled for the home team.

At Central Park Chuck Barriage on the hilltop for the St. Paul's nine was in rare form as he held the hard-hitting Aajmaas to tow safeties, three less than their batting averages as they counted 15 big runs. The Alemite and St. Paul's victories elevates the winners into condensing positions in the local Senior league.

The line-ups of the game played at Redneerville — Alemites—White, Dickey, Bowden, Boyle, Henry, Halsey, Darrah, Lupenette and Ridley; Redneerville—J. Farley, H. Farley, Wannamaker, Dempsey, Sills, Moy, Taylor, Snell and Thompson.

Mercantile League

Two games were played in the local Mercantile softball loop last evening, when the C.D.S. entry doled out a narrow margin 7 to 5 victory over the Recreations, while the Simpson nine won handily over the Ontario Intelligencer "printers" by the score of 15 to 3. With all teams in the loop battling for second while play-off positions each game in this league is being keenly contested and the clubs are bolstening their line-ups whenever possible.

The line-ups—Ontario Intelligencer—Brockhurst, Canning, Robinson, Philp, Ling, Doyle, Harris, Kemp, Geyer, Lunberg. Simpson's — Jennings, Meers, Reynolds, Clarke, Phillips Munnings, Dracup, Cooper, Rowbotham and Ketcheson.

BLACK RUST IN WHEAT BELT OF UNITED STATES

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—Black rust shrouded the Spring wheat belt today as observers here forecast a 50 per cent. reduction in the domestic crop of once bountiful proportions.

Increasing violence in the rust of three days, spurred by torrid weather, led competent authority to cut in half their original estimate of 273,000,000 bushels from the great grain belt of the United States.

Rust blanketed the entire Spring wheat region — northeastern South Dakota through North and South Dakota into Montana. Grain and forage crop experts of the area said only a quick weather change could halt rust spread.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

CHAPTER THREE

He stopped dead, staring at the face before him, now lit up in the beam of the head-lamp. He had seen it before. On the voyage from America. It had haunted him like a shadow. Half a dozen times he had seen it peering at him from behind washbasins or over plate of deck chairs; generally at night. And always on those occasions—they were many—when he was in company of Sonia Nell.

It was a queer face, a dangerous face, with sharp black eyes and an unshaven chin; framed in a sailor's sou'wester. The man in whose figure was absorbed in a long black oilskin dripping with the wet. A seaman's outfit; an incongruous thing to meet here in the heart of the Wiltish Midlands. He swayed a little and had evidently been drinking; but the calming eyes were stern.

"I know you, friend," said Brian finally. "Sam Barber, eh? What the thunder are you doing here?"

The man grinned at him, not at all resentfully.

"Same the Sailor. That's me, Mister Chalmers! Remember me, eh—some?"

"I'd have thought," said Brian, "that you would soon be forgotten."

"You got me wrong—"

"I got you," said Brian, "dodging out of a lady's cabin on the 'Armenia' while the owner was at the other end of the ship. And I pulled you before the Purser. You were one of the crew. I'd been watching you for some time past—thought I'd like something on you. You were watching me. Whatever you were after you didn't get away with it, and that's explanation you gave was a lie."

Again the mad grinned.

"Sure. An' you got me fired haven't any ground on you for that. I've done with the sea, anyway. But you made a mistake, Kid Chalmers, and now you'll make another."

He glanced quickly at the baggage piled in the car and turned into Brian's face; a grin that was almost friendly.

"Pullin' out of another voyage, Mister? It us, mere feel you. Guess it might pay you better to stay where you are."

Brian came a step nearer; his brow knitted.

"What the devil do you mean?"

"What do I mean?" the sailor interrupted. "I ain't one of these that gives anything away. I tell, I tell—that's all."

A stiff foreigner was poked into Brian's chest.

"Information, bos. Who I sell it? That depends who bids highest. I'm off Guisa across, an' you might learn something worth while—I got what you want."

He leaned forward; the black learned something worth while—eyes were fixed and staring as they peered into Brian's. They were slight with greed. Vaguely, Brian seemed to Brian, remarkably cunning and purposeful.

Brian's eyes narrowed to two tiny slits. A cold disgust surged up in him. For a moment he hesitated. The fellow's speech, if it meant anything at all, suggested black-mail. Against whom? Not Brian. A queer, half-formed suspicion began to take shape in his mind. But was this fellow really worth while? What could he do?

A chime rang from the old steeple clock, reminding him of his errand and the need for haste.

"Way by it," said Barber. "Climme till the mornin', then I'll show you. Come across the way an' have one with me."

"You drunken stiff" said Brian, "you'll get yourself killed."

The man's eyes blazed with sudden fury.

"Will I?" he snarled. "I know your brand—the Creole brand, I say of 'em laid a finger on me it'll be the last thing he'd ever do—I'll finish a shot out, and stripped the man by the from of his oil-skin coat and flung his back pulling against the wall. Barber bumped like a beetle, and dropped in a heap.

Half stunned, he swung nearby. His hands groped inside his oil-skin. For a moment or two Brian waited, then slipped into his car and treading on the gas pedal he was away into the night.

Not worth while to expend energy on such trash as that. He only regretted having taken his hands off to a man so obviously intoxicated. Brian's temper was on the razor's edge.

To be held up by a drunken seaman. Who was also an obvious crook; to be trying to get together with him in a village tavern, to receive his confidence which were so valuable! Brian's self-confidence willingly mix the New York boat boy pay was to be. Brian's self was enough to fray anyone's temper.

And yet he sensed that behind all this there was something mysterious, vital. He judged that Sam Barber, sober, would be a danger-ous man to tackle. He had not seen a pair of eyes more cunning and menacing, or more cruel.

Nothing gave Brian more intense delight than tackling what he considered himself to be dangerous. It is as it was with the early farmers. Brian had the terrier's zeal for vermin. In Barber he smelt vermin on a big scale; also the beast of prey. And he hated to turn his back on a problem. More than once, tearing southward along the main London road at a steady fifty, he was tempted to swing back to Kings Ware.

That wouldn't do. He would be a fool to fall for it; the motive of the game was only too obvious. A trick to delay him, rather clumsily staged. If there was another motive it was plain robbery.

Banister's written instructions were in his pocket; beside them were Banister's two hundred pounds, and Banister's orders were explicit and unbreakable. No conceivable obstacle must prevent him sailing by the New York mail-boat.

He had a job on hand, on which depended big issues, big money. And here was Opposition, trying to jam the wheels. He had had that ticked on him before—though not so crudely. The man who handles big business learns to take care of himself. Banister knew he was to be relied upon for that.

Barber had shadowed him across from New York. The thing was becoming clear. Sailing the miles behind him, Brian pieced it together.

He had noticed how frequently Barber contrived to be within sight of him on the "Armenia". Brian had not taken that seriously. The idea that one of the ship's crew could have any interest in watching him seemed absurd. Later he discovered that the man was a passage-worker who had signed on for the voyage.

As soon as Brian got together with Sonia Nell, however, the thing became much more marked. Particularly during the dark quiet hours on the upper deck, Brian and Barber's presence was more often sensed than seen. Brian suspected that he was one of those lonely animals with a complex for spying on couples. Nothing but his profile that would ensue prevented Brian from breaking his jaw.

Soon Brian began to have doubts. There was something more, behind this recurring watchfulness. If so, who was the man interested in? Brian—or the girl?

Then came that curious incident on the last day of the voyage, when he had caught Barber coming out of Sonia's deck-cabin. The scene Barber made to the ship's officer—that he had been ordered to shut the port-lights—was a lie. Sonia asked to check up her belongings, declared that she missing nothing, and so the incident closed. Barber was shut into the detectives tells for enmity at Southampton. It seemed to Brian, none the less, that Sonia was pretty deeply disturbed about it—though she said she knew nothing of the man!

And now—Barber at King's Elm, of all places on earth! Why? Coincidence—that was impossible. Nor could Barber have followed Brian over there; he had got away directly the ship docked and Barber was kept back. Yet he must have got off pretty quick, for here he was, within call of Brian's head-quarters. Certainly it had nothing to do with Sonia. Nell—there was no possible connection so far as the girl was concerned, she was out of it. And no hanger-chance—that he would ever see here again. Barber! Clearly the centre of interest lay in Brian himself.

The thing was mysterious— baffling.

Somehow, strange though it was, his mind refused to concentrate itself for long on Sam Barber. The incident had switched his thoughts in another direction.

Sonia Nell! Those nights when they sat alone together on the "Armenia's" boat deck. Amazing how sweet the memory was, and yet how poignant. To recall them was like a knife turning in a wound. Strange, too; so little that had passed between them; so much that there might have been.

Had he been a fool, not to speak? No women he had ever cared for had known her only a week—appealed to him a thousandth part as much. A thousand— she was a girl in a million! That charm of hers; her independence, the very poise of her head, her sympathy —the laughing curve of her eyes. Before the voyage was over, she held his heart in the hollow of her hands. He had not let her know it.

She had told him—it was on that last night, and after the trouble with Barber—that she had pledged to a man in England, and was on her way to marry him. It was that his luck. The news had darkened Brian's world.

After that, how could he break out? What had he to offer? Less than nothing. From that moment until he left the ship, she had avoided him, it was the last he had saw of her. All he knew—she had left the ship cold; certainly so was that she would stay a day or so at some hotel in Southampton.

Later, that struck him as a little curious. Sonia seemed to no hurry to be with the man she loved. He could not imagine a girl like Sonia Nell keeping her lover waiting for. Still, why shouldn't she? He had deliberately cut the connection from her that she was poor—why could not have acted similarly and kept from her clothes. No woman ever showed a braver face to the world. And she felt like that to Brian.

There was an end-to it. With the Sinister Shadow Barber's presence different his own position was. Brian what it had been on the liner.

Rollins' Family Reunion

One of the largest and most successful reunions held in this district was observed at Cooper, north of Madoc, on Wednesday, when about 150 members of the Rollins family, with a few invited guests met for the annual event. Points as far away as Syracuse, New York, Toronto, Belleville and the various towns and villages throughout a wide area in this section were represented.

Reminiscences of bygone days in this district by various speakers, who gave brief addresses; games, a full program of sports and other special features marked the gathering which was the eighth annual one.

Following a splendidly prepared lunch, which was served by the ladies, President Chas. Rollins of Coe Hill after a few preliminary remarks and a welcome to the visitors present introduced the various speakers, who in their brief talk recalled many interesting events of former days and former reunions. Among those who spoke were Mr. O. A. Rollins, Madoc; Harkness Rollins, Cooper; S. B. Rollins, Tweed; Samuel Rollins, Madoc; Geo. Robinson, Tweed; Dave Rollins, Belleville; Mrs. Mae Emerson, Plainfield; Mrs. Geo. Peat, Madoc; Mrs. Bateman and Mrs. Samuel Rollins, Madoc. The younger speakers, who were also called upon by president Chas. Rollins included Harper Rollins, Stirling; Mrs. Harper Rollins; Elmer Post, West Huntingdon; Mr. Geo. Harris, Cooper and Mr. E. Rollins, Syracuse. Mr. Charles Allen, an invited guest, gave an interesting account of his boyhood days spent in the district of Cooper.

As the oldest person present, Mrs. Harkness Rollins, 83, was presented with a new shiny cane by president Rollins on behalf of the family, while Master Gerald Cook, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cook, five months old and the youngest individual present, was presented with a tiny sweater.

A vote of thanks for the splendid arrangements and the reunion was moved by Mrs. Geo. Post and seconded by Mr. Dave Rollins. It was decided to hold a reunion of the same sort again next year at some location yet to be determined upon by the officers of the committee.

Just one item of interest was noted during the day, when it was announced that since the last reunion, ten members of the Rollins family had gone to their last resting place.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Chas. Rollins; Treasurer, S. B. Rollins and Secretary, Mrs. Harper Rollins.

'GROOM' ORDERED BACK INTO SKIRTS

Woman - Weds - Woman Case Annuled in Kansas

Columbus, Kas., July 26.—Pretty red-headed Margaret Fowler, 21, legally has shed her female "husband" and the one-time "groom," Alice Delores Hayes, 21, shed her trousers in favor of women's attire.

An annulment by Judge V. J. Bowersock snipped the matrimonial bonds tied ten days ago.

A young chief's ultimatum took Miss Hayes out of "trousers" and put her in skirts. Whether she would stay put was another matter.

At Picher, Okla, where she worked in a men's clothing store as George Hayes and dated several girls, Miss Hayes refused to say whether she would continue wearing skirts—or both—as his aides.

"Been too much said now," she murmured in a low-pitched voice.

She was married on Monday—Wednesday night when she accompanied the "bride" to a Picher. The dress was borrowed from the "wife" and yesterday she made her first purchase of a dress in years.

Chafing in friendly bauble, the girls left early after the annulment hand in hand. They did not divulge their destination, but left for Miss Fowler's home at Galena, Kas.

Miss Fowler testifying she "wasn't absolutely sure" Miss Hayes was a girl at the time of the wedding.

The Picher police chief threatened to arrest the girl if she appeared in trousers again.

Accompanied by her mother and attorney, the "bride" appeared in court. Her petition showed that as both parties were women there was no legal marriage. It said nothing as to whether the bride knew in advance that "George" Hayes was a woman and not a man.

ETHIOPIA GOV'T NOT IN FAVOR OF OPENING SUBJECT

Italy's Plan to Open Negotiations Not Favored

AGAINST BAN

Says it Will Help Italy More Than Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, July 26.—(AP) Authoritative sources said today that Ethiopia would refuse to accept a revival of the Conciliation Commission in its controversy with Italy.

This stand was made known upon receipt of a new note from Italy, expressing willingness to have a fifth, neutral member appointed to the Commission which collapsed at Scheveningen, the Netherlands, in disagreement, the issue to be discussed.

The contents of the Italian note were not divulged but the Minister of Foreign Affairs announced the Ethiopian delegation to the League of Nations has received the necessary instructions to deal with any proposal for reconvening the Commission.

Although the nature of these instructions were not disclosed informed sources indicated Ethiopia was not willing to accept any recalling of the body.

Ethiopian Government officials expressing disappointment at the British Government's ban on the export of arms to both Italy and Ethiopia, charged the British action favored Italy.

The officials said the ban resulted in a definite disadvantage to Ethiopia because there were no arms factories while Italy is well equipped to meet the requirements for munitions manufacture.

"The Ethiopian Government put its hopes for solution of its controversy with Italy squarely up to the League of Nations."

This stand was communicated to the Italian Government in answer to an Italian request for a revival of the Conciliation Commission which collapsed recently at Scheveningen, the Netherlands.

Ethiopia's reply said this government has informed the League of Nations a decision is up to Geneva since the Commission, rupture resulted from a divergence of opinion as to the duties of the arbitrators. Beyond that, officials said the Ethiopian Government had nothing more to say.

This reply was given in answer to an Italian request for a fortnight's delay for a reconvening of the Conciliation Commission. Officials said no further Italian request has been received.

PRISONER HELD IS IDENTIFIED

Expect McCardell to be in London Friday or Saturday

London, Ont., July 26 (CP) Authorities closely in touch with the arrest in Indiana of Michael McCardell, alleged member of the gang that kidnapped John Lattimer, baby brewer, a year ago, revealed today they expected the Huron County native would be behind the bars of Middlesex county jail today or tomorrow.

At Hammond, Ind., two Canadians identified McCardell as a member of the gang. Police Chief Tom Martinson announced Martinson said the prisoner replied: "You're wrong."

Reports were heard police would soon return to the Muskoka area, where Lattimer was held by his kidnappers for a ransom of $150,000 which was never paid.

PLAN TO REMOVE TARIFF BARRIERS

Question Discussed by Co-operative Union in Convention

Saskatoon, July 26 (CP)—Removal of tariff barriers, condemnation of commercial codes with a profit-seeking motive and establishment of a Dominion Co-operative Union are instanced as objectives of the Co-operative Union of Canada today.

A resolution urging the Federal Government to remove or reduce barriers to international trade between Canada and Great Britain or any other country showing a disposition to approach the subject of international trade in a reciprocal spirit was unanimously adopted at the opening session.

A wave of sentiment for co-operation was sweeping over the country, George Keen, Brantford, Secretary of the Co-operative Congress, told delegates attending the annual meeting last night. This was apparent, he declared, from the number of professional men and motors, who were attempting to capitalize on the co-operative returns under the name "co-operative."

Co-operative societies and trading companies have a new danger to face in the political activities of some associations, he warned.

"We must prepare for war. We must get ready for aggressive, quick action." He expressed the opinion that attempts to establish one way trade by tariffs had accentuated the economic depression.

PREMIER W. LEA DENIES REPORT

States There Will be No Dummy Opposition in Parliament

Victoria, P. E. I., July 26—(CP)—Convalescing at his country home here today, Premier-elect Walter M. Lea, whose Liberal party captured all the legislature's 30 seats in Tuesday's elections, denied reports quoting him as saying he was nominated by the Conservative situation facing the new government when it was elected entirely without opposition.

Mr. Lea also denied, that he had suggested appointment of a dummy opposition.

"I had no intention of designating one of my members as a make-shift opposition," he declared, adding that such action had not even been considered.

"It was not necessary for the constitutional business of the state, that a single member be elected as an opponent to the government of the day, and in accordance with the people's wish, British parliamentary procedure will be carried on without opposition." Mr. Lea continued.

What have I done!

SUPPOSE THIS HAD BEEN YOUR CHILD!

THE number of children killed and injured by automobiles in Ontario is appalling!

Children by nature are carefree. You must think for them, and for other pedestrians, constantly. Be sure your brakes, tires and lights are effective. Drive slowly and be particularly careful wherever there may be children . . . especially on holidays and week-ends. Train yourself so that safe driving becomes second nature to you

If you don't, some day you may find yourself not only severely penalized but also minus a driver's license . . . for life!

IT IS BETTER TO BE SAFE... THAN SORRY

C.N.R. ASSETS TO BE WRITTEN DOWN SAYS MR. STEVENS

Issues Statement on Railway For Reconstruction Party

CREATE BUSINESS

Leader Declares Against Amalgamation or Unification

Toronto, July 27 (CP)—Creation of sufficient business and the writing down of Canadian National Railways' assets were declared the Canadian people today as the main lines of attack the Stevens' Reconstruction Party would resort in coping with railway problems. Opposition was declared to amalgamation or unification of management.

Promised sometime ago the views of the Reconstruction Party on existing Canadian railway difficulties were released in statement from Ottawa today on behalf of Mr. H. H. Stevens by Warren K. Cook, chief organizer for the country's newest political entity.

The statement insists there is only one sound answer to the "Deal is to create in Canada sufficient business which in itself creates traffic in goods and passengers."

The Unionist amalgamating the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railway is repugnant to Mr. Stevens' party, Cook merger, he says, could only be brought about by reducing the stock of both railways. "The direct sufferers, therefore, would, of necessity, be some of the employees of both the C.P.R. and O.N.R. The true direct sufferers, however, are the people of Canada generally."

Put Blame on Order

Supplementing both railways will have to put their house in order, the statement sets out "the railways must pay more attention to the efficient running of their own business in order to keep their expenses down and their service up." This, according to the statement, should solve the problem with the exception of one difficulty which is unexpected and beyond control.

"The debt of the C.N.R. is far in excess of its assets. The value of the assets of the C.N.R. will be written down in accordance with the recommendation of a competent board of railway appraisers. When this is done and the creation of this board will take place at the first session of Parliament. The amount of outstanding debt over and above a reasonable percentage of the new value of the C.N.R.'s assets will be absorbed into the general debt. Ample allowance has been made for the refinancing of this debt in the calculation of the Reconstruction Party statement as the total C.N.R. debt was included in the computation.

"Relief of the party is the equipment of both railways so that they must be modernized in first-class service in so far as possible. Whether modernization takes place or not it is considered, nevertheless, that large sums will be involved to bring about improvement.

Chiffon flowers, attractive very big straw hat and it is very attractive to match them to the flowers in a light print frock. Garden flowers, fresh and fragrant and rich for daytime wear, smaller and in softer tones for the evening.

Of Hawaiian design, sea-shell flowers, large when there are used as belt-buckles or clips, smaller in brooches or necklaces are the very latest thing to be worn on the beach.

Cork and hard rubber, easily dyed and carved, make beach jewels that are pretty seven in design and brighter in color.

Another Way Is Found By Nazis Against Jews

Individuals Ordered to Leave Actions to Nazi State

By Ad. D. STEFFRAUD
Associated Press Foreign Staff
Berlin, July (AP)—Count von Helldorf, Nazi Police Chief of Berlin, announced today the state itself would conduct its fight against Jewry and individual actions against Jews were "forbidden."

Von Helldorf's announcement gave no clue as to the measures the Nazis planned in continuing their anti-semitic drive, except it would be conducted in "another way."

"Verboten"

In a decree which the police chief issued "in agreement with the party offices," he said:

"The fight has been recently ascertained in a few cases (Nazi) party members have allowed themselves to be led astray by provocateurs to participate in anti-semitic demonstrations.

"The state party has again and again emphasized individual acting are prohibited. These single actions include painting and damaging name plates, shop windows, et cetera.

"It is noticeable in individual cases the police are hindered from doing their duty by persons even mentioning my name. The fight against Jewry will be conducted by the state Nazi movement in authority way.

"Anyone participating in individual prohibited actions puts himself outside of the state party and is liable to punishment."

BANNON'S ARREST A SURPRISE ONE

Held in Custody Until August 3 in Labatt Case

London, Ont., July 27. (CP)—Local authorities placed no special significance today on the arrest of Allen Van Exter, 47, of Hamersonville, in Hornell, N.Y., as the investigation into the year-old Labatt kidnaping continued with vigor.

In London's Middlesex County jail, where Jack Basil Bannon, said to be a former Windsor beer runner—arrested yesterday, and Kingdon F. "Piccolo Pete" Murray, awaiting trial in connection with the kidnaping. Bannon is held in connection with the case.

Inspector Michael MacArdell, Huron County native was held on charges of kidnaping preferred by state officials. It was announced recently two Canadians had identified him as a member of the Labatt kidnap gang.

And in Kingston Penitentiary was David Meisner convicted and sentenced to 12 years for participation in the kidnapping of August 14th, 1934.

Bannon's arrest came as a surprise in a series of swift-moving developments which have brought the case again to the fore. Held temporarily on a vagrancy charge, Bannon was remanded to August 3 without bail as a closed hearing yesterday.

Herman Newton, crown attorney, and Inspector Hamar Gardner, Provincial Police, returned from Indiana in connection with the Labatt's arrest.

Mr. Newton refused to comment on the arrest of either Bannon or McCardell, declared the fact they were being held as alleged members of the kidnap gang. The Crown would not say how the hand until they were actually brought to trial, he declared.

Only one statement, made without elaboration, came from officials —"any party to a crime is equally guilty with those that carried it out."

COMMUNISTS RIP NAZI FLAG FROM GERMAN STEAMER

ONE MAN SHOT

Another Flag Run up With Elaborate Ceremony

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—Communists ripped the German flag with Nazi Swastika super-imposed from the bow of the liner Bremen early today, hurled it into the Hudson River and precipitated a battering fight between nearly 2,000 of their own number and police and lieutenant.

One man was shot, two policemen were severely injured, scores of other participants in the battle were cut and bruised.

The Communists later choked the Nazi flag in the police station, where they demanded release of their fellow members and a second pitched battle in which ordinary citizens were drawn from their slumbers joined the police.

Buckets of water were poured down upon the Communists as Communists chanted: "Free the arrested men." Bricks, bottles and many other missiles were hurled into the street.

Mass on River Front

The Communists were massed on the river front in the afternoon before the Bremen was scheduled to sail. They sang the Internationale and shouted "Down with Hitler" and "Down with Thalmann."

In the street 150 uniformed patrolmen, 100 detectives and a score of policewomen failed to maintain order.

Then Communists appeared on the bow of the boat. Before massed ranks of police and dockers on the boat could reach them they had torn down the flag and thrown it into the river.

Two shots were fired as detectives reached the bow. One of them struck a man who gave his name as Irwin Dvoldet. A police file is held a prisoner in a hospital. Detective Matthew Solomon was severely beaten.

Either the flag that had been torn down or another one was later run up on the bow of the Bremen. Then Communists sang the Star Spangled Banner amid many salutes and songs in praise of the Soviet Union.

Few of the liner's passengers were aware of the riot.

PEACE PREVAILS IN IRISH STRIFE

De Valera Says Religion Exploited For Political Aims

Belfast, July 27.—(AP)— Peace prevailed in the area of rioting resulting from celebration of the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne but police said precautions would not be relaxed yet to guard against a recurrence of the disorders.

Interest was aroused here by reports from Dublin of differences between Ethiopia and two Italy, Italy maintains that the Ethiopian dispute was appointed by the Conciliation Commission itself as provided by the League Council.

Closing of Suez Urged

London, July 27 (AP)—Closing of the Suez Canal to Italian warships as a means of averting the threatened war between Italy and Ethiopia was urged upon Great Britain today.

The idea was advanced by the London "Law Times" as a matter of disciplinary action to be sanctioned by the League of Nations.

The "Law Times" urged Britain close the Canal as a "protecting power."

Suez Key Factor

The Suez Canal is a key factor in Premier Mussolini's heralded campaign against Ethiopia since its closing would force Italy's warships to detour thousands of miles. It would necessitate their going clear around Africa to reach Eritrea or Italian Somaliland.

The Canal is bound by the nine-power treaty of 1888 to remain open to traffic "in time of war as well as in time of peace to the warships and merchant vessels of all national."

The "Law Times" says, however, Italy cannot expect that treaty to be observed and at the same time itself violate not one but four treaties—the 1906 Tri-Partite Agreement, the Briand-Kellogg Peace Pact, the League of Nations Covenant and the 1928 Treaty of Friendship with Ethiopia.

It is doubtful, however, according to informed circles, Britain will send such a mandate as Geneva accept possibly as a last resort. Italy has declared it would view the closing of the Canal as an act of War.

League Placed On Trial As Leading Members Create Gravest Issues

Momentous Meeting on Wednesday Will Urge Arbitration

LIMITS OF DISCUSSION

Britain is Urged to Close Suez Canal in Event of War

Geneva, July 27 —(CP-Havas)— The extraordinary session of the Council of the League of Nations to deal with the Italo-Ethiopian dispute was called for July 31st.

That Wednesday's session will be one of most important in League of Nations history, since the issues involved affect directly leading members of the League and may be the decisive factor in determining whether Italy will wage war against Ethiopia.

The Council will be presided over by the Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Maxim Litvinoff. The extraordinary session is the first of the members of the Italo-Ethiopian Conciliation Commission appointed by the Council.

Council Meets at 5 p.m.

The Council will meet at five p.m. Wednesday and Italy will be represented.

The first act of the Council will be to try to induce both Italy and Ethiopia to agree to accept one of the Arbitration Commission, presided over by the nationals of a fifth member, and to agree to abide by the Commission's rulings.

League circles had the impression Italy will insist upon restriction of the Council's activities to questions of conciliation and arbitration and confine any discussion to broad investigation of the dispute, such as Britain favors.

Limit Discussions

Rome, July 27 (AP)—The Italian Government today telegraphed Joseph Avenols, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, expressing Italy's willingness to attend the forthcoming meeting of the League Council with the provision the Council limit its discussion to ways and means of forwarding the work of the Italo-Ethiopian Conciliation Commission.

In the event, however, the Council desires to enlarge its discussion beyond that limit, the Italian Government reserves the right to take any steps it deems necessary.

The note says July 14 and July 23 the Italian Government telegraphed the Ethiopian Government expressing its willingness to constitute the conciliation commission which abandoned its consideration of frontier questions at a conference at Scheveningen, the Netherlands.

Italy Will Attend

The Italian Government now decides to take part in Ethiopian Government's decision in this respect. Whatever Ethiopia's answer, however, Italy will attend the League Council meeting.

The note stated Italy will oppose the nomination by the Council of a fifth arbiter to join the present arbitrators in the dispute between Ethiopia and two Italy, Italy maintains that the Ethiopian dispute was appointed by the Conciliation Commission itself as provided by the Italo-Ethiopian Council.

PEACE PREVAILS IN IRISH STRIFE

De Valera Says Religion Exploited For Political Aims

Belfast, July 27.—(AP)— Peace prevailed in the area of rioting resulting from celebration of the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne but police said precautions would not be relaxed yet to guard against a recurrence of the disorders.

Interest was aroused here by reports from Dublin of differences between Ethiopia and two Italy, Italy maintains that the Ethiopian dispute was appointed by the Conciliation Commission itself as provided by the Italo-Ethiopian Council.

Closing of Suez Urged

London, July 27 (AP)—Closing of the Suez Canal to Italian warships as a means of averting the threatened war between Italy and Ethiopia was urged upon Great Britain today.

The idea was advanced by the London "Law Times" as a matter of disciplinary action to be sanctioned by the League of Nations.

The "Law Times" urged Britain close the Canal as a "protecting power."

Suez Key Factor

The Suez Canal is a key factor in Premier, Mussolini's, heralded campaign against Ethiopia since its closing would force Italy's warships to detour thousands of miles. It would necessitate their going clear around Africa to reach Eritrea or Italian Somaliland.

The Canal is bound by the nine-power treaty of 1888 to remain open to traffic "in time of war as well as in time of peace to the warships and merchant vessels of all national."

The "Law Times" says, however, Italy cannot expect that treaty to be observed and at the same time itself violate not one but four treaties—the 1906 Tri-Partite Agreement, the Briand-Kellogg Peace Pact, the League of Nations Covenant and the 1928 Treaty of Friendship with Ethiopia.

It is doubtful, however, according to informed circles, Britain will send such a mandate as Geneva accept possibly as a last resort. Italy has declared it would view the closing of the Canal as an act of War.

CAR MOUNTS CURB PINS MAN BY FOOT

A peculiar accident, which might have been serious, occurred on Thursday afternoon near the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets. Mr. John Charlesworth was driving his car west through traffic and standing near the curb on the south side of the street was Mr. Blanche Haycock of Napanee talking to the driver of a passing car of party. Instead of stopping the car by the curb, the driver allowed the vehicle to mount the curb, pinning Mr. Charlesworth by the foot. Not realizing that the car driver was being fast, Mrs. Haycock alleged quickly pulled on the emergency brake which held the car. Still more quickly, did the driver, Mr. Charlesworth was trying to draw the attention of the driver to his predicament but to no avail. Other hands prevailed and the car was soon moved. Friends ascertained Fred Izard and Constable Evans investigated and Mr. Charlesworth was taken to the surgery of Dr. Robertson where Dr. Charles Adams X-rayed the foot but found no fractures. The driver was not held nor will a charge be laid, it is understood. An amicable settlement was arranged.

TAKING ORDERS IN PLENTY OF TIME

The wife of a prominent city official was pondering the question today of whether it was a case of super extravagance or super economy.

Disturbed in her housework by a summons at the door of her home yesterday she answered the knock to find a youthful, rotund, rosy-cheeked offering fresh, ripe tomatoes for sampling.

"I'll need them all right, but it's a little early yet for canning, isn't it," she questioned.

"Oh, that's all right, th ,tomatoes won't be ready for three weeks yet," answered the salesman. "I'm just taking the orders now."

Before the door left another order for a supply of sweet corn was also taken.

ROADS NOT HURT BY HEAVY RAIN

Road wait-outs in the northern part of the county which prompted Mr. Simeon Fox, county road superintendent, and James Moore, chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee of Hastings County Council to leave on a north trip this week on a tour of inspection were not as bad as at first reported, stated Mr. Fox on his return to the city today. Several sections of roads in the vicinity of Maynooth were damaged by the heavy rainfall but these have been quickly repaired, it was said.

Judging from appearances back there they must have had a cloudburst instead of a rain storm," commented the road superintendent today.

"City Step Ahead," Says Mayor Tice

"We have been a step or two ahead of Premier Hepburn in the matter of cutting off the beer interest men off relief," intimated Mayor Geo. O. Tice this morning. "Since time ago when I was sick in my invalid, we commenced the work of weeding the single men off relief, finding jobs for them until today we have only about 30 on the lower possible level. Mr. Hepburn's pronouncement only has little effect on Belleville," added the Mayor.

LOCAL DAIRIES ENTERED TODAY

$40 in Cash Taken From Pouches at Reid's Dairy

Forcing their way into two local dairies, robbers broke in on the neighborhood of $40.00 from the money pouches at Reid's Dairy while their attempts to break into a safe in Reid's Dairy proved futile, as fortunately the combination had been changed only the latter daily.

Shortly after 3:30 a.m. today local police received a hurried call from Fred Reid, employee at Reid's Dairy, Parker Avenue. Upon the arrival of Sergeant Arthur Booth and P. C. Arnold it was discovered the front door of the Reid Dairy had been forced open by the use of a "Jimmy" the building had been ransacked and the change money in the drivers' money pouches, amounting to nearly $40.00 in all, was gone. The office safe had been broken into but the latter, but nothing of value was reported missing, leading the authorities to believe that cash was the sole objective of the robbers.

While investigating this break in Sergeant Booth was informed by telephone that a similar break-in had occurred at Dairy Limited on Moira street. Upon investigating the second dairy the police and the officials of the authorities were confronted with practically the same situation, save the burglars had gained entrance by means of twisting off a padlock on the front door. At Reid's Dairy however, the robbers made their visit after the delivery of the milk but the first delivery of milk and no money was left in the building. When commencing on the latter route this morning Mr. Harper stated—"Apparently it was such the robbers wanted, as I have roughly checked my daily and find nothing missing except possibly the loss of milk or so. We never leave cash in the dairy house at any time, therefore eliminating any chances of robbery," concluded Mr. Harper, when interviewed by the Ontario Intelligencer today.

Local police promised a thorough investigation in both cases, and more particularly in the Reid robbery as cash was stolen. Sergeant Booth reported the matter to Chief Kidd early today and a thorough check-up is being made in the matter. Although no authentic information was available from the police, it is understood that certain clues have already been brought to light by Sergeant Booth and will be completely investigated.

City Park Used As Mayor States

Three-quarters of a cord of wood for cooking purposes, and the privilege of posting fence or any other sign on the principal street corners in the municipality, were given to a tin cop extended in mute appeal for donations from citizens to continue their sanctuary in the city jail, when on-to-Ottawa marchers will resume on the way of their destination in this city, pointed out Mayor Geo. O. Tice today. The men must not solicit, it was added.

The trekkers who are expected to arrive in the city late this afternoon will also be given the privilege of camping on Victoria Park, but it will also be allowed to make their application for relief. The part is they have done in other cities, it added.

"As long as they stay within the law, it's all right," stated Mayor Tice this morning. "Belleville will recognize them only in so far as I have stated."

Mayor Tice, who was in conference with the Board of Parks Commission yesterday completed arrangements, particularly as to privilege to sanitation during the stay of the trekkers here.

"Through the police and citizens are not officially warned off the park during the stay of the unemployers here, it is hoped that the park will be left free to the use of the citizens and strollers will not use the park during their stop over.

Hitler's Sailing Not So Smooth As Lieutenants Have Pet Plans

Berlin, July 27.—(AP)—Although the fidelity of the Nazi directorate and its unswerving devotion to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler are proclaimed in every public utterance by public speakers throughout the Third Reich, close observers here profess to see reasons for a belief the sailing isn't always as smooth as it may seem.

The personal ambitions of some of Hitler's lieutenants appear to lay a large part in certain divergences in the field of high-ranking German Pres does not allege.

Thus while no actual rifts have developed, there are signs that there exist in the Nazi Regime two main currents, the one that can be described as moderate ,the other, radical.

In the former classification are generally placed General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Chief of the Secret Service, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, Minister of Foreign Affairs, General Von Blomberg, Minister of Defence, and Wilhelm Frick, Minister of the Interior while protagonists of the latter include Dr. Paul Joseph Gobbels, Minister of Propaganda and Public Enlightenment, Walter Darre, Minister for Agriculture, and Dr. Robert Ley, Hitler's Trade Union Commissioner and Chief of the Reichstag.

All have pet projects which they hope to put through from time to time on occasions when opportunities of "leaks" someone else's thunder".

Katherine Hepburn's New Coiffure Not Likely To Create Sensation

Hollywood, July 27.—(AP)—Katherine Hepburn's new haircut had Hollywood guessing today. With the star's coiffure—resembling that of a boy— prove as popular as Claudette Colbert's bangs or Joan Crawford's bob?

"It may be adored but not adopted by the girls of America, says Grace Leonore Sabine, President of the Motion Picture Hair Dressers' Club.

"The Hepburn haircut might encourage a new style," Miss Sabine commented today. "But all the stars I know are keeping to longer hair. It would be comfortable for the summer of course, but would not lend itself so readily to evening dress."

A Legend Of The Harbor

Two Old-Time Figures of City Waterfront Conjured Back to Life in Story Form.

Captain "Ab" Eccles, square-chested skipper of the three-masted schooner, Dundee, as trim a work boat as ever sailed the lakes into Belleville port, is even yet frank in his memory of many a fine day's sailing, and sailing are the tales that are still told of him as an example of the city foregather on the waterfront these balmy days. Captain Eccles carried on his trade forty years ago and more, but the stories of his feats are as fresh as if none of their verve in the telling.

Colorful was the captain in his heavy, blue pea jacket and slouch hat pulled down on the side of his head, and few there were who would try to take advantage of the brawny skipper when in verbal or physical weight. The captain's word was law, whether it came from the spray-washed fo'cale, of his own seat of the docks to which she was warped. Few dared to dispute him, and fewer still to disagree with him. Few, that is, except one man in the city, Harbormaster Sandy Waters, another old timer but still well remembered by greenest of the town two decades ago.

When Two Strong Men Meet.

For between Harbormaster Waters and Captain "Ab" Eccles there existed a grim a feud as the waterfront of those days had ever seen.

"Full o' the luck o' the Irish" foes," grimly impressed Mr. Waters as the Dundee slipped in, and for each time he warped to one of the docks and discharged his cargo of coal for the city, he was on board the Dundee. And pay the Captain did, although he was in command always and much lying awake nights figuring ways and means to defeat the letter of the law as applied to dock collections.

Captain Eccles and the Dundee left Owego in November. Fall gales had spread and the majority of lake boats had scuttled for cover. As—the sturdy Dundee plowed through the waves, the seaming spray which whipped Lake Ontario into a white-capped fury, the captain stood uneasily in the hold of the boat as she dipped her nose into the trough of the sea. Captain Eccles paced the deck, one eye on the flying jib and a wary eye appointed for his new Old Sandy Waters has to get up before him if he is to himself.

An Idea Conceived.

A flash of inspiration had seized the brawny skipper. An idea had been conceived, born and was now ripening in his mind. It was conceived by act. And to carry this out, good and enjoyed their peace of mind.

timing was necessary.

Then it was that the masts of the Bay of Quinte the schooner Dundee appeared through the grey mist. Manoeuvring shooting in a bit of a wind which barely belied her sails enough to give her steerage. Slowly she neared the reach, with the Captain himself at the helm. Then suddenly through the width of the bay from shore. Mid centre of that body of water the sails of the Dundee were struck and as her chain came through the hawse pipes she dropped into the water. The Dundee had come to rest, just south of the dividing line and out of the jurisdiction of the Belleville Harbor Master.

Frozen In.

"There she lay until the ice froze. And as cold snap succeeded cold snap, heavier ice formed and locked her in. Aboard she carried 400 tons of the best grade of coal. Ordinarily an unloading period of a few days would be charged on each ton by the harbormaster. But great wooden signs was up "Ab's" sleeve as the solid ice formed and anchored the boat more firmly than the heaviest anchor and chain led through the ice.

"Ab" and son's crew was only answer the Captain would give the "Just wait and see."

Not until the ice was heavy enough to support the load did the Captain give the word and then only with sleighs to come and get it. The sleighs of the Belleville citizens and the sleighs on the ice from the boat.

"I'll pay no harbor fee," the captain would say, and pay no fee he did. He watched the first sleigh being loaded, and then he left with the black diamonds.

Harbormaster Wins.

But Harbormaster Waters was not to be caught napping. That coal became valuable. He had passed the harbor in spite of the fact that it was being unloaded on the ice. And posting his men at each entrance he loaded sleighs were using, he collected from each load of fuel as they came along. "Pay or stay on Sutton was signed on the back of each sleigh load was checked off on a pad of the bearer. And pay Captain Eccles did in spite of his loud and high protests to heaven.

Mr. Eccles, a born boaster, crushed, defeated at his own game. There was nothing left for him to do but to get up before the sun and depart. Mr. Waters saw that even the foul lost its charm of interest. He left them on the Dundee and skipper Eccles began his voyage homeward and boats did who entered Belleville port, and Harbormaster Waters enjoyed their peace of mind.

Frank Bossio, Transient of Ottawa Instantly Killed

Attempts to Board Freight Train Near Trenton

Trenton, July 27 (Special)—Frank Bossio, aged 30, of 150 Slater St., Ottawa, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon about 3.15 p.m. as he fell, when attempting to board a west bound C.P.R. freight train. His companion, Fred Edwards, aged 24, of the same address is being held in the county jail. In connection with Edwards, Constable Intelligencer was told that Bossio's foot seemed to slip through the foot rail on the freight car, throwing him to the ground. The next moment was one he will never forget, as he saw the lad try to rise but was caught between the cars, failing onto the rails and then being rolled under the wheels.

Most of his head was cut completely off, one foot and one hand mangled and several other bruises were found on the body.

Provincial Police Const. McQuade was called and ordered the body removed to McNair and Northy's Funeral Home. C.P.R. Constable Jack Pennington and Chief Kidd of the Trenton force investigated.

Neither of the lads had parents living in Canada, Bossio's wife having married in Ottawa only two months ago. Edwards' parents live in England and the pair decided to go to Western Canada to seek employment in the harvest fields. They arrived here on Thursday evening and had travelled from the west coast, ended their hopes of finding employment.

A jury was empanelled comprising James A. Grainger, foreman; Allen Bailey; Thomas Taylor; Calvert M. Newton; George Cobley; Edward Weir; Cecil Deeming, Shoreker and Clarke. After viewing the scene of the accident, which was about 100 yards west of the station, and the remains of the unfortunate man, the inquest was held until Tuesday, July 30 at 7.30 p.m.

Minute Interviews

Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance:

"Considering the number of lighted cigarette butts tossed through the open windows of speeding cars on roads and highways every day it is a miracle that more barns and farmhouses aren't burned down, to say nothing of bush fires in wooded land through which many of the roads lead. I have particularly noticed how dangerous it is to pile shocks of grain right along the roadside as many farmers have been doing this season's wet weather."

W. F. Callaghe, Visiting Yachtsman, Rochester, New York:

"Your Bay of Quinte and harbor make up one of the prettiest spots I've visited this summer, but if you want my frank opinion, the city should clean the muddy harbor itself is very discouraging for visitors owing to the wood, reeds and garbage dumps. Also the difficult to navigate in here around the upper harbor owing to the sunken bars which only the experienced boatmen of the city know."

Thomas Murphy, Tourist, Wheeling Fords (No Address):

"Belleville is a very tough spot in which to get the odd meal. Sometimes it or not. I had to call at five homes this morning before I got any kind of a breakfast. One place was closed and the next one I came to as that must have been left over from the night before. Then they offered me a glass of water to go with it. At the last place, though, I did get a hot cup of coffee and a couple of fried eggs."

P. C. Clark, Keeper of the Waterfront:

"Who owns the stones in the wall around Victoria Park? What are the limits of the Belleville harbor? Should not the Parks Board get the stones in the stone wall. The harbor is limited by the breakwater at the city east and west to the middle of the bay; but I have been looked after by the Harbor Commission competes these limits to as far north up the river as the old former Pringle factory, north of the present Optical plant. This is the high water limits of the bay. The highest the water in the bay has ever reached, and that was quite a few years ago, was just four feet six inches higher than the level at the present time.

Gordon Derry, pitcher for the Whitfall Can was disqualified after he went to Belleville this week and played for a team there. He also signed a certificate in that city after signing with the Whitfall's, Trenton's junior entry in the O.A.A. play-downs. Leo Coughlin, catcher with the Carrying Place entry, was also banned from any more games in the local loop. Coughlin signed and played several games with the Carrying Place team and then left. He signed later with the Belleville team, but he could get his release but it was not forthcoming. He also played with Redberville in the Belleville loop. Ed. Whitton was signed with Napanee-Coulter but Manager Orval Ward had not used him until the executive gave permission. It was decided that, Whitton, who is a school teacher, could not comply with the residence rule set down by the O.A.A. His home is in Trenton although he has resided outside for several years but spends the summer with his parents here.

Ken Chambers, a Trenton resident who goes to school in Kingston, was also dealt with. He originally signed with the Carrying Place team and by admitting this move. His certificate disappeared from the table and he was then signed with the Canada Rut. It was decided to ban him from playing until after the play-offs for the town championships but could order the protection of his contract with either the Carrying Place team or the Canada Rut if either of these teams win out.

The schedule is nearing completion and the race looks like Wooler, Canada Rut and Downs-Coulter all met for the intermediate title. The Whitfall Can, junior entry, have the right to meet the latter in a medale winner for the George Colley Cup, symbolic of the Trenton softball championship

RESTRAINTS IMPOSED

A thoughtful comment upon the restrictions placed upon a young man's liberty in Western Ontario appears in the Sentinel-Review of Woodstock, pointing out that he has been placed under parole for two years, ordered not to drive a car until he has been examined, ordered to abstain from intoxicating drinks, not to gamble, to spend his leisure time at home, pay his board, obey his mother and report to the chief of police monthly.

"Presented in that way it seems like a harsh program but on analysis it must be admitted that it is what most young men are doing who have ambitions to get anywhere in the world and maintain the self-respect necessary to the role of good citizens. Furthermore the reason for the court's action merited a drastic sentence," the Sentinel Review writer says, pointing out a number of young people at this age find a difficulty to keep out of the kind of mischief that eventually brings them into the police court. The young resident referred to had involved in a motor car accident in which a man was killed.

The photos were made in rapid succession in the order shown (top to bottom). The rose-colored mass seemed most brilliant near the ground, resembling great fireworks displays. Measurements showed one ball was 42 feet in diameter.

EVEN CHILDREN TAKE UP SWORDS FOR ITALY!

At the railroad station in Rome on the occasion of the departure a week ago of a fresh contingent of soldiers—volunteers in this case—for the troubled zone in Africa, the scene was enacted. Wives, sweethearts and children of the departing warriors gathered at trainside to be with their loved ones until the very last moment before the train bore them away to danger, and possible death on African battlefields, and even as the train moved out of the station some of the girls who were being left behind clung desperately to their loved ones. Reports indicate that the prospect of warfare against Ethiopia is very popular in Italy. Note how children proudly carry their father's bayonets!

NEW BLOOD PURGE IS EXPECTED SOON

Nazi Tactics Appear Similar to Those of 1934

Berlin, July 27—(AP)—Whispered alarms throughout the Reich the Nazi government demonstrated by signs another "blood purge" carried added fears among Jews today as their chief Nazi tormentor, Hans Hinkel and Julius Streicher.

Hinkel has been appointed chief of the Reich culture chamber, his announced purpose to rid German art of all Semitic influences.

Streicher, anti-semitic publisher, was hailed in Munich as the "savior of every German soul" as he pressed for, a revolution against the Jews.

Meantime, Catholics found cause for jubilation in widely circulated reports that a message from the Vatican had been delivered to the Reich. The message was declared by the Ministry of Propaganda but Catholics insist Monsignor Cesarre Orsenigo, Papal Nuncio, handed the foreign office a communication from the Pope.

One of the most persistent reports is Streicher will be made a super "gauleiter" a party official in charge with authority to push his anti-semitic program everywhere as he deems fit.

Behind all efforts to place radicals in strategic control is said go be Goebbels.

Library Corner

Daphne du Maurier, of some distinction as a novelist, has written an intimate biography of her father in "Gerald: a portrait". The book is a charming study of the English actor, Sir Gerald du Maurier considering the credibility of a faithful biography with the spirit and movement of a work of fiction. Her study of her father is clear and illuminating and she does not hesitate to discuss the weaknesses as well as the merits of his character. The book begins with a sketch of Sir Gerald's grandfather, George du Maurier, author of "Trilby" and "Peter Ibbetson" and ends with the story of her father, showing the similarity between father and son. Sir Gerald is described as a brilliant, moody, generous man, always in search of some unknown happiness. Edward Shanks of the New York Times says: "Daphne du Maurier has here made memorial of her father more likely to preserve his memory than his long and varied work on the stage."

"Images of Earth: Guatemala" is a record of a journey by Agnes Rothery through that rarely visited country, mysterious and contradictory. Within the narrow borders of this land, fire takes from the indolence of the tropics to the independence of a modern republic. The bright American cities to tiny Indian villages and Spanish ruins. Miss Rothery has put down several vivid books including "Sweden: the Land and the People" and "Italy". In this volume, at the Library, has made a close scrutiny of this picturesque Central American republic. "Images of Earth" is a blend of travel impressions and imaginative interpretation which she has built around incidents on her journey. Her pen sketches are vivid, descriptive photographs taken by the author's husband.

Writing as a convert to the Catholic faith, Ignatius Gillet gives an account of primitive and medieval Christianity in "Saints and Sinners: "Saga of Saints". The lives of the saints are told against a background of the times in which they lived during the days of the Vikings. Mme. Gillet has merged fact with fact and legend and history of the time and given an invigorating account of a glorious epic. The Spanish saint, Saint Ignatius, in the position of Galsworthy in England."

The sacrifice and heroism of wireless operators on shipboard is recorded by Kart Baumann in his book "SOS to the Rescue". The story of the early days of wireless telegraphy is told by the author, himself an experienced sea-going radio operator. The book is filled with exciting stories of daring, cowardice and heroism. The part played by wireless in the tragedy of the Titanic, in the Roosevelt and Andrew disaster, in the Morro Castle fire, is told vividly. Captain Felix Riesenberg, on the preface of the book, pays tribute to the author's modesty, knowledge, and deep understanding of the sea. "He has put into elements out of which a man may write a book, then Karl Baumberg has had made a book. It is a piece with the great ocean itself."

Prof. George Herbert Clarke of Queens University has collected his poems which appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, Queen's Quarterly, Dalhousie Review and Saturday Night in his volume "Hall and Parley and other poems". Among the outstanding is "Canada—Lake and John" based on the life of John Macdfield in New York and "The Old-Cedar" a nostalgic play, which was presented for the first time in Kingston last year by the Queen's University Dramatic Drama Group under the direction of Herman Voaden. Signed on behalf of your Zion Friends.

They were then presented with a beautiful silver tea service.

The bride and groom responded in a few well chosen words thanking all for their gift and inviting everyone to visit them in their new home.

FEMININE HANDS HELP IN HARVEST

Lack of Farm Laborers in Various Sections of Province

Toronto, July 27 (CP)—Feminine hands turned to masculine tasks in rural Ontario today as harvesting of the province's heavy grain crop began.

Lack of farm laborers in many districts brought women from their farm homes to the fields to aid in preparing for the harvest, picking berries, pitching hay and other tasks.

In some districts relief offices have had difficulty in filling the demand for agricultural labor and it was expected that a plan would soon be taken to fill the farmers' requirement following Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's intimation those who refused to work would be stricken from the relief rolls.

In the St. Thomas district where the Premier's farm is situated no such conditions prevailed owing to the damage to crops by recent storms. But in other districts there was a general complaint that workers while in others the condition was a grave one.

In the Lindsay district women and girls were going into the fields and being helped with haying, others with berry-picking and canning. Relief officials reported a considerable demand for labor and none was available.

Women were reported filling in in the hay fields in the York and York Counties and relief officers said they could place 40 more if they were willing to take farm jobs.

Today Gotta received the following letter:

"I'm having fine all right. It must have been a gala day when they elected you representative from Belknap. I'm a day is enough for any man, eh?"

With the Boy Scouts

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN CAMPING? THE BOY SCOUT SHOWS YOU HOW

An out-of-doors Brotherhood Whose Key Activity is Woodcraft

The natural group of boys ranging in age from twelve to eighteen is found to move about in groups of five, six, six or seven boys. A certain locality will rarely have one gang of more than eight boys rather do we find two or three rags with six or eight boys in each.

Whether for good or for bad this gang will soon come under the influence of one of its members and a comparatively definite and readily manifests itself.

The founder of the Boy Scout movement, Lord Robert Baden-Powell recognized this instinctive tendency of boy nature—and has brought the gang idea into Scouting. What is a Scout troop be more correct, for Scouting is an out-of-doors brotherhood. Each Scout patrol is made of five, six or seven boys with one of its members elected patrol leader. A Troop of Scouts usually has from three to five patrols, with a Scoutmaster over.

By the term "Scouting" is meant the work and attributes of backwoodsmen and explorers and the activities which centre in Woodcraft. On being invested a Tenderfoot Scout, the boy has impressed with the importance of his Scout promise, to do his best. Then as a Scout he has learned the secret woodcraft signs of Scoutcraft and Woodcraft. He has learned the Ten Scout Laws which make him a good Scout—to be courteous, kind, thrifty and clean. He has learned the value of the Scout knot and how to fly it correctly and has become fairly expert in the use of several camp hitches.

The sincere and unselfish Scoutmaster has not failed to recognize the all important fact that Scouting must, therefore most of the instructions and character building activities have been given the form of interesting games and contests. During the first twelve months our tenderfoot has mastered Semaphore or Morse signalling, has been taught in a practical manner and he has been taught the value of accuracy—he's really a regulation triangular bandage can be used as a sling, as a tourniquet to arrest bleeding, or for a bandage. By the use of the Scout's pace he has learned (by actual running and walking) to cover a mile in twelve minutes, so that he can estimate distance by time, and elapsed time by distance travelled. Through Compass games he has acquired a sense of direction, can orient a map and knows how to find the North Point without the aid of a compass.

He now knows how to swim the open near the lakes and streams so that he may practice for that Scout requirement test. Flying a fire, lighting and cooking, the woodcraft and trail will make him a second class Scout.

Besides this properly, lays much stress on the importance of camp fires—their size, location and use. A study of forest fire statistics of any province will unquestionably show that the great need of a more general knowledge of camp fires—their proper use and care then and what is infinitely more important, how to put out a camp fire. Scouting says "A tenderfoot is known by the size of his fire' and this applies to camp fires generally "The minimum fire for each purpose." We have all seen the camper who has a steak to broil, build a fire large enough to roast an ox, and then leave it burning and go away looking around for something to put out the fire, leaving a camp fire that never cut down a tree unnecessarily and he knows that there are very few cases of fallen limbs about and that dead limbs on the trees should be left for a good quick fire. A good Scout and a good sport will always build a camp fire that a good Scout will always look for a safe place to build the fire, on rocky ground, clear out such as sand or gravel, never on turf if avoidable, and never in a tree or near a tree, particularly a hike fire. When landing from a boat, the camp fire should be built on the shore so that sparks blow out over the water. For the more permanent type of fire in the open, the Scout uses the open trench fire. It is made by digging an excavation about three feet long, sloping it gradually from the mouth (windward) to a depth of about one foot in the rear. Make the trench a little narrower at the rear than the width of pots and pans to be used and neatly twice this width in front. Where the soil is soft or sandy lined with small stones. From the point of view of safety and efficiency the above type of camp fire is hard to beat. It is safe when the wind is blowing; comfortable to work at in hot weather, confines the heat to cooking utensils only and requires no pot-bar or logpole. Where extra precautions are necessary or where it is desired to leave little or no trace of his fire, the cautious camper will build a hole fire by digging a pit about one foot square and about eighteen inches deep. Rx starts a good fire in the bottom and adds standing sticks which sink as they burn. By adding green sticks this fire will burn for considerable time, with little attention, and is good for cooking stews. In making the camp fires described above, Scouts are taught laid aside and replaced before leaving the site. That's good Scouting. Many Kinks! What does the average camper do with his empty cans? Why, for haven't we all come there ing; for hasn't we all come upon piles of rusty cans carelessly left about former camp sites?

The Tenth Scout Law teaches the growing camper to do a Good Turn in word, thought and deed, and so the Scout has carried this law right into camp with him. Near his trench fire he has dug a can pile—a hole about a foot across and eighteen inches deep, the sod is neatly placed to one side. After the can has been emptied it is thrown into the fire, where it is left until the fire is out. The burned cans, clean of all juice or grease, are then hammered flat and thrown into the can pit with nothing to attract flies. Before striking camp the sod is replaced leaving no sign of fire, cans or can-pit.

The portable fire. Especially useful in winter, in wet weather or in small quiet fire is needed. Make a small ball of cotton about the size of a snow-ball, drop into it previously melted parawax, let the wax soak in and when dry or put paper. Make two or three, throw them into your kit bag and they will come in very handy at any time. The writer has made coffee for eight with one snow-ball.

Waterproof matches. A simple and effective stunt is to fill a small matches (containing matches) with parawax melted just to liquid heat. Then dip the head in the solution and when hardened fill up to cover matches. Let dry for a while, cut away the paper box and you have a box of waterproof matches. Each cut match as needed with finger nail. The Scout has learned to keep his "out" in scouting through hiking, camping and woodcraft activities and he further applies the 'out' in Scouting when leaving his camp fire, for the good Scout always puts out three times and here is how—After extinguishing his camp fire as goes back and puts it out a second time, then puts his kit is packed and he is all ready to move off he goes back and puts it out all over again and then cuts off in rush. Good Scouting by covering up all traces of his camp-fire.

JESSIE REED COMING BACK

One of the most glorified of the Ziegfeld Follies girls, Jessie Reed, whose name has not been in the lights for years, is coming back in a vaudeville production patterned after the old Ziegfeld shows. Once America's highest paid chorus girl, later the wife of three millionaires, the former actress was said to have applied for relief recently in Chicago, a predictory hearing her plight, offered the job. Jessie is shown in a new picture, as she will appear in her comeback attempt.

A New Protection for Your Flannel Trousers

Flannel trousers have always been considered worth pressing with cause clothes will not stay pressed long enough them to "creep"—but more and more the need of quick pressing is the necessity for wet-cleaning methods in order to remove stains and restore good colors.

Now, by installing the new device shown above, we have overcome this objection and garments are dried on shrinkage. This device, under the patented Pull Tension Process, irons garments between the steel surfaces of canvas that were received by us, and preserves the natural texture and fabric of the material.

Why take chances on old-time methods when you can be sure of "no shrinkage" proper color—and nice texture—for only..

Mongrel Waits At Gates of Jail

Regina, July 27. —She's just a mongrel, but Switch knows how to behave.

She waited last night outside the Regina Mounted Police station here, where in her master Constable, ready to stick until Jim McDonald's 10-day jail sentence is served.

McDonald of Rosetown, B.C., was picked up last Wednesday for illegal possession. He has been once before, with the western relief camp strikers, and was returning east after being sent home with the other strikers when arrested.

Switch has travelled from Vancouver to Regina with McDonald, with McDonald, and many other points, too. She has been with him in three box-cars since her birth on July 1.

When he gets out she will be ready to go with him— it matters not where, Switch is like that.

As supplied by Bigger and Crawford to the Ontario Intelligencer

News is expected any day from the Sullivan Union Mine here are some, some 2000 feet southeast of the mill. The cross-cut on the second level, according to calculations, should reach its objective this week. The mill is reported averaging about 150 tons daily. Although much development rock from the crosscut has been sent to the mill, the values in the heads in the first half of July are reported less than a last month or slightly better. Production for the mill month is estimated at between 945,000 and 950,000.

The Quebec Miner estimates Lamaque production in the first half of July at $55,000, indicating a current monthly production rate of between $110,000 and $120,000. This rate probably will be more than doubled when the additional milling equipment is installed in the fall.

With the market in the doldrums, moderate activity during the past week in International Nickel, in Hollinger Power and one or two others stood out prominently in contrast with the dullness of late. In the "good old days" only a few short weeks ago there occurred more activity in any of these issues during a given fifteen minutes than now occurs all over the board during a five-year session.

New York brokers say that the investment demand for the better grade of steel stocks in the past few weeks has been "surprising." A good part of this buying has come from sections where steel mills are situated and from those who have purchased. Not only have dividend paying steel issues been bought, both for investment and speculation, but other issues where potentialities are considered good have been under accumulation.

LARGEST MART OF SEASON IS SEEN

Every Foot of Available Space About Square Used

One of the largest markets held for some time was that on Saturday when all the available space upon the square and the interior of the old market building was filled to capacity. Buyers were also present in large numbers and in consequence considerable trading was in vogue. There were few changes to note in prices.

Fruit, especially cherries, was a fine display. The latter sold from 50c to 75c per basket, according to quality and size of basket. Red and White currants were also in abundance with ray berries selling at 10c a box or two for 25c. Rice raspberries sold at 10c a box. The ruling price for huckleberries was 15c a quart and red currants 12c a box.

In dairy products there were no change in price to note. Eggs sold at 20c per dozen for specials and 18c for medium. Butter retailing at two pounds for 55c.

No change whatever was noted in grain, prices with the corn still high.

During the past week the hog market showed a slight improvement in prices.

Fish vendors did considerable business. The species offered for sale being lake salmon, white fish and mixed fish.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, July 27.—Advancing egg prices and a continued firmer trend in butter quotations featured the day's dealings in the local dairy markets. In the cartel egg market, A-large advanced another ½ cent, being generally quoted at 26 cents. Other grades moved similarly to 22, and 18's and C's held steady at 20½ and 18½, respectively. Yesterday's receipts not including truck receipts, totalled 6,000 cases.

Butter also advanced a cent a dozen on A-large and B grade eggs in sympathetic fashion in the retail trade, and it was stated that further advances in quotations would probably be announced effective on Monday morning.

On the cheese market, prices were noticeably firmer, houses quoting No. 1 Canadian Cheddars at 18½ cents, about ¼ cent higher, with a range of 18 to 20½, and No. 2 and mixed coloring slightly higher. Demand has been decidedly better in the past few days, it was declared. On the tail trade, prices remained unchanged at 19 cents. Yesterday's receipts: 746 boxes.

The cheese market was steady in early dealings. Westerns were still quoted at 9¼c to 9¼c, Quebecs at 9¼c. Yesterday's receipts were 5,345 boxes.

The potato market was steady, new brands selling at 50 to 55 cents per bag. Spanish onions were also selling at 20 cents for a 15s quantity.

Prices on dressed poultry lines remained steady.

Tigers Show Superiority Over Yankees Battling Way To Top Of American Loop

Defeat Indians While Washington Downs Yanks

ODD PLAY

Ball Hits Pitcher And Catcher Retrieves to Make Double

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Just along a week ahead of their 1934 schedule, Detroit Tigers have taken the American League key in a decisive way, that has cleared up all the doubts and arguments about their position in relation to the Yankees.

It was on August second last year, when Mickey Cochrane's men finally passed the Yanks and were not headed again until they ran into those rough and ready Cardinals in the World Series. Yesterday they turned the same trick. The thumping the Indians 8-2, while Yanks took an unexpected 8-5 thumping from the seventh-place Senators.

The rise of Tigers, which reached its climax, when Elden Auker, held the lead by inches yesterday, while Tigers broke up a tight pitching duel with Thornton Lee with a couple of decisive rallies, that netted five runs in the sixth and seventh innings, was a highly dramatic one. Of to the bad start, they dropped the sixth game early this season and had just reached a tie or touch, as Yanks took the lead May 30. In the two months since then they have won 32 games and lost 18 although the climb didn't really get under way until mid-June and they once has dropped three games in a row.

Mamak Helps

The stickwork of Heinie Manush played a big part in the Yankee downfall yesterday although the Yanks literally knocked out Washington pitcher, Ed Linke, of the hill. Heinie belted two home runs, the second with the bases full, to account for more than half the Washington tallies. Linke was knocked out by a line drive from Jesse Hill's bat in a second-inning play, that led to one of the oddest twin-killings on the records. The ball bounced so high catcher Jack Redmond was able to run down, take it on the fly and double Ben Chapman off second.

The pitcher, believed to be suffering from a severe concussion, was carried off to a hospital for observation to learn the extent of his injuries. Rookie Hillsit (Whitey) Hayes, finished the job of subduing the Yanks.

The only National League Contest saw Cuba, who profited considerably by the record Chicago Cardinal series bowl over Reds 5-1 for their 18th victory in 52 games to take a firmer hold on second place. The victory left Cuba only 1 1-2 games behind Giants and one ahead of Cards.

United States Olympic possibilities for 1936 brightened as Norman Bright, above, ran the two miles in 9 minutes 13.2 seconds to set a new American record at the A.A.U. special track meet at Ohio Field, New York. Bright represents the San Francisco Olympic club.

MERCANTILE SOFTBALL

American Hardware and Recreations won their respective games in the local Mercantile softball league last night, when the former downed the C.D.S. 18 to 13 while the Recreations defeated the Pinch nine.

At their Recreation Street grounds the "Lockmakers" and the Eaton aggregation staged a lurid struggle with the hardware lads bagging three runs in the eighth to come from behind and win. The victors had to use two hurlers in victory with J. Graham and Fisher sharing the sound duties as McLean laboured the entire game on the hilltop for the C.D.S. squad. An eight run splurge by the Eaton crew in the fifth frame gave them an advantage they carried until the eighth when the winners went to the fore. McLeg struck out four as the combined efforts of Fisher and Graham saw eight C.D.S. batsman retired via the strike out route.

F. McGuire with four hits for the winners and Thompson for the losers were the big sticks.

The line-up:— C.D.S.— Gee, Thompson, Bootle, McLean, Canning. Coach, Brown. Jones. American Hardware — J. McBride, C. Graham, Dinnie, in Graham, B. Smith, Hogan Fisher, F. McGuire, F. Graham, Noakes and H. Smith.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

After having played 18 games in the C.O.B.L., including their 4 to 4 tie game at Kingston, the local Stewart-Warners are hitting at the .308 clip and do not boast of a single .300 hitter on their entire roster. Even in the absence of .300 batsmen the Hacks have made it interesting for their Central League opponents and are right up in the thick of the battle, as a matter of fact the locals are only one and one-half games out of first place today. This afternoon the locals tie into Knotty Lee's Sea Horses when a win will materially assist to elevate their standing to a point where most anything may happen.

On opening day in Belleville the proprietors of the National Billiard Parlors announced they would put up for competition among the players of the local snooker baseball team, a fine large trophy, to be given each year to the player having the best batting average for the season. The trophy is known as the National Billiard Jubilee Trophy and it stands 36 inches high. At the present rate of going there is quite a race as between the members of the Radios as to whose their batting averages and thereby accept the cup. At present Alex Wylie is leading the regulars with a batting average of .368, Sexy Grey is second with an aggregate of .346, while Dean Ford is fast closing in at the .327 clip. Johnnie Kerr is the only other regular batting over the two hundred mark, he has dropped the downfall for an average of .324, while pitcher Art Colborne's hitting .286. As near as we can make out batting .300, having made 118 hits this season. Anything over the .300 mark would be most acceptable today.

According to unofficial statistics there is quite a race being staged down the home stretch by the four local clubs in the senior city softball loop. At present the Ashtrays are out in front, having lost six games this season. No one is quite sure as to how many victories have been hung up by the Alemites, Young Canadas and the St. Paul's A. C., but the fact that each one of these clubs have lost eight games each, makes every game from now on until the end of the schedule a battle royal. Due to the fact that Tweed and Rednersville are clear in the O.A.S.A. these clubs do not participate in the local league play-offs. As only three of the four local clubs can squeeze themselves into a coveted play-off berth, naturally feelings are running quite high.

While on the subject of softball it has come to our attention that some local clubs seem to think other teams received more publicity than others, which, in itself, may be all too true. When the present waning season opened last spring we requested team managers in Belleville and district to let softball games at Bill Cook's cigar store one night per week, or send them to this office prior to 8 a.m. the following morning, where clubs leaving the score cards at Cook's always found some kind of a report of their games published while those who did not deem it worth while to leave the score cards, naturally were ignored. If the various club managers would stop to consider that at different intervals there have been as many as four and five games played an evening, they should realize that it is humanly impossible for one person to attend each and every game and interfere with a little co-operation on the part of the club managements, by leaving the score cards at Cook's we could publish a detailed account of every game and also assist the league by keeping a league standing. But when the score cards are tossed carelessly away it is impossible to give service in the matter of reporting the games or keeping the league standings.

It seems that during a banquet out at the Belleville Golf Club recently Harry Ridley was heard to say—"I do not like this spinach". An attentive waiter promptly replied— "Sorry sir, I'll report it to the greens committee". And was Harry's face red?

Recently a swimming class was conducted at the Y.M.C.A. during which 13 boys between the ages of 10 and 15 years, were taught to swim, after a few lessons instructor Ralph Morden conducted a lengthy life saving class from which a goodly number of pupils graduated. Today Mr. Morden made a suggestion to the effect that some of his more proficient pupils would like to conduct a life saving demonstration of life saving off Victoria Park some Wednesday afternoon next week, weather permitting and Mr. Morden's idea was prompted by the fact that there are prevalent in Ontario at this time of the year, numerous drownings, which in the opinion of Mr. Morden's pupils could be avoided if swimmers knew the proper method in which to approach a drowning person there would be little difficulty in saving more lives," stated Mr. Morden today. Personally we think his suggestion an ideal one and sincerely hope this class conducts a life saving demonstration for the general public.

"Hear ye, hear ye, hear ye—boy— baseball lovers throughout Central Ontario are coming into their own in Belleville next Wednesday. Just think of it, the B.A.B.A is giving the fans two big ball games and all for the same admission. Both games are important wins in their respective categories and we find Picton clashing with the local intermediates in a fray of Quinte League struggle to be followed by a C.O.B.L. game between the fast stepping Peterboro "Sea Horses" and the local Stewart-Warners. Both games will be played on Wednesday afternoon next, and as one local baseball fan remarked today—"with such a break as that, it'll just be our luck to have it rain." Let's hope we can chalk up one error for the pessimistic fan. Two games, one admission, no advance in prices.

The O.B.A.A. announced recently the winner of the C.O.B.L. would drop directly into the senior O.B.A.A. semi-finals at least and maybe the finals this year. The Central League has until September 15 to declare a winner, but with so many postponed games on his hands, President Max Swanston should soon start to think about playing those off first. The Petes have two replay games at Kingston while Cobalt has their postponed game of May 29 to play here yet. Maybe these games can be played at the end of the regular schedule, but it is not good practice to hold them off so long.

After battling gamely all season the 1934 American League champions, the Detroit Tigers, have at last gained the leadership of the American League. The Cochrane-led aggregation won over Cleveland yesterday while the Cleveland boys defeated the Yankees to allow the Tigers the first place. Both these leagues, as well as the C.O.B.L., are staging a torrid finish season and it's any man's pennant.

Defeat Gordon Steel Nine of Tweed by Score of 9 to 8

The Young Canada Club moved into a tie for second place in the local senior softball loop last night by defeating the Gordon Steel nine of Tweed by the score of 9 to 8. Schrieder kept the ten Tweed hits fairly well scattered as Gowsell buried his foes in but walks, coupled with three circuit blows by local batters with the base paths well populated won the day for the victors.

Will Latchford with two four base clouts and a timely single was the big gun-man of the day while Frank Murray also hit his for the circuit for the visitors. SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

CHAPTER FOUR

Only four hours did Brian allow himself; he was up at the break of dawn and away again. He breakfasted at Andover and slid into Southampton with ample time in hand. Through the old Bar Gate to the docks where the Atlantic liners lay.

The tang of the sea caressed his nostrils; he heard the hoot of a siren far down the water. In No. 3 Basin lay the Khoristania, the blue flag at her foremast, due to pull out at eleven. Nothing remained for Brian but to store his kit-bag for his reserved berth at the shipping office, and go on board.

His duty was perfectly clear. It was not for him to delay, though the strongest force in life was holding him back. His heart ached as he hesitated.

Sonia. If night be she was still in Southampton. Plain sense warned him it was a hundred times better to crush this fool infatuation which could lead to nothing but unhappiness. To forget her. Should he know he would not forget while life lasted, and what of Sam Barber? She ought to know about that, for all he could tell, it might be vital to her. He must get word to her at any rate.

He drove to the South-Western Hotel, overlooking the quays and as a forlorn hope inquired at the office. The clerk consulted the register.

Brian's heart sank.

"Any address left for letters?" he asked.

"Yes. All mails to be forwarded Miss Sonia Neil; care Bannister Coote Inc., Trading Estate, Ashe Lethbiake."

The clerk became a red blurr of mist before Brian's eyes.

For a moment he stood dumb, something clicked like a trigger in his brain. When he spoke his voice was thick and hoarse.

"Say that again!"

The clerk repeated the address, then glanced up, startled by the dead-white face and blazing eyes of the young man who stood over him, gripping the desk. Red fury for a second. Brian turned away and strode out through the porch to where his car stood.

For a while he stared out towards the distance, seeing nothing but that red mist before his eyes.

Sonia at Ginn's Hotel, Sonia and was the man, Bannister had the right to marry whom he chose. But there was more to it than that. Sonia and Bannister—the thought turned him sick. Sonia, the girl who to him . . . tricked him all over again. Laughing in his absence. He clenched envelope and the wad of notes were crushing in his breast pocket.

Bannister was playing a game as deep as she was, she suspected it, unless it was that drunken waif from the sea who warned him not to go.

"Dear old Bannister! Now I've got you fixed," said Brian between his teeth. "You'll be fire-works in the old home tonight!"

The "Khoristania" sailed without him. When the pulled out Brian was already forty miles clear of the town, black rage in his heart, his car humming like a bullet along the road for the north.

Sam Barber recovered from the bump into the wall against which Brian had flung him, to find his silliness had disappeared into the night. The shock had been unexpected, and it stunned him. It had been pretty quick word. He swore aloud.

The man's strong white teeth showed themselves in a grin that was compounded of ten per cent. humor, and ninety of sheer malignancy.

"You'll pay for that, Kid Chalmers," said he "or you won't be the only guy to pay neither."

His private again, his bloodshot eyes watching the tail-light of the car vanishing like a dying spark. Then, taking his bearings, he thought for a moment and rolled off towards the Bar Gate. Through it he came to the corner. He peeped cautiously through the glass panes before entering.

The bar of the King O'Bells was empty. Behind the counter the landlord, a round-about little man with a smooth shining face and bald head, was in a semi-doze. He glanced up quickly, at the sound of his own company.

"Evening," said Barber, rolling up to the bar. And with a glance that sized up his host "You'll join me, Cap'n?"

The landlord thanked him, and, pouring out drinks, chatted affectionately as his customer.

"Stranger about these parts?" he said.

"Just passin' through," said the sailor, pushing a note across the counter. "Don't know but what I might stay, bein' it's late. Quiet little place you've got here."

"Quiet, sure! Nothin' ever happens at King's Bar, me own self."

"That's so? You never know your luck." The Bannister Coote, think he absorbed the whiskey. "Who's that big fella' belong to? Servant's couple down the hill? Servant's lodge with iron gate, an' a high wall like a prison. Who's that for, I'll thought I'd never get by it."

The landlord nodded, stroking at his drink.

"That wall runs three miles, clear round the park. King's Elm House; Mr. Bannister Coote, Irish man. It quiet's what you like you'd get it. Livin' here. Quiet as the grave."

"An' there's nothin' quieter than that," Elm place. The local Big Shot, eh? Been there long?"

The landlord shook his head. Barber sensed a hesitation between this little fat man and Mr. Bannister Coote.

"Since the old lady died. Came into her money. Where her from I dunno, and I'd be as pleased if he quit. Owns the village an' half the country."

"Ah!" said the sailor. "Owns you too does he?"

"Not him, nor ever will," retorted the host. "Mine's a free house."

He enlarged proudly on the generosity of family who had owned the King O'Bells; the sailor listening skilfully back to Mr. Bannister Coote.

"Rum customer. Close as a clam. There's a mystery about that man," said the landlord. "Close with his money, too. I said nothin' when he paid a pound at King's Elm. It happened all right when he got fool of me. In the end, only man that ever made him brass up—good and proper I did."

"Ah!" said the sailor, pushing the glasses to be refilled. "How was that?"

"You'd never guess it to look at him. Smooth, respectable gentleman with a face like a bishop. Owns riding skirt over his plus-fours an' his cob—he mostly rides—an' there was my eldest's kid Tommy in the lane, pelting rocks at him. Didn't mean any harm — made Coote's horse shy.

"He could have called the kid down. But Coote rode at him an' gave him such a belting with a heavy whip that the boy was in bed a week. If I'd seen it I'd have smashed Bannister Coote, sky-ster we whiskers, made him pay fifty quid for the boy, to keep it out of court. He has funny people—I bet it hurt him more'n surprising he ever did, parted with that money. Butter wouldn't melt in his mouth—but have Satan own temper if any one crosses him."

The sailor grinned.

"His wife'd take care not to cross him, I guess. Was that the 'old lady'?"

"Wife! Hasn't a wife. Never married that I know of. Often wondered why," said the landlord. "If he'd a son, the boy'd come into the place ah' the money'd be pretty night a millionaire I reckon."

"Ah," said the tailor, "he lives in that black old house all alone?"

"Cept for his cousin, Mr Chalmers. The place has got to him many years. Gloomy place, and a fine upstanding young chap. We aren't much on Americans' here since Mr. Coote arrived, but everybody likes Chalmers. He's the right sort, an' he's got a way with him. He wouldn't go about bein' rude. Though he has the funny temper, young Brian. Tough as oak —he'd be a dangerous feller to memory with."

The landlord wiped the counter down.

"An' it wouldn't be safe for any one to monkey around King's Elm House either," he added. "We keep dogs loose there at night, that would tear his throat out of a bull The old man don't like strangers around."

"That's funny ain't it?" said Barber. "What's he scared of?"

"Dunno. He was a diamond broker, they tell me, before he came here, and still does business."

"Still does business?" echoed Barber, pushing the glasses forward. "I'll 'ave again. Diamonds, eh? Diamond trade ain't what it was, I'm told, but as long as women will wear 'em there will be. And I've known 'em get diamonds in mighty funny ways. Keeps 'em in the house, does he?"

The landlord's garrulity suddenly died up. He was aware of something sinister in the sailor's eyes He had never seen such eyes, they sent a little goose-fleshy shiver through him. He thrust the glasses across.

"Last closing-time," he said brightly. Barber leaned across the bar grinning at him with a mouth that was like a hart trap. "Good."

"I'll 'end You hear me!"

"Workin' doing. Thirsty day limit And I allow you've had as much as is good for you."

A menacing tense silence. Then the sailor, after a glance at his watch nodded good-humredly.

"Maybe you're right," he said "Well, good night, landlord."

He left the inn, chuckling aloud. It's his custom to be more talkative than he expected; not all of it was new to Barber, and some of it tickled him. Striking off to the left at gates of King's Elm Lodge, he halted.

"Dear old Bannister Coote" he said. "Fuller and fuller, ain't he? Swell feller—always had big ideas, Barn, you gave me a rough ride once—it's my turn now. Big house, eh? You now. We're goin' to put paid to you, Bannister Coote."

The gates loomed up, vast iron structures twenty feet high. The main entrance to the park. Inside was a gate-house, a stone lodge with a great stone pillar with a shield and the arms and crest of Coote; above which was a sombre black bird with a bald forehead. It looked to Barber like a glorified rook—the majesty of the park entrance seemed him. He had an air of solemn doc that would have fitted a duke's residence. He chuckled again.

CHAPTER FIVE

He was well aware there would be no admittance for him by knocking at the door, and main entrances were never for the Sailor's choice, nor was there any way over those tall iron gates. He followed the prison-like wall of the park through the fields, keeping close to its foot. At the landlord had said, there were miles of it. But a little way along the side of the hill it turning intends at a great stone archway. He drew a short coil of cord from under his jacket, knotted a bowline on one end, jerked it to test the hold on a branch. Hand over hand on the line with his toes digging at the wall Sam went up as deftly as a cat and dropped softly on the far side.

He looked round for an exit in case one was necessary, and found a young silver beech that would serve. If Mr. Coote wished to keep his park invisible against men of Sam Barber's kidney he should have cut down more of his timber.

He moved stealthily up the hill towards the house that loomed behind a few hundred yards distant. Before he had gone far he tripped over something that broke to the pull of his foot. It might have been a poacher's wire, but no poacher could have got over that barrier wall. He stooped and felt for the broken ends.

"Wonder where the bell rings?" said Sam. He moved forward a little way; then suddenly stopped and crouched, for he saw something that was not wholesome.

A ray of the moon shone for a moment through the thinning mist. On the crest of a long slope away to the left two dark forms appeared, moving silently toward him. They were not human; at first sight they might have been deer-calves, but they were bearing straight down towards him at a ravening gallop, like a pair of wolves, sinister and dreadful in the gloom. He had forgotten or ignored the landlord's famous explorers spent Shillday warning.

The first inkling Usanga had that all was not well with him was when the girl slipped suddenly to his side and grasped the control and at the same instant steel-like fingers seized his throat. A brown hand shot down with a keen blade and severed the strap about his waist.

Quickly giant muscles lifted him bodily from his seat. Usanga clawed the air and shrieked but he was powerless as a baby. Far below, the watchers in the meadow could see the airplane careening in the air, then, increasing velocity as it hurtled down ward. Spellbound, he watched, then breathed a prayer of thanks as he realized Usanga had reaped his reward.

His end when Lieutenant Roger Cecil gave a gasp of horror. Turning and twisting in the air he fell with ever-increasing velocity as it hurtled down ward. Spellbound, he watched, then breathed a prayer of thanks as he realized Usanga had reaped his reward.

Sunday afternoon smokily the shape of a man riding on a camel, but he didn't get any more credit for it than what he does for an ordinary stone, being none and on the contrary.

"Party Wire"

Drama, Hits in Small Towns As Well As Large.

Checked and double - checked, "Party Wire", which opens at the Capitol on Monday, seems little to be desired in the way of entertainment. Story, acting and direction are well done and knit closely into a compact, better-than-average whole.

Jean Arthur and Victor Jory, co-featured in the film, make their story romance believable and convincing.

Taken from the best-selling novel by Bruce Manning, "Party Wire" revolves around a party line which sweeps over a small mid-western town when secret lessons come to light through the telephone party wire. The scathing rumors almost cause destruction of Jean Arthur's and Jory's romance, but they fight through, manfully to win vindication in a novel surprise finish.

Charley Grapewin, featured as Miss Arthur's lazy but lovable old father turns in some excellent comedy. And, as a pair of village gossips, Clara Blandick and Maude Eburne turn in splendid efforts which sweeps over a small mid-western town when secret lessons come to light through the telephone party wire. The scathing rumors almost cause destruction of Jean Arthur's and Jory's romance, but they fight through manfully to win vindication in a novel surprise finish.

Charley Grapewin, featured as Miss Arthur's lazy but lovable old father turns in some excellent comedy. And, as a pair of village gossips, Clara Blandick and Maude Eburne turn in splendid efforts which go to Helen Lowell, as Jory's invalid aunt; Geneva Mitchell as Jean's rival for Jory's affections; and to the rest of the competent supporting cast, which includes Robert Allen, Oscar Apfel, Lillian Harmer and Matt McHugh.

"Party Wire" is a sure evening's entertainment, don't miss it! Today is the concluding day for the showing of that splendid double feature bill, "The Casino Murder Case" and "Stolen Harmony" featuring Ben Bernie.

With the engagement of "Party Wire" the Capitol will present to each of their lady patrons who attend on Monday and Tuesday of the week a handsome piece of Du Barry pattern dinnerware.

AT THE BELLE

"No More Ladies"

Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery in Sparkling Comedy-Drama.

In a story that fairly bubbles with comedy, Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery are to be seen, today and Monday, at the Belle, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new production "No More Ladies".

Adapted from the Broadway stage hit the film retains all the fine drama and sparkling humor of the original—with the addition of one of the finest screen casts of the year.

Prominently featured with the co-stars are Franchot Tone, Charles Butterworth, Edna May Oliver, Patrick, Reginald Denny and many others. Each exceptionally cast, the polished experts have created a beautiful photoplay from the rich material at hand.

When Marcia Townsend (Joan Crawford) marries Sherry (Robert Montgomery), she knows his past; but they are sure that in spite of their many "happily divorced" friends, they can make marriage work.

When later Marcia discovers she may have made a mistake, she decides to dry her tears and throw a party. And what a party! Sherry's ex-sweet-hearts are invited with their new swains and husbands. That it doesn't turn out exactly as Marcia planned, shapes the drama of the picture; and meanwhile the funniest party scenes ever filmed hold the screen.

Miss Crawford is more exquisitely groomed than ever—and that's saying a great deal. She introduces at least a dozen different ensembles which will certainly thrill all the ladies attending the theatre. "No More Ladies" is a production framed with characteristic finesse, elaborateness and attention, truly a picture that will appeal to all.

In advance of the presentation of "No More Ladies" commencing in the afternoon at 2.30 and again at the evening performances at 7.15 and 9.10, a splendid array of entertaining and pleasing featurettes will be shown, including an excellent comedy, a clever and snappy cartoon of Popeye The Sailor Man and the latest release of the popular Belle News.

Francisco Tone, Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery in a dazzling, modern romance, "No More Ladies" the smartest screen treat of the year, today and Monday at the Belle.

Long Awaited Sculling Race At Henley Today

Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 27 (CP)—The sculling fraternity moved upon this scene of the 83rd Royal Canadian Henley Regatta today to watch the classic singles of the year—the duel between Charles (Chuck) Campbell of Toronto Argonauts, Canadian and United States champion, and Johnny Cronkon, also of Argonauts who thinks he can dethrone the 31-year-old champion.

Johnny, holding three early-season victories over Chuck and a work of repertence that Campbell still is accumulating won the right to challenge for the senior sculling crown yesterday by winning the Association singles in highly impressive fashion. He repulsed a double threat from the United States, Erwin Kondra of Buffalo and R. Cuthbert of Boston, with ease.

Starting a heavy favorite, even in the face of Kondra's sprint victory at the U.S. National Regatta last week and a similar win here Thursday, Conlon made the job look easy. The big Toronto boy pulled two lengths out in front of Konrad and Bates in the first half-mile and took it easy the rest of the way, watching the battle between the two Americans.

Conlon covered the distance—a mile, 550 yards—in eight minutes, 35 seconds. Konrad pulled across the finish line two lengths behind and two ahead of Bates. Herb Miller of University of Toronto, fourth entrant, was well back. George Robinson of Argos qualified for the final by winning the junior singles but scratched his entry.

Long Awaited Race

The result assured Henley of the long-awaited meeting between the Toronto aces. They went to Princeton, N.J., last week as joint favorites and Campbell emerged with all the glory, winning the Association singles and then downing Winthrop Rutherford, Jr., for the U.S. title. Conlon's hopes were blasted when he caught a crab and his boat overturned.

The veteran Johnny Durnan of Toronto Don, former champion, will be an added starter today but he is not expected to figure in the battle between the two young fellows.

Second in importance will be the senior eight race bringing together, among others, New York A.C., 1935 United States champions and Hamilton Leanders, mighty men of Rob Hunter who placed third in a blanket finish at the 1932 Olympic games and still are together, formidable as ever.

Other entrants include Argonauts, the Belle Rivermarkers of Wyandotte, Mich., St. Catharines and the Westsides of Buffalo, All of these are conceded a chance.

Argos were so certain of aggregate-point supremacy honors it was considered almost impossible for them to be overtaken. The double blue oarsmen yesterday won four events, placed second in three and third in two to build up their point total to 75. Detroit closed in second place with 37 and Vancouver third with 29, two more than the last three years. were tied with St. Catharines at 13.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASE SEEN

Increase Less Than it Was in Previous Year

Ottawa, July 26 (CP)—A substantial improvement was shown in the general industrial situation July 1 when 9,335 firms reported 934,362 at work against 910,746 in the preceding month, says a report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The increase in employment, the report stated, was smaller than on the corresponding date last year and also less than the average gain between June 1 and July 1 in the preceding 14 years for which figures are available.

The decrease compared with last year, according to the report, was largely due to curtailment in work on highways and roads on which the number of workers was smaller by more than 50,000 as against July 1, 1934.

Manufacturing

Employment in manufacturing showed continued advance, contrary to the usual seasonal trend July 1; most of the gain over June 1 occurred in the food and lumber groups. Mining (except coal), communications, service, trade, transportation and construction and miscellaneous also indicated substantial improvement.

The increases in all of these except construction considerably exceeded the average gains indicated July 1 in the years, 1921-1934. On the other hand, logging was seasonally quieter than in the preceding month and within the group of factory employment there were large losses also seasonal in character, in leather, textile and iron and steel plants.

Ontario's Advance

In comparison with the preceding month all five economic areas showed improvement with Ontario and the Prairie Province showing the largest advances.

In the Maritime Provinces 629 firms reported 76,030 employed against 72,329 in the preceding month which brought the index to 106.7 or 8.3 points higher than July 1, 1934. Railway and highway construction showed improvement as did logging, fishing, transportation, communication, services and trade while pulp and paper, iron and steel and coal mining were slacker.

In Quebec manufacturing which included lumber, pulp and paper, tobacco, beverage, non-ferrous metal and non-metallic mineral factories showed gains in employment. Heightened activity was also reported in mining, services, transportation and construction. The 2,244 employers reported 290,323 employed against 287,889 on June 1, and the index was fractionally higher than on July 1, 1934.

4388 More Employed

Increased activity was shown in Ontario where 4,100 firms reported 392,291 employed on July 1 an increase of 4,208 over June 1. Improved employment was shown in food, lumber, mining, transportation, trade and construction, while leather, textile and iron and steel works were seasonably slacker, as was logging.

Considerable expansion was shown in the Prairie Provinces when 1,248 employers showed 121,688 workers compared with 115,976 in the preceding month. Improvement was noted in railway and highway construction and also in transportation, communications, mining and manufacturing with logging and building being somewhat slacker.

Find Liver Oil Injures Beasts

Ithaca, N.Y., July 26.—Muscle and heart injuries, and sometimes death result from feeding large amounts of cod liver oil to herbivorous animals, according to a Cornell University bulletin.

A report just issued summarized seven years' experiments.

The animals treated were goats, sheep, guinea pigs and rabbits. Their muscles degenerated, paralysis resulted, hearts were affected, with evidence of fatty changes, and livers became fatty.

The harm was traced to an unidentified "fraction" present in cod liver oil. This "fraction" is not associated with the vitamins, but which the oil is given. It probably can be removed, the report states, and apparently is largely removed in cod liver oil concentrates.

The writers stated that their results have no direct bearing on cod liver oil in human nutrition.

"But they suggest a careful consideration of the wisdom of the continuous use of the large intakes now recommended, particularly in view of the reports of Agduhr and Malmberg of heart injuries in infants," the report said.

The investigators have found the cod liver oil damage while searching for the best food for farm animals by giving them synthetic diets. These are highly purified foods in which the precise effect of each added ingredient on health can be directly traced.

"These injuries were first noted with synthetic diets containing cod liver oil" the report said. "The substitution of vitamin A-D concentrate markedly delayed their onset and lessened their severity, but did not eliminate them.

"It was demonstrated that both the cod liver oil and some other factor of the synthetic diet were causing agents. The entire extension of a cod liver oil product from the synthetic diet did not entirely eliminate injury.

"On the other hand the addition of cod liver oil to a diet of natural foods produced characteristic muscle lesions.

"These results suggest that pending further study cod liver oil should not be fed to farm herbivora for extended periods at any but the lowest levels."

CLOSED SHOP FOR EDITORIAL ROOM

New York Post Joins Newly Formed Newspaper Guild

New York, July 26 (AP)—The New York Post announced today it had signed a contract with American Newspaper Guild "for a closed shop" and an "open union" for editorial workers.

J. David Stern, publisher, and outside representatives of the Guild were parties to the negotiations. Post employees also attended.

The Post's announcement said it "agrees that it will not employ any person in its new or editorial departments unless he is a member of the Guild or becomes a member within 30 days after employment."

The contract calls for the eight-hour day and five-day week for all news room employees except cartoonists, columnists, editorial writers, executives and secretaries to executives; equal time off for overtime and a schedule of vacation allowances and dismissal notices based on length of service.

The question of minimum wages was left for later determination.

All four are to contest the Tribune-Winnipeg Beach 47-mile event at Winnipeg on July 27.

Keep Up with the PASSING SHOW

YOUR home makes a comfortable theatre, doesn't it? And it's nice to have the passing show brought to your easy chair—a full length, full time production, too!

Maybe you're only interested in the "feature pictures," the things big enough to make the front page. Perhaps you like those "educational shorts," the unbiased editorials or the home-making articles by well known writers. It may be the "comedy," with "Mr. and Mrs." in the leading role. The "serials" may hold your attention, the features and columnists. But altogether, say, don't they make up the best show in town?

And remember, it's a DOUBLE FEATURE attraction—the ads are full of news, too! The news about something new for the home, something to wear or something economical to serve. But it IS new and news when it appears on the pages of the Ontario Intelligencer.

The passing show is an inexpensive program! It's the best way to keep pace with the changing scene. And the best part of it is that there's a complete change of program every day!

Two Include Alleged Demand With Menace Against Hepburn

London, Ont., July 29 (CP)—Six new charges that this writer, which he is accused of "demanding money with menaces with intent to steal the same" from Premier Hepburn, were laid here today against Henry M. Walker, 54-year-old metal worker of St. Thomas.

A second arrest in the case was made at St. Thomas this morning when Arthur Leakey, 50, was taken into custody. He is charged jointly with Walker with "did did with menaces demand from Hon. M. F. Hepburn a sum of money with intent to steal the same."

GREAT BRITAIN DEFENDS TROPHY AGAINST THE U. S.

Holds Davis Cup, Emblematic of Tennis Title For Third Time

TOO POWERFUL

Pair Win First, Fourth And Fifth Sets

Wimbledon, England, July 29 (CP)—Winning the doubles match for (their third) time in history, Great Britain today successfully defended the Davis Cup against the challengers from the United States. Tomorrow's two final singles matches cannes affect the result.

Britain won the coveted trophy, emblematic of the world's tennis supremacy, for the third straight time when the new doubles combination of George Patrick Ohns and C. Tuckey defeated Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, 6-2, 1-6, 6-8, 6-4, 7-5.

Previously H. W. "Bunny" Austin had beaten Allison and Fred Perry had defeated Donald Budge for the initial English victories.

Challengers Confident

The challengers had been confident of getting at least the doubles point. Unlooked upon ground they were up against a most formidable pair. Thursday displayed a bounding serve that proved complement to his partner's forecourt game and could be sent to the net he more than held his own.

The Britons raced through the first act with ease but the Americans settled down to take the second and last with good volleying and serving. The match was squared by the British in the fourth and they came on again to take the fifth, the match, and make sure of the point.

Shots Loaded

The first six games of the fourth set followed service and then the Britons ran through the next three games with the loss of only three points to win the set. Almost every one of the Britons' shots in the fifth set were loaded with dynamite —the too-hot-to-handle kind—and the Americans had considerable difficulty in getting their racquets on them, much less making returns.

Two singles matches remain to complete the series. They will be played tomorrow with Budge opposing Austin and Perry going against Allison. As the result of England's victory today, however, these matches are reduced to an exhibition status for the only affect the outcome of the series will be determining the size of England's winning margin.

(By The Canadian Press)

Britain is known to be ready to press for full discussion of the dispute and Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, may make a personal appeal to Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate.

Although ready to attend the council the Italians will resolutely oppose any action other than reconvening the Arbitration Commission which broke up recently.

PREMIER REPEATS ALL SINGLE IDLE CUT OFF LISTS

Says Mayor Simpson Misunderstands His Statement

ONLY MEN REMOVED

"Time To Go To Work For Change" Remarked By Hepburn

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 29.— (CP)—Declaring "they've got to go to work", Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said today his order providing for cutting off relief from single unemployed men in Hamilton, effective August 1, was "definite and final".

The Premier added, however, the order did not apply to boys under 21 in families but a plan will be worked out later for them. "We are doing this in stages," he remarked.

All Single Men

At Toronto Mayor James Simpson said he had communicated with Premier to say in a telephone conversation today the order would apply to single men in hostels and not to those who are members of families on relief.

"I did not," said Mr. Hepburn.

"I said it would apply to all men listed as single unemployed in the province."

"The order," he reiterated, "applies to all single unemployed men receiving relief in the province who are physically fit. It does not apply to boys under 21 in families. They will be worked out later."

To Work For Change

Referring to Mayor Simson's assertion there were only 16 farm jobs available Saturday at the Toronto office of the Employment Service of Canada, Mr. Hepburn said: "You wouldn't expect to cut wheat and oats in the centre of Toronto." He added there was "a crying demand for farm help from all over Ontario".

The Premier said there were about 15,000 single unemployed men receiving relief in the province. "I, Hepburn, with the town fathers of St. Thomas and was told the plan of cutting off single unemployed men from relief Aug. 1 would apply only to single men in hostels and not to those who are members of families now on relief. Men between 18 and 21 are single men."

Mayor Simpson said there are 4,000 in the city of Toronto alone and these men would be given an opportunity to work before being cut off relief.

"This was the crux of my whole conversation with Premier today," the Mayor said, "and the Premier's declaration today clarifies the situation."

Tilt of Mayors

At the same time Mayor Simpson said responsibility for a telegram from Mayor R. A. Wilson of Hamilton reaching him collect rests with the Liberal party in Hamilton. The telegram dealt with Mayor Wilson's refusal, as president of the Ontario Municipal Association, to call a meeting of Ontario Mayors to discuss the relief problem in view of the government's order.

In Hamilton Mayor Wilson said the telegram was prepaid. This followed the Toronto Mayor's appointment of "Toronto's Trolley officeholder" in reference to Hamilton's chief executive.

The Hamilton Mayor replied Mr. Simpson was "known as the mayor-at-large" and suggested the Toronto mayor build a trailer for his car and an office for "he's never there."

To this Mayor Simpson said his office "was open until one o'clock last night" and "was open early and late enough for Hamilton's mayor to conduct his business with me."

Message Prepaid

"The telegram was delivered to my home about three o'clock and I added, "and was paid for by my wife. The telegram was from Mayor Wilson-at-large I am quite confident I told Toronto's mayor-at-large to office as well or better than any other Ontario Mayor."

The telegraph office in Hamilton it was stated the message from Mayor Wilson was prepaid.

25 YEAR TERM WITH TEN LASHES

Austrian With Long Police Record Is Sentenced At Ottawa

Ottawa, July 29 (CP)—Dimitro Michaiuk, 43, was today sentenced to 25 years in Kingston Penitentiary and 10 strokes of the lash when he was found guilty in Supreme Court of the charge of robbery while armed.

The charge against Michaiuk last Thursday entered the home of Samuel Greenberg at Billings Bridge, Ontario, overpowered and called his brother-in-law H. Rollick to the aid. In the hallway encountered Michaiuk who attempted to escape. In the mêlée Greenberg was shot in the thigh but was not seriously wounded. Saturday Michaiuk escaped from the jail by way of climbing an iron pipe to gain the roof of the wall. He jumped to the porch roof and from there to the ground. He was at liberty only a few hours being captured near Carleton Springs, 18 miles from Ottawa.

Michaiuk, Austrian, has spent most of his time in American and Canadian jails since 1915. He escaped from the Colorado State Penitentiary in 1916 and from Chicago policemen in 1922, when he was being transferred to Kingston State Penitentiary. His Canadian police record began in 1926 when he was sentenced in Thorold, Ont., to Kingston Penitentiary with 15 lashes. He was paroled last May.

750 MILLION NAVY IS BRITISH PLAN SAYS LABOR PAPER

Government And Admiralty Do Not Confirm News Story

SURPRISE IN U. S.

Washington Officials Are Not Inclined To Believe Story

London, July 29—(CP)—The Daily Herald today published an article saying the government planned an elaborate naval building program, involving construction of 12 new capital ships and 23 cruisers.

Commenting editorially, the Herald said, "Naval disarmament is dead. The program we publish is the ugly truth about it."

No confirmation of the report was forthcoming from Government or Admiralty sources.

The naval plan involved expenditure of $750,000,000 by 1943, said the Herald, revealing what it called a secret agreement with Italy. Japan, the Admiralty, it said the plan already provided for increases to the Admiralties of the United States, France, Germany, Italy and Japan.

The naval program is intensely discreditable to the government," said the paper editorially. "It is discreditable because it is a direct sequel to the government's failure to accept, indeed its success in blocking opportunities for, naval disarmament which in recent years was offered."

Strength of Fleet

Under the reported program, the combined strength of the British Fleet "on the date" when we are 1935 and 1942, following the ships which would become published under the Washington and London Treaty rules, would be:

In 1935, 15 capital ships, 59 cruisers, 84 flotilla leader-destroyers, 39 submarines, 3 aircraft carriers, 4 aircraft.

In 1943, 16 capital ships, 72 cruisers, 143 flotilla leader-destroyers, 67 submarines, 186 aircraft carriers.

The House of Commons was notified in the First Lord of the Admiralty in a speech July 23 Britain definitely was abandoning the principle of naval ratios accepted in the Washington accord of 1922.

The decision to abandon the idea of ratios, he said, was made because the national pride of many nations was offended at accepting a position of "permanent inferiority".

"We propose to accomplish the same ends of naval limitation as are under consideration by the British Commonwealth of Nations and other nations by providing adequate navies for defence for each nation."

U. S. Doubtful

Washington, July 29—(AP)— Declaring they were reluctant to believe reports Britain had planned to spend $750,000,000 on a new building program, naval officials here said such a development would start a new world armaments race.

Denying Washington had been informed of the reported program, officials said the United States could not be so serious because possibly it would require to furnish a trading basis in British attempts to negotiate a new naval limitation agreement.

'Not in Toonerville Trolley Class' Says Wilton, 'Despatch Prepaid'

Hamilton, Ont., July 29.—(CP)— Mayor H. E. Wilson, president of The Ontario Mayors' Association, denied today that his wire to the category of what Mayor James Simpson of Toronto calls "Toonerville Trolley officeholder" in Hamilton.

The Hamilton Mayor's telegram to Mayor Simpson declaring, announcing refusal to call a special meeting of the Association to discuss the Ontario Government's order cutting single unemployed men off Relief rolls, was delivered to the Simpson home in Toronto and despatch prepaid by Mr. Simpson.

But Mayor Wilton asserted today the telegram was prepaid, and he must have been a mistake, he said, but it was not his. There could be no doubt of his intentions in the matter, he declared.

Commenting last night on the telegram, Mayor Simpson said: "It is the sort of thing you would expect only from a 'Toonerville Trolley' officeholder in a town pump municipality."

Later a Board of Control meeting Mayor Wilson said:

"Any man with intelligence would have called the telegram office to see if the wire was prepaid or not. He remarked that the Mayor Simpson should have a trailer built for his car and use it for an office. He's never there. He's known as the 'Mayor at Large'."

With almost every train passing through the city loaded nearly to the aisles with travellers, both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways are said to be in the heaviest passenger week ends of the season, it was reported by agents today. Schedules were to be kind in some cases owing to the heavy movement of visitors travelling both east and west.

6-YEAR-OLD BOY GETS 5-PD. BASS

Using as bait a small sunfish which had been hooked in the fish's last moment or two previous, Billie Willie Keast, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvi Keast of Deloro on his first time out as a fisherman with his parents and a friend from Toronto, hooked a five-pound bass at Crowe Lake yesterday. The monster bass was one of the largest taken from the district, according to report old-time fishermen of the district.

SILENT POLICEMAN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

"Is the policeman killed? he's underneath, that car. Why he can possibly escape the fatal injuries," were scens of the remarks heard at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets on Sunday evening, when a difficulty occurred between "the silent policeman," their keeps in his literal visit to direct traffic at that point.

According to eyewitnesses an automobile being driven southward on Front Street by Herbert Rikely, Silverlie street, the "silent policeman" about 8.50 p.m. Sunday night. The standard was lodged between the front axle of the motor car and was carried a considerable distance down the street before the vehicle was stopped. Willing hands assisted the removal of the police standard, which was taken back to the intersection and put in place by P.C. Ewan. The standard was in no way damaged while the motor car showed only no ill effects from its escapade.

ONE CAR IN DITCH OTHER HITS TREE

Number of Accidents Occur On Highway No. 7

Wet slippery pavements are attributed to be the cause of three motor accidents that occurred on highway No. 2 just west of Belleville on Sunday. Shortly before noon an automobile, being driven easterly by Russell Lucas, Kitchener policeman, collided with another automobile, being driven in the same direction by Rev. J. S. Wilson of Oshawa. The impact of the Lucas car threw the Wilson car into the ditch subsequently striking a tree.

According to Traffic Officer W. H. Delaney, who investigated the accident, Wilson suddenly applied his brakes in order to make a lefthand turn, the following motorist unable to follow suit in the wake of the Wilson car and crashed into the rear end when he applied the brakes, but skidded on the wet pavement into the vehicle in front. The Wilson car was badly damaged as it struck a tree. The matter of restitution was amicably agreed upon. The accident happened just west of the Cemetery crossing.

Earlier in the day, two other motor accidents were investigated by Constable Delaney, both the result of motorists skidding off the highway and into the ditch. They both took place opposite the O.S.D. and saw no injuries and only fender damage in each case. A motorcar bearing a United States license plate was one of the vehicles.

A number of minor accidents were also reported on highway No. 2 and in the city limits, over the week end. Chief Constable Hayes of the investigated the accidents, one of which resulted in an Ottawa woman being seriously injured, but who escaped with her journey bouncered, William Play, 386 Sunnyside, Ottawa, was proceeding eastward, when his automobile skidded on the loose gravel and went into the ditch. Mrs. Play sustained severe head lacerations and other face and arm injuries necessitating her being taken to Belleville General Hospital by a passing motorist.

A charge of reckless driving was laid against Thomas Oakes of Toronto by Chief Hayes, after he had been implicated in an accident seven miles east of Tweed on Saturday night. According to the officer, Oakes was proceeding eastward and pulled his motor car directly across the road into the path of another automobile, being driven by Roy Payea of Tyendinaga. Walter McKinnon, also of Tyendinaga, although suffering injuries to his head, his motor cars were badly damaged.

While attempting to pass a motorcycle, another automobile, being driven westerly by Roy Payea of Omaha, landed into the ditch on highway No. 7 six miles east of Tweed yesterday. Chief Hayes announced today, that possible charges of reckless driving would be preferred against Payea. Two charges of speeding and another of reckless driving have been laid by Chief Hayes as the result of the week end of motoring experienced on No. 7 highway this season, authorities stated today.

REPAIR SCAFFOLD SET ABOUT HALL

City Hall Tower Now Surrounded By Framework

Before an interested audience of dozens of unemployed who stood on street corners and on the curb of the pavements across from the building workmen on Monday had commenced the first construction work of a tower-like scaffold which will rear its height from the sidewalk along the face of the city hall building to the top of the tower. The scaffolding is the first step in repairs which are to be made to the city building and the tower. Loose bricks are to be replaced, concrete downstive work is to be strengthened and the tower painted and waterproofed by the contractor. Parking pieces of masonry some time previous had decided city council on the move toward repairs.

During repairs pedestrians will be protected from flying fragments by a heavy wooden tunnel now being constructed.

"No parking" signs have been posted at the corner while repairs are in progress.

POLICE COURT

A long police court docket was presented in Belleville before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., judge, Herbert Peters, Prince Edward County, pleaded guilty to a second offence of intoxication and was fined $50.00 and costs. The fine was not forthcoming, Peters going to jail for one month in default of payment of the fine.

Ernest Rogers was charged that he was assessed ten dollars with costs which was paid while a speeder, who was apprehended acceding the speed limit made the city limits was fined five dollars and costs.

On a charge of non-payment of wages, under the Employment of Hodgen Beslin, local restaurant proprietor, was summoned into court. Beslin admitted owing his employees wages, but claimed that was "broke". His Worship ordered the defendant to pay the plaintiffs in the matter of their wages within one week. The charge was laid by two young ladies, who were employed as waitresses in Beslin's restaurant.

Two non-support cases and family matters were heard by Magistrate Butler.

Six young men who were charged in a previous court with the malicious destruction of property and theft, pleaded guilty to the wilful damage to pairs of an automobile. Four subsequent charges against each youth were withdrawn when Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. assured the court he would tender no evidence in the theft and assault charges, which had been laid. Each youth pleaded guilty to the damage charge and the matters were then enlarged for sentence until August 5th next.

POLICE BLOTTER

Local police today were asked to assist in the search for Percy Cole, Denbigh who escaped with a fellow prisoner, Edward Silchie, Toronto, from the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph early today. Cole was sentenced in the local police court held before Magistrate Butler, to three years less one day after being found guilty of theft of two motor cars in this county.

Local police were also asked to keep a sharp look out for a Chevrolet sedan, painted blue, that had been stolen from Oshawa last night. The vehicle bore the Ontario licence plates No. V-5471.

When a bicycle is stolen from the home of a policeman, well that should be news of some description, but perhaps like the man biting the dog. At any rate arrest thieves stole a bicycle from the rear of the home of Sergeant Arthur Booth, some time Saturday night. The bike was the property of Howard Booth, son of the sergeant. The bicycle was last seen in the usual parking place late Saturday night but was among the missing Sunday. No disturbance was heard during the night. Perhaps the fact, that Sergeant Booth was on night duty prompted the "bike thieves" to remove the bicycle.

A slight motor accident happened on Front Street late Saturday afternoon when a motor car, being backed out from the west by Joan Mitchell, Wooler, collided with two other automobiles parked alongside, the property of W. J. Kerr, Shannonville, Plainsbridge Dairy, and P. C. Evans were nearby and investigated the matter. Mrs. Mi-

EVAN JONES DIES AT PICTON HOME

PICTON—Known and kindly remembered by two generations of people of Picton Collegiate, Mr. Evan Jones, for the past twenty-eight years caretaker of that institution, died early today at his home in Picton, after suffering from heart trouble for the past two years. The deceased was fifty-nine years of age. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Jones Sr., Ferguson street, Picton. Although not in good health, the news of his death came as a shock to his many friends. Never forgetting an old friend, Mr. Jones always kindly in his greetings, and most efficient in his work at the Collegiate, Mr. Jones was widely known. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and an active member of the "Foresters" and of the Loyal Orange Lodge.

Surviving are his wife and one daughter, his aged parents, four brothers, Owen, William, George and Thomas and two sisters, Miss Emma Jones and Mrs. George Palmatier all of Picton. The funeral service is being held at his late residence, Picton on Monday afternoon at half-past two, Rev. S. M. Scott will conduct the service and interment will be made in Glenwood cemetery.

PACIFIC CONTROL AIM OF U.S. NAVY

Officials At Washington Consider Means of Maintenance

Washington, July 29—In an atmosphere of strictest secrecy extending in the doors of the White House, high officials of the army navy and diplomatic corps are considering means of maintaining U. S. naval domination of the Pacific when naval treaties expire next year.

Importance of the subject is reflected by the silence imposed. Naval officials say it is a problem in which the army is equally if not more intensely interested. Army chiefs suggest the state department should do the talking. State department officials say it is a political issue. And congressional leaders explain they await orders from "downtown."

Interest in Pacific domination arose because of the announcement by Great Britain that she would abandon the ratio system of naval limitations initiated at the Washington arms conference in 1922. Japan already has renounced the 5-5-3 ratio specified in the pact but hopes to preserve that part of the treaty maintaining the status quo in Pacific fortifications.

What position the administration will take is problematical, officials agree. They point, however, to the fact Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson during the Hoover regime took the position that fleet ratios and Pacific fortifications were indissoluble.

MUSSOLINI, 52, WORKS ON PLANS

Il Duce Lays Aside All Celebration of Birthday

Rome, July 29—(AP)—Premier Mussolini put aside all celebration of his 52nd birthday anniversary today to draft Italy's stand before the League of Nations council in the Ethiopian dispute. Authorities said Italian delegates were certain to attend the council session Wednesday.

Ethiopia's refusal to concur in an Italian proposal the conciliation commission should be confined to discussion of frontier incidents, however, was viewed as jeopardizing hopes for a peaceful settlement.

Fulvio Suvich, under-secretary for foreign affairs, flew to Rocca Delle Carminate to see Mussolini after a conference with Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome. Diplomatic circles expressed the view no concrete result had come from Suvich's conversations with the ambassador.

Although Italian delegates to go to the League Council session Wednesday informed sources said Italy would show little hesitation in sacrificing 1st place in the League of Nations to the cause af Fascist glory.

HOPE IN LEAGUE COUNCIL

It may be judged from the insistence of the efforts to prevent war in Ethiopia, that war is still not inevitable. This is a hopeful sign and no effort is too great to prevent a possible flare-up which might have vast reperoussions in all parts of the world once trouble started. The Council of the League of Nations is convoked to meet on Wednesday and Italy's anxiety is shown by her agreement to participate in the council meet on condition that the discussion relates only to the conciliation commission which broke down recently. Ethiopia does not want re-opening of the conciliation parleys, but wanted the League Council meeting while Italy offered to open up the conciliation issues.

It is said that the Ethiopian monarch has made efforts to secure peace for Ethiopia but his interviews are always couched in the high-sounding rhetoric which might be expected.

Britain and other powers have made a determined effort to prevent outbreak of strife in North-east Africa and have been given the support of lesser powers. The efforts are worth while and may have the happy result which is sought—to eliminate any chance of outbreak of hostilities, though Mussolini is openly rigid in his attitude.

"SEEING THINGS—"

Often the task of the police is made more difficult through the idle curiosity of the public who want to see everything, even though they run the risk of injury or death. According to a news letter from the Old Country in recent rioting thousands of persons waited to "see things", at the first sign of trouble flocking to street corners, gazing expectantly at nothing in particular and getting in the way of the police. They seemed to be oblivious of the fact that they were in danger and that if something unpleasant occurred to injure them, had only themselves to blame. They ought to remember when the police have orders to draw batons and charge distinctions cannot be drawn between a rioter and a spectator: a constable's job is to clear the streets. They should also remember that bullets do not always hit the person or object aimed at. "Most of the persons who are guilty of this folly are young" says the writer of the news letter.

Curiosity of this kind is senseless for the reasons pointed out, it hampers authorities in the performance of their duties and it places the spectator in the position of danger. It is absolute folly, especially when knowing that things may occur are likely to happen, to go to the place of danger as an observer to see men fighting and to see others get struck. There is a natural curiosity in man but that should be more than counterbalanced by the exercise of common sense.

LITTLE CHILDREN

Those who think of little children who have not the opportunity of going to camp except through the kindness of some one else will read with interest the rhythmical presentation of this cause in the words of W. H. Matthews, Director Department Family Welfare, New York City. These are the lines depicting scenes the director saw as he walked through some of the crowded streets of Gotham and saw the children, whom a breath of the seaside or country air would work marvels.

Frail children by the curb, their arms so thin,
One wonders how they hold their heavy load
Of mother—father—coming back and forth.
Their wrinkled foreheads belied in heads of sweat.

With brave yet troubled eyes they search the streets,
To find a bit of shade where they may shield
Their fretful burdens from the scorching sun.
And feel less tight the clutch of small, hot hands.

Frail children by the curb, if only you could go
Down by the sea, where white-capped fairies ride!
There little babes would sleep, and as they slept
You would have silence to rest, to romp and play.

To scamper at the sand cooled by the sea,
And catch up in your hands the sea-kissed spray;
And in your eyes, now hollow, tired and wan,
There would come light and laughter once again.

The one who will be found in trial capable of great acts of love is ever the one who is always doing considerate small ones.—Rev. F. W. Robertson.

Not rural sights alone but rural sounds, exhilarate the spirit and restore the tones of languid nature.—Cowper.

I consider it the best part of an education to have been born and educated in the country.—A. B. Alcott.

If country life be healthful to the body, it is no less so to the mind.—Ruffini.

As houses well stored with provisions are likely to be full of mice, so the bodies of those who eat much are full of diseases. —Diogenes.

If we did not take great pains to corrupt our nature, our nature would never corrupt us.—Cicero.

NO SONG

Sing no song
For the day is old,
And I, who had warmth and joy,
Am cold.
And what is a poem in a lifeless book,
When eyes seek eyes with a questing look
And where will a cadence lead me to,
If my thoughts are trailing the way of you?

Sing no song
For the day is done,
And the word on my lips
Is an empty one,
And I have no name for the thing that stands
To press life down with heavy hands,
And no note sounds and no bell rings
In the chill of a heart where nothing sings.

No—no song,
So, let us be
Still, with the flow
Of eternity,
That you, and the song, unsung, and I
May drift with the ages, passing by,
And some new woman, alone and sad
Will find the music I never had.

THE HARVEST IS HEAVY but the laborers are few. Call for men to work on the farms becomes louder and more insistent. It is said that many men and women on relief refuse farm work. Various excuses are offered which might be summed up this way: Lack of hot and cold running water in rooms in farm houses, rooms with baths, etc., 8-hour day and half holiday Saturday. That may be a bit of an exaggeration but it makes plain the point that work is refused and municipal relief money accepted without work, while excuses are made why the work should not be accepted. Most folks can remember when it used to be a lark to go to a farm for the harvesting, after having picked berries, and enjoyed it. Who has never picked hops from dawn till dark has missed something in life, a thrill which never can be recaptured. And the lads who pitched hay in the old haymow hour after hour, swallowed dust by the peck and got their shirts full of ticklers, never even asking what time it was—glorying in getting the work done well and quickly. Times have changed—or the people have.

LADS LOOKING FOR A JOB on a farm warm the cockles of the government employment agent's heart. An Irish lad of seventeen lays with the brogue of the South of Ireland still tripping over his tongue waited two days for a job on a farm and got it. Asked if he could do farm work—sure, said he, I can pitch hay with the best of them, and I have a way wi' horses. Asked why they love me so?—I love them. Another husky lad came down in the dark next to the fire station boasting of his luck. He had an offer of farm work, accepted, and had another offer of a better farm job. Two to choose from. He boasted of his good luck, and was told of a lad on a bench nearby who hadn't been so fortunate. The two got together and went off to the employment office where the second lad was placed in touch with a farmer and engaged. Both these lucky lads washed their socks and shirt in the crick Sunday and rejoiced that their stomachs were filled with good food, that they had a good place to sleep and work which would grub-stake them to a new start when harvest is over. Life is not all beer and skittles, neither is it all misery and excuses for those who refuse to be forever buffeted by the stings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

Here is the newest addition to the stories about Dr. Schacht. An eminent American banker recently called upon His Excellency for the dual purpose of protesting against the repudiation of certain German bonds, and enquiring about the economic future of Germany. Dr. Schacht showed more than his usual curtness in dismissing the protest, but was most amiably garrulous about the future of Germany. He said Germany was passing through the valley of the shadow of depression, but her future was bright. "Consider her immense resources. For instance, we have coal underground, and our beloved leader, Hitler, above the ground."

"Well, well!" rejoined the American, "if the location of these two treasures were reversed, Germany's future would indeed be bright."

FINE PORTRAIT OF KING FOR EXHIBITION

Twenty-seven cases of contemporary paintings have arrived in Toronto for the famed annual art exhibit staged by the Canadian National Exhibition. Leading galleries throughout Europe have loaned their art treasures to Canada and upon the walls of two buildings will hang some of the originals of familiar masterpieces. ABOVE is a new portrait of His Majesty King George, painted by W. S. St. Lander, the famous Scottish artist. This large canvas is among a number lending a jubilee flavor to the show, paintings of the Duke and Duchess of Kent, as well as the Prince of Wales, being among this group of royal family portraits.

YVONNE PROVES SELF AN ACTRESS

Most Amusing of 'Quints' In Daily Shows Before Thousands

By A. E. FULFORD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Callander, Ont., July 29 (CP)—When Yvonne Dionne grows up and if she chooses the stage for a career the most amusing of the quintuplets probably will be known as a great show closer. She has begun already to show talent in the little act the quints stage four times each day for thousands of visitors.

The show, staged at eight and eleven o'clock in the morning and one and three in the afternoon, always closes in a triumph for Yvonne, heaviest of the sisters who became.

were 14 months old yesterday.

Marie, Emilie, Cecile and Annette get as many laughs and as much applause but they are held high by a nurse and laugh and clap their hands for the crowd. But Yvonne are all laid out of sight in their prams and the crowd is turning away Yvonne takes matters into her own hands.

Keenish Peeping

One day a rain raises her recovered carriage top and she peeks out roguishly at her departing visitors. It never fails to bring down the house.

The laughter and applause is almost as amazing as the unusual performance the babies stage each week day before 1,500 persons and each Sunday before 4,000.

Many a "hoofer" would break a leg for some of the hearty laughter—really laughs—in show business—that rolls up from the crowd as Yvonne pants then by kicking her arms and legs so strongly the nurse finds it hard to hold her or Marie Jayr buries her head in a nurse's shoulder.

No one who has not seen the performance of both the youngsters and the crowds can realize what deep satisfaction the visitors gain from watching five identical babies born premature and weak, show how strong and healthy they have

What Tourists See

The preliminaries start about 6.30 each morning when the first tourists, usually an early-rising United States camping party, roll up the road from Callander and park in the cleared space before the Dafoe Hospital. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, quint physician, sets them a few minutes later and after spending an hour checking up on the girls drives away before the crush starts.

During the period from six o'clock to eight, when the children are being bathed, exercised and fed the crowds find entertainment in listening to their cries, rather annoyed ones when they are taken from their baths and laughing ones later when they are exercising. They are plainly audible outside the nine-foot fence that keeps visitors near the road.

On the appearance hour the visitors are permitted inside the outer fence to a six-foot barrier 30 feet from the hospital verandah. After each child has been held up for two minutes, clapped her hands together and smiled and laughed they are tucked away in their carriages and the crowd walks out behind the second barrier where their satisfied comments cannot disturb the youngsters if they wish to sleep.

It's done all over again three times more each day. Just as vaudeville performers do, the babies put on the same show each time and the visitors always go away laughing and vowing in tell their friends what a real thrill they have had.

4 New Witnesses Back Tom Mooney

Sacramento, Calif., July 27 (AP) —Four new witnesses were enlisted today in the cause of Tom Mooney, approaching his 20th year in prison for the bombing of the San Francisco Preparedness Day Parade of 1916.

They were announced after a visit here by George T. Davis, San Francisco lawyer, who said their testimony would be added to the weight of evidence by which he hopes to win a writ of habeas corpus and freedom for Mooney from the State Supreme Court, September 3rd.

Davis said they will be employed to strengthen the contention of Mooney supporters he was convicted on perjured evidence.

Everything Happened That Could Happen in Ball Game

Peterboro, Ont., July 27.—Playing away below their form here Saturday, the Belleville Waterous baseball club dropped a 14-5 decision to the Petes to allow Knobby Lee's crew to remain in a first place tie with Kingston in the O.R.B.A. A large crowd saw an uninteresting ball game with the Quinte pitchers off color and the whole team falling down defensively. A six run lead for the homesters in the first frame paved the way for a one-sided Peterboro victory.

Jack Williams started for the Mills gang but his control was not pinching as usual ball and four knocked out in the third frame—the first time he has failed to last the afternoon this season. He allowed eight runs, eight hits and struck out two in that time. Bud Wilkins relieved Williams and, after facing little better, being clouted for nine hits the rest of the way as he finished with a five hit performance. Three balks added to his unenviable record. Wilkins pitched good support from the infield.

Ross Kitchen opened on the home mound for the Petes and was in fine shape after the visitors had threatened repeatedly to score upon him in the first three innings. He was touched for three hits in the first frame but Lefty Lepper went in there and struck out all three in the usual five walks the rest of the way managed to finish with good backing Scott Stewart had accomplished good support with the bat. Les Bilsten kept them well in front all the way.

Smith was the only radio hitter to get two safeties, one a double. Reed also smashed out a double. Kearns, Foley, Murphy and Starr banged out three ash hits each for the winners, with Burton and Whitaker getting one each, the latter having a double. Pong and Weir pulled off smart catches for the visitors while Ash, Burton, Murphy, Ash and Kearns all went good defensively for the Left Lead squad.

PLAYOFF CHANCE GOES "BLOOEY"

Carrying Place Defeated By Downs-Coulter In Trenton Loop

Trenton, July 29 (Special)—The Carrying Place softball club lost their chance of a play-off position in the local league game here on Monday evening, when they were defeated by the Downs-Coulter 9-5, Joe Coughlin, who was suspended from the local softball league for the lower, Manager Cecil Ward promised the move before the game with Carrying Place, and kept his promise by using the suspended player. The Downs-Coulter will run afoul of Tommy Foley hit a Texas leaguer over short and the fireworks started and when the smoke had cleared away the Petes had bagged six runs, enough to win any ball game in Belleville. Lepper fanned Foley's pop, well goodness knows what might have happened. Incidentally the locals got a peek at the first pitching assignment of the season on Saturday, when Lepper relieved Kitchen as the locals applied the pressure. The latter was hard to determine how the Petes would look in front of a south-paw, as Lepper was at wild as the proverbial hare. Control he limited the locals to two hits while on the mound.

The Petes bombarded the Oshawa Brewers right in Oshawa to the tune of 3 to 1, thereby leaving the Radios still in fifth position in that place, while the Petes and the Pros are hanging on to third and fourth in the league leadership, they being tied for the time being 1-2. Of course when the Petes were scheduled to play an afternoon tilt on Wednesday the Radios are also scheduled to appear. The last time the Petes banged the locals 3 to 1 in Belleville behind the Mills-led aggregation came right back at Oshawa the Petes drove with a shut out, let's hope history repeats itself on Wednesday afternoon. It is interesting at this time to mention the fact that Wednesday is the day on which the Petes strut throughout the community in the N.R.A. togs and the day on which the spawnal of the fans, two hundred strong, journey to Peterboro at Belleville C.O.B.L. baseball club to Picton at Belleville Bay of Quinte league stand. Incidentally the local Pennington can knock the Picton pitching apart, indeed, the first place with a home town victory. Knows how important, why every one knows how important, why every one game is to both the Sea Horses and the Petes at the present time, show as follows:—

Peterboro	15	11
Belleville	9	10
Oshawa	7	12

Wednesday afternoon—Peterboro at Belleville.

President Hugh Campbell and Coach Rockey Kelly of the Sea Horses tangled during Saturday's game in relationship with what was actually running the club. President Campbell took a hand in the matter to instruct as putting Lepper in the box, Rockey, not to be outdone, quit the team and left the park late in the ninth inning. Just what this all amounts to we cannot say, but after the game we interviewed Manager Campbell as regards to how the land laid in the ranks, he came through like a man. I haven't much to say, except if Knobby comes back he must first come to me and ask for his job back. After that I'll consider the case before re-hiring him," stated President Campbell, but in any thoroughly convinced that Knobby will be back, as these Mills have mourned because he is between the President and Coach of the Pease we were informed in the Lifted City.

One local player showed plenty of nerve last Saturday, that was Earl "Sonny" Green, who played a series of ball with a broken finger and an injured thigh. During the game he sustained a severe spike injury, but he believes in the old Connie Mills rule we used to refer to as the "Baltimore Chop" in baseball. Sonny sustained a badly injured hip at Peterboro two weeks ago, but said little of the incident. Last Saturday he received a severe spike wound in the thigh, but stepped to the plate and slammed out a double. Then he scored on a single. During the game he rem

Marchers Leave On Trek to East

Refreshed by a night's sleep in the open on Victoria Park, interrupted during the fore part of the evening by a sudden and heavy downpour of rain, causing the majority of them to take cover in the wooden ball houses, the score of on-to-Ottawa trekkers arrived in the city on Saturday afternoon, left Belleville in orderly files, bound for Napanee, 22 miles away, at nine-thirty o'clock this morning.

According to members of the group between 275 and 300 including 26 women were enlisted on the rolls of the trekkers. Personal observation and check by many residents of the city who watched the march as it visited the city's streets the trekkers were temporarily billetted, placed the number considerably lower, but some 300 persons were in advance guard, and so forth.

Following the march out of the park, a number of camp police were left behind to clear up the refuse left by the trekkers.

The trekkers passed through Shannonville at half past twelve.

MAYOR SIMPSON IN QUANDRY OVER PREMIER'S EDICT

Possibility of Unrest Among Unemployed Single Men

APPEALS TO BENNETT

Belmont Mayor Challenges Premier Hepburn To Find Jobs

Toronto, July 29.—(CP)—Mayor James Simpson today saw possibilities of mass meetings among Ontario's 19,000 unemployed single men in Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's proposal to "put the relief line."

"We don't want ... ts or similar disturbances," said Toronto's Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, after declining to consent to carry out the Premier's edict single unemployed men would be struck from the relief lists if they did not find employment with harvesting farmers.

Pending a "peace, order and good government" if the edict became effective, Mayor Simpson prepared to:

Mayor Simpson suggested the Federal Government might withdraw relief from single transients to Ontario and divert it to help Toronto's single men. He said he knew of men who are physically unfit or aged whom no employment can be found.

"There may be a slight saving," the Mayor said, "in following the Premier's plans, "but other and heavier charges will result in loss of peace, order and good government if we lose the relief switch."

Challenge Premier

Earlier at Belmont, Ontario, near London, Premier Hepburn had challenged the Pr ier to find employment for the single ...ple.

Only 15 application for farm labourer's had been received at the relief offices on Toronto, he said, and yet he had been told by the government that from the lists all able-bodied men from 18 ... 50 would be required to accept farm jobs.

"I challenge him" (the Premier) to give them jobs," was the mayor's reply. "I challenge the government to give them work and when you rob the young of the right to work you rob them of hope. You rob them of the right to develop their minds and bodies. You cannot guarantee them a decent living wage as was the case when they were transported to the West at harvest time.

"The men are left, relative to the good-will of farmers who are going to employ them."

Mayor Simpson considered the city would have to keep on caring for the single men, "even if the province's "purge" became effective."

HALF INCH RAIN IS HELP TO SOIL

Heavy Electric Storm Passes Southward Over City

Rural districts today reported damage nil, but a land thoroughly soaked following one of the heaviest thunderstorms of the season which passed over the city early on Sunday evening. One half inch of rain fell during the brief period while lightning cracked and flashed and peals of thunder reverberated with ear splitting force. Brewed in the north, the storm which spent most of its force there, moved slowly over the city, accompanied by a heavy rainfall which brought smiles to the faces of farmers in the bay belt. Gathering its forces again the storm assumed heavier proportions as it passed northward in its course, swept over the lake. Cannifton, Frankford and other points reported no harm done.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Two Feature Program

Tomorrow and Wednesday, the latest segment of the Belle theatre's have arranged a double feature program that is sure to please all. The first one, a serious story with its background the United States Government department of prohibition, featuring two of the most popular stars on the screen today, Ray Francis and George Brent, and brought to the screen under the title of "Stranded", is a picture that has more heart interest, romance and dramatic action than is usually seen in a film of this type.

"Stranded" is a story that concerns a Travelers Aid Worker and a rough-and-ready engineer. The romance between these two people is deep-in-love. The Travelers Aid Worker sees everything in the line of humanity; the engineer thinks that human nature is all right and should be thrown aside if there is a flaw.

Warren has the role of the engineer and Miss Francis that of the Travelers Aid Worker. The cast includes such noted players as Frances Ellis, Donald Woods, Roscoe Karns and Granville Darro. Frank Borzage, directed "Stranded".

A mirth-provoking "Fifty Wife Confusion", with Jean Muir and Blanche Sweet in the featured roles, is the other feature presentation at the Belle Tuesday and Wednesday and it is said to be filled with hair raising situations that will test the patience to an unusual climax. The plot centres around the attempt by kidnap a rich heiress, and unfolds the most amusing scenes ever recorded in a mystery picture, mysterious prowlers creeping about the creaky old hotel and hilarious thrills are packed into this air, a hidden chamber without doors, girl appearing in two places at the same time and other strange phenomena add to the mystery and thrills.

There is an all star cast with Jean Muir and Kenneth Gorden in the romantic roles, and around whom the plot centres. Others include Ruth Donnelly, Walter Kingsford, Gordon Westcott, Addison Richards and Pauline Garon.

"No More Ladies"

Tonight the Belle offers its patrons, "No More Ladies", Robert Montgomery, Joan Crawford picture co-starring Robert Montgomery and Joan Crawford and the finest picture these two popular stars have ever made.

An uproarious comedy with strong underlying drama of the lasting love of husband and wife, to hold the husband she loves, it is revealed, adapted from the Broadway stage hit by A. E. Thomas.

The featured cast is exceptionally brilliant, including Franchot Tone, Charley Grapewin, Mary Howard, Edward Arnold, Grant Mitchell, Gene Lockhart, Edward Ellis, Polly Moran, Jean Hersholt and Reginald Owen.

"No More Ladies" will be shown twice tonight at the Belle, for the first time. Complete shows starting at 7.15 and 9.15.

"The Farmer Takes a Wife"

A preview showing of Janet Gaynor and Henry Fonda, the screen's newest sweethearts in "The Farmer Takes a Wife" will be shown at the Belle Theatre, Friday, August 4th, commencing at 12.05.

AT THE CAPITOL

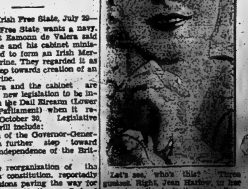
"Party Wire"

With Jean Arthur, whose last screen success was the sensational "The Whole Town's Talking", and Victor Jory, the screen's new popular leading man, in the featured roles, "Party Wire" brings a rewith of fine acting to the screen.

Real entertainment, the film achieves its point without a single line which might meet with the disapproval of the censor, it is said, and it is on this score that it is heartily recommended to every member of the family.

Dramatic and colorful, "Party Wire" revolves itself chiefly with the romance between Jean Arthur, the wide-awake, hard-working small town stenographer, and Victor Jory, an eligible bachelor who returns to the wide town, bookish after a seven-year absence. Because Jory spends his time with Jean and her father, Charley Grapewin, a lovable ne'er-do-well, the very modest with a marriageable daughter in Rockridge remantically determines to make sure the course of true love is strewn with malicious rocks and back-biting boulders.

Jean Arthur's portrayal is clean-cut and crisp, making of her "Marge Oliver" a believable, living human. Victor Jory is equally fine, and his playing is always definitely in character. Charley Grapewin deserves credit for his characterization of the kindly, well-meaning leader, and Clarence Mitchell proves herself a promising comedienne with her portrayal of the slightly-soured village belle.



An excellent program of short subjects add to the entertainment with a musical comedy entitled "Short Words and Long Music" a mystery thriller called, "When the Lights Went Out" and an interesting view of the Hollywood fashion favorites in off-stage moments.

The engagement of "Party Wire" with Tuesday being devoted to the Ladies' Night and Dr. Barty Giveaway to all lady patrons.

Brantford, Oct. July 29—(CP)—The first of the hay season fires swept the barns of the former Buck farm on Mount Pleasant, now occupied by Tony Maaurek, last night. Many tons of hay and straw and a big crop of 35 tons. The Brantford Fire Department responded to a call but water was not plentiful and little could be done to check the flames which wiped out two barns. TORONTO STOCKS
(Close)

Toronto, July 29 (CP)—This week opened with a brgdening out trade on the Toronto Industrial Share Market and with prices generally playing more strength than weakness. Oils were heavy in the early transactions but most of the losses were made up in the later dealings ruled strong and gains predominated also in the food, utility and miscellaneous groups. Bank shares recorded a few price changes on the whole.

Oil shares dipped and partly recovered while liquor stocks ruled strong on the industrial section also today. Over the board prices were firm but aside from the two groups mentioned, volume was small.

Lack of a statement of recent earnings or a dividend declaration in the case of Distillers Seagrams as had been expected in some former quarters from Saturday's annual meeting, failed to add to the half point set-back that was registered before the close on Saturday. Early this afternoon the issue was placed at 20 5-8, up 1-8. Other liquor shares were stronger, Walker's Common gaining 3-8.

A new low for the year for Distillers at 1 1-8 and's minor rebound advance for Pord of Canada marked the morning session. Imperial Oil and International Petroleum weakened 3-8 each.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, July 29—(CP)—Traders came in a dribble on the mining floor this morning. Exchanges today and prices developed few changes of any importance. A few of the gold mine golf balls were in general gone of the non-ferrous and base metal issues. Aggregate volume was well under the average for recent sessions.

Although the London metal market quoted a considerable advance for copper, shares of the red metal group were slow in the mining section with prices just holding. Noranda and Hudson Bay ruled a little higher against minor losses for Falconbridge and Base Metals Corporation. Golds on the whole were slightly soft and silvers unchanged. Little trade developed. Mascots and Ventures eased down one to several cents each and Braslorne and Pioneer were slightly higher.

Trade was decidedly slow in the Toronto Oil section with prices mainly unchanged and Chemical Research lost 5 cents up 1.30.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, July 29 (AP)—Sailsiesta and scattered specialties today lifted stock market prices. Trading was more active than usual. Many new highs for the year were recorded.

Calmers of 1 to 2 points or so included Atlas Powder, U.S. Central, Union Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Car and Foundry, American Can, Allied Chemical, Pacific Lighting and Reynolds Spring. Most of the utilities were about unchanged and U.S. Industrial Alcohol and Lock's reacted a point each. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, July 29 (AP)—Optimism ruled most financial markets today as trade and industry displayed additional tendencies to forge ahead. A rally in the rails gave another push to the stock list.

Among Canadian stocks International Nickel, Aluminium and Canadian Pacific ruled steady. On the curb Hollinger improved a minor fraction. Dominion Bridge common bonds were inactive. Montreal funds were off 1 to 4 cents at 99 1-2 cents.

American Can, American Can and Foundry, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Hudson and Union Pacific got up several points each. Others up fractionally by around a point included Santa Fe, N.Y. National Steel, Bethlehem, Electric Boat, Bridgeport Brass and Western Union.

The motors, the farm group and many of the utilities were little better than steady. J. S. Industrial Alcohol jumped 2 points.

Studebaker also established a new top with a small advance.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

In a current issue Standard Statistics Co. Inc., of New York, review the outlook of copper as follows:

Reflecting the improved tone of the foreign copper market and the stimulating effect on prices of the lower domestic level, the copper outlook has been measurably improved over that of the recent past. With sales for the first half of July totaling 56,000 tons, as compared with the old "book allotments" of 30,000 tons monthly under the NRA code, it is generally believed that a strengthening in the copper structure for copper will be witnessed over the early future.

For the first time in more than a year, the foreign consumption of copper is on a parity with the domestic level. The improvement abroad was in direct response to the report that the curtailment agreement was being strictly adhered to by the Algorian producers. Furthermore, the strengthened statistical position of the industry was fully maintained during June, with refined stocks remaining practically unchanged at 462,000 tons. The decline of 6,000 tons in domestic stocks to 30,000 tons was approximately offset by a gain in foreign holdings.

With higher copper prices likely over the near-by or intermediate future the outlook for copper securities has been materially improved.

While Wall Street reports comparatively little change to be seen about, there is an increasing number of those who are cautiously optimistic. Some of these have been reducing their long lines for several days past. Traders believe there are still a number of stocks under-priced, taking earnings and potentialities into consideration. On the other hand, brokers believe many issues have discounted the present and good things anticipated. For the bull, conservatives in the main, have not changed their bullish opinion, but there is still a strong tendency toward selectivity, not only in regard to individual stocks but groups as well.

Spread of the rust menace from the United States into Canadian territory is expected to take a serious toll of our Prairie crop this year. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported that "careful observations show that rust will take a serious toll of the crop in many fields and, as in other rust years, only full, thrashing outturn will reveal the full extent of the damage." In its weekly crop report the Bank of Montreal states: "While crops generally in the Prairie Provinces are making rapid growth, the outlook is less favourable than it was a week ago owing to the possibility of extensive damage from rust. Reports also from some sections of Saskatchewan, Alaska western districts and eastern areas of Saskatchewan and southern Alberta, but otherwise moisture conditions are satisfactory."

We didn't mean to SCARE you!

Forgive us . . . this charming young lady didn't mean to frighten you. But we printed her picture so BIG that you thought your eyes were fooling you.

THIS is just our way of saying BIGNESS — of telling you that some things are just too big to miss!

It's our way of telling you about the big Values now being offered in Belleville stores. It's our way of illustrating the big values you'll find there. It's our way of pointing out the big savings you'll make if you yield to your better judgment, and go a-shopping now...and the big mistake you'll make if you don't.

It's our way of calling to your attention the undeniable fact that the biggest market-place for these great big values is the Ontario Intelligencer. And that wise buyers add comfort and convenience to economy by shopping before they buy—in the Ontario Intelligencer advertising pages.

And it's just our little way of pointing out another important fact: That your smile will be as big as the smile on the lady in this picture as you count the time, trouble and money saved—every day and all the year—when you read the ads regularly.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

A pair of gigantic bull-mastiffs bounded in the lair of the lynx, frantic at finding their prey just out of reach. One plunged down on his haunches and started upwards. The other, his fore-feet against the trunk, as high as a man's shoulders, bayed furiously.

Sam Barber hoisted himself safely into the fork of the tree grinning. He seemed very little flustered.

"What good does Bannister think this is goin' to do him?" he chuckled, looking his oldest.

He gasped, and blinked. A blinding ray of light shot from behind a big tree trunk in front, directed upwards full in Sam's eyes; the ray of an electric torch. A large gun form loomed into the back of it, a voice said commandingly:

"Stop!" and then, with a note of surprise, "What's this—" Great goals! Barber!"

At the first gleam of the torch, Barber's hand twitched instinctively back to his hip, hindered by the cumbering oilskin he was wearing, and quick as thought he found himself covered by a revolver, gripped in a big white fist within the ray of the light.

"Up!" snarled the voice, and as Sam hesitated there was a crack and a flash, a bullet sipped warningly through the flap of the seaman's south-wester.

"The next one through your belly. Up with them both!" said the voice. And Barber slowly raised his hands and his face blinked into the glare of the light.

"Frumy!" said cooly, "that don't sound like Bannister. Sounds more like an old pal. Know me, do you?"

The big blurred form behind the gun was Selby's, trim and correct in boiler's evening dress.

"Quiet, you!" he said to the baying hound, whose bay dropped to a throaty growl.

"Know you? I'd know you from here to hell. Sam Slade—illicit diamond buyer, crook and reefer! Two years on Capetown Breakwater; five as Sing Sing—blackmail. One of the old gang—the old push, eh? Must be mighty hard driven to come poachin' on this land, then."

"Barber. Sam Barber, if you don't mind. I don't like you, but that pretty 1'l voice ought to be Sarah's, eh?"

"Mr. Selby, to you," said the man with the gun. Sam's eyes roved over the boiler and his costume, and he chuckled aloud.

"Well outfit, ain't, many jobs can't still." What say you, Jim-Sister Cooke's head, Hunkey?"

"I'm looking, after Mr. Cooke," said Selby coldly. "Now what?"

"Tell him his old friend Sam is here, and wants a little private talk with him, in a little private room. Nice and cosy. He'll fall for it. Get to him quick!"

Selby did not move.

"Now hear me," he said cooly, "and cut out this cross-talk turn. I'm taking no message to Mr. Cooke. He's away. If he was in, he wouldn't see you. We're havin' no truck with you here—you're warned down. Try any monkey tricks with me," he added with sudden venom, "and I'll turn you down feet first an' thank you for the chance. Keep your hands up! D'you get these guns?"

"I see 'em," said Sam. "You hold three aces, but the joker is with me."

Barber kept his hands in sight. But he blazed forward unconcealed from his perch, his eyes undaunted.

"Listen, you big stiff!" he said, "an' quit this kidding! Take your poodles of yours away. Go up to Bannister choke, give him word from me. He figures on getting married—does he know what that's going to cost him? But that ain't all I've got on—not by a mile. Nob'dy fifty miles—I'll put that much cash bet away with this stuff you've a bigger fish coming to you than Cooke."

Selby retired a little way, almost out of sight in the gloom, and calling the dogs to him, made them sit. They obeyed instantly.

"Watch him!" he said. "Now, Slade, you can quit with the quitting's good, and I'll hold 'em in. Or you can start here and there. If you come down meantime you may get one of 'em with luck, the other will pull the strings out of your throat. You won't ever see Mr. Cooke, either way. So long."

He moved off. Slade, glancing at the dim forms of the dogs, called after him.

"Here!"

"Well?" said Selby, halting.

"Is that right—he's away?"

"I've told you. Not till tomorrow evening."

"Very well. He's going to hear from me, and if he doesn't come across right—I'll be waiting for him where he belongs—you too. And Lord help you if you've got it into the collars of the two dogs and held them fast. Barber, after a moment's hesitation, dropped heavily out of the tree.

Then he was an evil gimlet in his eye as he turned towards Selby. Then he turned, and walked rapidly towards the wall, fading out of sight in the gloom. A ringing bell in him and he began to run.

Selby waited a minute, his lips twisted in a sardonic grin at the mastiffs growling, and straining to be free.

"Get him!" he said quietly, and loosed them. The two brute streaked away like a pair of shadows.

Barber heard the rush of feet and the pad of galloping dogs, but was hampered by a fluttering oilskin his speed was marvellous. A slower man would have been dog's meat. He cursed himself for the slip he had made in giving Selby such a chance. He reached the silver birch in the nick of time, and leaping for the branch, swung himself sprawling on the crest of the wall. A pair of jaws snapped on the skirts of his oilskin and tore a piece out, nearly pulling him back. He clung tight, deliberately pulling out a small black pistol, which spat flame.

One of the dogs fell back with a choking howl, and its fellow in a moment Sam slithered over the wall, dropping with a thud into safety.

"There's one of your pups for you!" he smirked. "And as sure as little apples, if Coote doesn't come across there'll be another dog stacking overhead tonight."

Sam the Sailor limped away into the gloom.

Selby came to the look of the wall, to find the bull-mastiff dog lying dead. The bitch stood over him, her eyes red and her fangs bared, every hair on her huge neck standing erect. Selby looked for a moment thoughtfully, and shrugged his shoulders. "Then he turned away and walked up to the house.

He found Bannister Cole in his library in the south wing, oblivious, across and undisturbed, Selby closed the door quietly. There was no trace of the butler's manner left now, as he approached his master; the mask of the servant's ball had faded from his face completely.

"Come in," said Mr. Coote. "I've something to say to you."

"Have you," said Selby, "anything to say to Sam Slade?"

Bannister looked up.

"Slade!"

His face went a curious gray tint, then flushed slowly.

"What do you mean, man! Are you crazy? What's doing?"

Selby told him of his encounter in the park, detailing everything that happened. Not a word did Coote say till he had heard him out. Bannister was an abstemious man as a rule, but he filled a glass with whiskey and gulped it down. Then he turned to his man, and he looked the more dangerous of the two.

"You did right, Jim," he said. "You—you've got him what he wanted—God—him nothing—got rid of him? He's got to be kept out of her. Stick with him. Good Lord—I thought the beast was dead and done with."

"Sam," said Selby, "is the sort that'll never be done with till he's dead. A bit of black history is bobbing up an' making trouble, Mr. Cooke, sir. Thought you wouldn't stand for any rough stuff in here, of course." He peered curiously at his master. "Be safer if you'd tell me just what he's after!"

Mr. Coote did not answer. Selby drew nearer, and dropped his voice.

"See here, Boss. I don't know what that chap said as we left you—but I can guess. He has only one game—the big squeeze. If you let him start bleeding you, there'll be no end to it.

"Turn him across to me, an' let me handle him. I know what to do with that sort of cattle. If he comes—"

"Don't talk like a fool," said Bannister.

He stared straight before him, thinking rapidly. Moments by moment his face cleared.

"Jim," he said, "You'll keep out of it. There won't be any difficulty with Sam. If he gives trouble he'll have to be kept quiet. I'll deal with him myself."

He stood up.

"That's that. And now, Selby, I've some orders for you."

"I'm waiting."

"Just get along to your wife. Tell her to have the best guest room, the pink room, ready for a lady who is arriving tomorrow night. Miss Nell. The pink room, mind. Don't leave it to the women, look after the arrangements, yourself — understand? See to it that everything is exactly—as it should be. Got that?"

Selby stared at his master; his eyes narrowed to two small slits.

"Is that all the orders?"

"All, at present. Get to it."

CHAPTER VI.

Selby left the room without a word. He seemed to like his instructions very little; as soon as he was outside he drew a deep breath. But he knew better than to disobey Bannister.

He found his wife in the morning room.

Mrs. Selby, housekeeper of King's Fim, was a large, stout, florid man, with a pathetic flat white face. Like her husband, she filled her role perfectly. Her dress was of black bombazine, with a large serious waist was a belt from which hung a bunch of keys that swung and jangled as she moved. A typical woman, with watchful eyes.

At the moment she was less silent than usual, talking earnestly to her daughter, Deborah, a girl with jet-black hair and a trim figure in smart parlor maid's uniform. A pert, piquant little face, full-lipped and olive-skinned, with an insolent expression.

Selby closed the door quietly and stood with his back against it, a quick glance at his face sensed something wrong, and came across to him.

"What was that row in the park? Just now?" she said.

"No row. Nothing that matters to you," said Selby briefly. "Listen—Guynor's orders. You're to get the best room ready for a lady arrivin' tomorrow night, Miss Nell. Coming here to stay. Got it?"

Mrs. Selby looked at him in consternation.

"Coming here!" she said under her breath. "Lady . . . best room . . . coming to stay! Nell! Not—not Nell. Somebody else lookin' for trouble," said Selby grimly, "and going to find it."

"Jim, what's he thinking about?"

"Do I know what's in Bannister's mind?" said Selby. "Yes. I'll bet I do, after what I've heard tonight, Sarah. He's thinking about girl's marriage."

Mrs. Selby stared at him. The girl, who had been listening intently, came a pico thwm.

"What's this!" she said, a catch in her breath. "What about me? What am I going to do?"

Selby looked at his daughter.

"You?" he said. "You'll keep your mouth shut, Deb, my girl. Leave it to your mother—and me."

A shimmer of summer lightning lit up the Derbyshire hills, as Sonia Neil looked out of the window of a third-class carriage. For a moment the rugged outline of Steep Tor stood out like a phantom, and vanished again, the long threatened storm had decided to break, but at the journey was nearing its end.

Hall, a convict in Kingston penitentiary on April 9, 1934, Judge E. J. Daly stated in his report to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice.

Judge Daly was a royal commissioner appointed to investigate the charge that Dawson said "Aggie made a monkey fool of herself in the House but when we are finished with her she won't be able to lift her head in the House again." His report was made public today by Mr. Guthrie.

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

T. E. LAWRENCE

Mifleh was past tears, thinking I had intentionally let the train thru; and when the Serahin rode back and told the real cause they said, "Bad luck is with us." Historically they were right; but they meant it for a prophecy, so I made sarcastic reference to their courage at the bridge the week before, hinting that it might be a tribal preference to get on camel-guard. At once there was uproar, the Serahin attacking me furiously, the Beni Sakhr defending. All heard the trouble, and came running.

When we had made it up the original despondency was the more evident. All looked on nobly, though the wretched boy was blue with cold and shivering in an attack of fever. He gasped that their ancestor the Prophet had given the Sherifs the faculty of "sight," and by it he knew that our luck was turning. This was comfort for them; my first instalment of good fortune came when in the west, without other food than my dagger, I got the box of the exploder opened and persuaded its electric gear to work properly once more.

We returned to our vigil by the wires, but nothing happened, and evening drew on, with a cutting gale squalls and beastliness, everybody full of grumbles. There was only a train; it was too wet to light a cooking fire; our only potential food was camel. Our meat did not tempt any one that night; and so our bodies served us to be sorrow.

All lay down on his belly, which pouting lowered the temperature by trying to sleep off his fever. I went down the line, mined up the explosive, and afterwards spent the night there alone by the singing telegraph wires, which kept me from sleep, so painful was the cold. Nothing came to us from the south or west during which broke well-looked even uglier than usual, and we waited for deaths of railways and wrecking by now. I climbed up to the main body while the early cold seared the railway. Then the day cleared a little. All awoke, greatly refreshed, and his new spirit cheered up. Hamed, the slave, produced some dates which he had kept under his clothes by his skin all night. They were nearly dry. We shaved down some blasting gelatine and with its fat flame did a little cooking, while the Sakhr hurriedly killed a mangy camel, the only spared of our riding-beasts, and began with entrenching tools to hack it into handy joints.

Just at that moment the watchman on the north cried a train. We left the fire and made a breathless race of the six hundred yards down hill to our old position. Round down hill to our old position. Round the bend, whistling its loudest, came the train, a splendid two-engined thing of twelve passenger coaches, travelling at top speed on the low-acting grade. I touched off under the first driving wheel of the first engine, but the explosion was locomotive. It was a shattering terrific. The ground spouted black; ly lime my face and I was semi-spinning helplessly. Recovering myself, I bolted towards the upper valley, whence the Arabs were now shooting fast into the crowded coaches.

When the enemy began to return our fire, I found myself much between the two. All saw me fall, and thinking that I was dead [illegible] out, with Talal and about twenty men of his servants and the Beni Sakhr to the fight.

The train was badly derailed, with the lasting coaches hulled end to end at all angles, zigzagged along the track. One of them was a staff car, decorated with flags. In it [illegible] had been Mehmed Emad Pasha, commanding the 4th Army Corps, hurrying down to defend Jerusalem against Allenby.

We could see that our chances of carrying the train were small. There had been some four hundred men on board. These, [illegible] now recovered from the shock, were under-shelter and shooting hard at us.

Mifleh and Adhuh rejoined us on the hill, and asked if we were hurt. One of the Serahin told how he had led the first rush, while I lay knocked out beside the exploder, and had been killed near it. Then [illegible] above the rifle as proof that he was dead and that they had tried to save him. Adhuh said not a word, but leaped out of the gully, and raced towards it. We caught our breaths until our lungs hurt us, watching him; but the Turks seem to get on to him a minute later he was dragging a body behind the left-hand [illegible].

Mifleh went back to his mare, shouted and fired her down behind the train. Together they lifted the inert figure on to her withers and returned. The bullet had passed through Fahad's face, knocking out four teeth, and splitting the tongue. He had fallen unconscious, but had revived just before Adhuh reached him, and was trying on hands and knees, blundering blood, to follow away. He now recovered poise enough to cling to a saddle-bow, and they changed him for the first camel they found, and led him off at once.

The Turks, seeing us so quiet, began to advance up the slope. We let them come half-way, and then poured in volleys, which killed seven or eight and [illegible] others back. The ground about the train was strewn with dead, and the nearer coaches had been crowded; but they were [illegible] under the order of their Corps Commander, and under [illegible] to work round the [illegible] to outflank us.

We were now only about forty left, and obviously could no do good against them. So we ran in batches up the little stream-bed, to the hill-top. Each man there jumped on the nearest camel and made away at full speed eastward into the desert, for an hour. Then in safety we sorted our animals. The excellent Rahail, despite the ruling excitement, had brought off with him tied to his saddle-girth a huge haunch of camel slaughtered just as the train arrived. He gave us the mid-re part a pepper halt. Five miles farther on, in Wadi Dhuleil, there was a barren fig tree. I bought another mangy camel for extra meat, paid rewards, compensated the relatives of the killed, and gave primi-money for the sixty or seventy rifles we had taken. It was small booty, but not to be despised. Among Serahin, who had gone into the action without rifles, able only to throw unavailing stones had now two guns apiece.

That day we moved in Azarit, having a good welcome, and boasting much to forgive us—that we were victors.

The Druse Emir of Salkhad reached our old castle just before we did. He told us the rest of the history of the Emir Abd el Kader, the Algerian. After stealing away from us he had ridden straight to their village, and entered in triumph, the Arab flag displayed, and his servants horsemen cantering about him, firing joy-shots. The people were astonished, and the Turkish officials or protested that such doings were [illegible] to Abd el Kader, who, allowing in pomp on the divan, made a bombastic speech, stating that the Sherif now took over Jebel Druse through his agency, and all existing officials were confirmed in their appointments.

Next morning he made a second progress through his district. The suffering Governor complained [illegible] Abd el Kader drew his gold-mounted Mecca, and swore that with it he would cut off Pasha's head. Then the Druses reproved him, saying that such things should not be said in their house before his Excellency the Governor, and Kader called them whoreseons, Ingle's accidents, sons of a bitch, profiteering cuckolds and pigs, letting [illegible] escape to the room-full. The Druses took it very ill, and [illegible] raging out of the house and mounted, shouting that when he stamped his foot all Jebel Druse would rise on his side.

With seven servants, he spurred down the road to Deras Station. From the ridge at sunset we looked back for an instant upon the northern plain, as it sank away from us gayly, save that here and there slowed specks or great splashes of crimson fire, the reflection of the dying sun in shallow pools of rain-water on the flats. These eyes of a dripping blood redness were so much more vivid than the plain that they carried our sight miles into the haze, and seemed to hang detached in the distant sky, lifted on [illegible] mirage.

ONTARIO MAYORS MAY BE CALLED

Mayor Simpson Says Only 16 Jobs Open, 10,000 Unemployed

Toronto, July 26 (CP) — Mayor Simpson, of Toronto today communicated with Mayor Wemigs of London, President of the Ontario Mayors' Association, asking the Association to consider the significance of Premier Hepburn's order cutting unemployed single men from relief rolls.

Orders from the Provincial government to take jobless single men between the ages of 18 and 60 from relief at the end of this month were received by the Toronto Mayor, he announced. He said it was decided unanimously by the Board of Control would accept the order.

While Mayor Simpson did not say so it was believed he requested Mayor Wemigs to call a meeting of Ontario Mayors to debate the relief question.

The government's order, Mayor Simpson said, requested the city to revise and review the situation regarding single women on relief with the possibility of also removing them.

The government order said: "Many complaints have been received of domestic help cannot be secured. You are authorized to take the necessary action. The relief lists must be purged of all employable persons for whom work is available."

Mayor Simpson remarked between 8,000 and 10,000 single unemployed in Toronto would be struck from the lists under the government order while there are only 16 applications for help from farmers on file in the Ontario Government Employment Bureau.

"In other words there are 16 jobs open on the farms for these 8,000 to 10,000 single unemployed," he asserted. "Where is the challenge to Premier Hepburn. He is asking us to strike these people off relief and on the other hand we are advised to purge the relief lists of employable people for whom work is available. And there are 16 jobs open on the farms."

Chuck Campbell Easy Winner in Single Sculls

Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 29 — (CP)—Although nothing big ever came of it, Canada has had Olympic rowing hopes many times only to see them fade away. Ever before the Berlin games these same hopes are arising, supported by fine performances at the 53rd Royal Canadian Henley regatta, which concluded here Saturday.

Results were designed to call attention to the revival of the next Olympiad, what with young Charlie Campbell of Toronto Argonauts strengthened in his hold on North American single sculling supremacy and Bob Hunter's, Hamilton Leanders winning the eights for the third consecutive year.

From an Olympic standpoint these were the major events of the three-day regatta. Campbell, winner of the British Empire single sculling crown Saturday, faced a serious challenge from his chum-mate, Johnny Coulon, and rushed through with a three-lengths victory, that was as impressive as it was decisive.

While Coulon remains the man most to be feared by Campbell, the real situation today is that young Chuck has no reason to fear any sculler until he gets to another continent against unknown opposition.

Hamilton's Great Win

The crowd of 5,000 got its greatest thrill when Hamilton's eight-oared crew, made up largely of the same pullers Hunter took to the 1932 Olympic games in Los Angeles, beat off a desperate closing rush of New York's Columbia Club, United States National champions.

The struggle between the U.S. and Canadian titleholders provided Henley with its highlight. The margin of victory for Leanders was half a length—a scant margin as the New Yorkers raced into the finish line at a clip of 42 strokes to the minute.

Argonauts easily captured the Grand Challenge Cup, annually for 109 points to 37 for Buffalo Westsides, winners since 1932. Vesitides placed second in the standing with Vancouver third, Johnny Dickinson and Monty Fuller collected all 35 points for the British Columbia club.

Butler won the junior and senior 140-pound singles and teamed with Dickson to win the junior and senior 140-pound doubles. Only when they tried to make it three straight in the senior doubles did the Westsiders fall. Chuck Campbell and his field of Argos won this race.

Letters to the Editor

DATE OF ELECTIONS

Belleville, July 27, 1935.

To the Editor:

Mention has been made in the press that the coming Dominion elections might be held on the 23rd of September, next. This was no doubt, for the purpose of ascertaining what the public thought of this date. The month of June is a good date.

On the 23rd of September, 1787, a famous Canadian Treaty was made, by which the Indians relenquished title to the lands from the waters of the Bay of Quinte to the River Etobicoke, which affected all that territory from Kingston to west of Toronto and therefore the powerful method by which Canadians dealt with the Indians. The treaty was made at the Carrying Place, a narrow neck of land between the headwaters of the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario. But for this treaty, Toronto might have been a collection of wigwams.

This important event will be commemorated by a celebration at the Carrying Place, commencing at 2 p.m. in the afternoon, Standard Time. Representatives of the cities of Toronto, Oshawa, Belleville, Kingston, and the mayors of the various towns and wardens of the various counties in the district are expected to be present.

The Indians are planning to be present in full war dress, descendants of their landing after the Revolutionary War, and their participation in the treaty. The Ladies' Aid of the Anglican Church at the Carrying Place are planning to serve refreshments in the Parish Hall. Members of the United Empire Loyalists' Association, pioneers, York Pioneers, Daughters of the American Revolution, Canadian and other organizations are also expected to be present. The Belleville Band will be at hidden to the elections.

It is suggested that every person use his or her influence to have some other date selected. Long and pleasant days in June could live by bread alone was exploded. "A little consideration now and then is good for the wisest men."

This celebration will help to turn back the dial of time to the period the poet had in mind.

"When some were for the party and all were for the state,
When the rich man helped the poor and the poor man helped the great
When gentlemen were gentlemen in the brave days of old."

The Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada has erected a cairn at the Carrying Place on the site of this important event.

Garden of Eden

Eve brought Adam out of Eden, but what a pleasant place she has made the earth to live in since! We're thinking particularly of her modern incarnation—the twentieth-century Eve who is so skilled in the new art of living . . . She knows how to make a home delightful, how to cook, how to bring up a family, and how to entertain. All these things she does well, and with such ease and poise that her husband marvels.

Her method is no secret. She will tell you herself that she reads the advertisements. From them she learns how to brighten her living-room with sunfast draperies, and how to buy good, wholesome foods for her family. Advertisements of a magnificent piano prompted her to give her children a musical education. Her guests enjoy her taste in ginger ales. And, she has time to think of herself and to choose fine toiletries that accent her charm.

Read the advertisements in this newspaper, regularly! Their guidance will help to make you another Eve in a new Eden!

RACIAL PRINCIPLE ARRESTS MADE

Seven Jews And Six Gentile Women Held in Halle, Germany

By GUENTHER O. SCHAFF)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Berlin, July 30 (AP)—Seven Jews and six Gentile women were arrested in Halle today for an alleged "violation of racial principles" and there were other indications Germany's attempt to curb anti-semitic activity it still continues in Germany.

The latest crackdown Hitler's troubles seems to be getting his party officers into difficulties. It became apparent local burgomasters and police officials often take steps into their own incompetence.

The burgomaster of Quedlinburg decreed Jews may not enter local museums or cathedrals. As this ban is directed against all Jews, even those of foreign nationality, the decree flies in the face of federal orders to treat foreigners courteously.

The Nazis put out a police communique from Recklinghausen which said ten men belonging to a congregation of "The Brothers of Mercy" had been arrested as "Maria Grunefeld, a 19-year-old feeble-minded and epileptic boys, on charges of immoral practices. The communique intimated four additional institutions of the congregation will be similarly charged.

The crime referred to is that of the Jew, Alberta Hirschland, recently sentenced to 102 years' penitentiary for allegedly having disgraced 100 non-Jewish girls who attended the business College which he directed.

HALL "AMAZED" AT FINDINGS OF THE COMMISSION

Requests He be Tried For Perjury in Evidence

WRITES MINISTER

Asks That Jury Owe No Debt to The Government

Toronto, July 30 (CP)—Request from Dr. A. G. Hall that he be tried for perjury in connection with evidence given before a Royal Commission was on the way to Hon. the Minister of Justice, today.

Dr. Hall, a witness before Judge E. J. Daly's Commission investigating charges by Miss Agnes Macphail, M.P., of corruption in J. D. Dawson had used abusive and profane language concerning her, expressed "amazement" at the Commission's findings in his letter to the Minister of Justice.

Judge Daly had exonerated the inspector in his report and had branded testimony by Dr. Hall as "false."

Dr. Hall said he was aware there was no appeal from the findings of a Royal Commission but asked the Justice Minister he be tried for perjury as a means of "testing" the Commissioner's findings.

Letter Sent

In his letter to the Minister, Dr. Hall said he had "read the published reports of the judge's report with complete amazement for it seems impossible a report could be issued which flatly ignores the evidence, evidence which clearly disproves the statements made in my affidavit read to the House of Commons on March 30 last."

In an appeal to the Minister from the findings, Dr. Hall suggested Chesamcok as the report declared at least one portion of my testimony—and that the most vital part —was false, and that I be tried for perjury."

"Such a trial I am prepared to take before a jury, one upon which there might serve not a few owe no debt in gratitude to your Government of the day or who would not be subject to the wishes of high officers of either the penitentiary branch or the department as a whole. Before such a jury conviction could be established on the evidence."

The letter claimed "the whole conduct of the (Royal Commission) inquiry from its very inception was that the interference of your department officers, who even sought to have concealed in letter the Commissioner to change a ruling some hours after it had gone on record, and which he agreed to on the concession of fairness to myself."

PEACEFUL TURN TO COUNCIL MEET HOPE OF NATIONS

Britain Asks Full-Dress Discussion, France Favors Concessions

MOSLEM SYMPATHY

France Reinforces Garrisons in French Somaliland

(By the Canadian Press)

Delegates of the Great Powers, including Italy, were converging on Geneva today for the critical session of the League Council to discuss the Italo-Abyssinian embroglio and there was still no reliable indication of just what developments might be expected.

It was learned Britain would seek a pledge from Italy to exhaust all peaceful avenues towards a solution of the dispute before it resorts to war and that Britain's attitude in the Council meet on the whole guarded. Otherwise Britain may defer discussion until the Council meets tomorrow afternoon.

French Urge Concessions

The French were understood to be ready to urge concessions by Ethiopia in order to avert a bloody conflict. Italy's delegates were under instructions to talk of nothing but arrival of the joint arbitration commission on the Ualual frontier incident.

London reports said native sentiment in India and Egypt was growing in favor of Ethiopians. Public at Addis Ababa it was insisted some of the recent skirmishing have gone to join the Ethiopians.

Britain's Stand Hits

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)

Geneva, July 30.—The League of Nations Council obtained today in its apparent program of speaking softly and moving gently in the impasse between Italy and Ethiopia.

League circles said Britain appeared to be the only member of the council likely to call for forceful action on the questions coming tomorrow.

Reports from Scandinavian states however, indicated those nations were following closely the League's handling of the dispute and were insistent it should protect the integrity of each member nation.

Any persistent temporizing in the face of Italian "aggression," League sources said, might lead to difficulties for the future existence of the League Assembly and possibly even to threats of new resignations.

Meanwhile, the special Council session around widespread hopes that Italy and Premier Mussolini for League of Nations affairs, is popularly said in the role of "peace man". Speculation mounted as to whether Eden would demand a complete investigation of the controversy, including a pledge Italy will withdraw from Ualual or whether he would be content with a revival of arbitration.

Paris, July 30 (AP)—The French government ordered reinforcements of 2,000 troops to French Somaliland today to ensure neutrality in the Italo-Ethiopian war between Italy and Ethiopia.

Authoritative sources said fear nationalistic sympathies for Ethiopia at Djibouti, French Somaliland might get out of hand, prompted the order.

Simultaneously, new orders were promulgated to strengthen France's Mediterranean defenses by changing the organization and distribution of troops manning the forts. Arrangements were completed for these changes when a special contingent of recruits joins the forces along the German border Sept. 1.

A battalion of Senegalese sharpshooters was sent to East Africa to reinforce troops already there.

Eden and Laval Meet

On today's program of French action, was a conference between the French Premier and Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs. The two diplomats were to leave together for Geneva.

The Premier gave his ministers little hope the League would be able to effect conciliation but said he thought it possible Emperor Haile Selassie would agree to some Italian control if he retains his throne and is spared political independence.

Sympathy With Ethiopia

London, July 30 (CP-Havas) Sympathy for Ethiopia's cause in the Italo-Abyssinian crisis is manifesting itself in Egypt and in India, it was reported today.

Moslems and Copts (Egyptian Christians) alike are organizing committees for the defence of Ethiopian independence. The Egyptian Gazette reported Mohammedan and Hindu merchants, many Egyptian and Turkish former army officers are offering their services to Emperor Haile Selassie.

The Egyptian grain market is being affected by "high-minded" patriotism of Egyptian merchants which have refused to sell wheat to Italy at unusual prices and have almost exhausted the supply. It is believed Egyptian dealers soon will have to import to meet heavy orders raising domestic prices still higher.

Fall Dress Debate

London, July 30 (AP) — Anthony Eden took off from Croydon air port at 8:30 a.m. today enroute to Geneva to seek an Italian pledge to explore every possible channel for a peaceful settlement of the Ethiopian controversy.

Britain's Minister for League of Nations Affairs intended otherwise to keep secret a full dress debate at the League of National Council which assembles there this afternoon. He predicted a "show down" which the British delegation was reported to have been instructed to avoid at all costs.

Early on this basis, it was understood, would the British government agree to postpone discussion of the main issues at the Council session tomorrow and accede to Italy's desire that the council action to a routine appointment of a committee of experts to the conciliation commission.

The Commission, however, if Italy had its way, would be empowered to discuss only minor frontier incidents. Authoritative British and French circles Mussolini was only playing for time and his willingness to renew direct negotiations with Ethiopia was intended simply to delay League action in the crisis until too late.

Little Better Treatment for Play Than That Given in New York

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 30 (CP Cable)— "Shaw simplicissimus" is unconquerable," Bernard Shaw's new play produced for the first time in London and at the Malvern festival last night receives little better treatment than it got from critics in New York.

Shaw himself, in a note in the festival booklet, refers to a certain New Yorker describing him as "a decrepit monkey throwing cocoanuts at a bewildered public." To which Shaw retorts, "the donkey no matter how fast he scampers can never overtake the carrot."

The News-Chronicle labels the play a fantastic farce below Shaw's usual level, redeemed only by the last act scourging the idle and wealthy.

"A bloodless hash with trimmings snappier than usual," says the Daily Telegraph and the Daily Herald describes the play as "a mental farce with a political twist—brilliantly—and as such, your money's worth."

The Manchester Guardian's critic says "Shaw has told us so often we are a pack of fools that much of this is not increased by repetition."

Yet all critics agree the audience that remained tolerantly loyal to Shaw and he received a great ovation.

Gov't. Will Decide Whether to Place Cost Back on Municipalities

HEPBURN VS SIMPSON

Who is a 'Single' Person is Subject of Query and Explanation

Toronto, July 30 (CP)—Premier Hepburn today told a deputation from Toronto Council the Ontario Government was going to decide whether the whole burden of the unemployables should not be put back on the municipalities where they belong.

Headed by Mayor Simpson the Toronto officials conferred with the Premier and members of the Cabinet regarding the Government's intention to remove single unemployed in hostels from relief rolls, effective August 1.

The Premier declared the Government had made no change in its intention of removing single men living in hostels from relief rolls and would not consider any other plan than to take them off relief. He added the Ontario Cabinet was considering also dealing with single men living in homes and with their families. "And we are considering whether we are paying Toronto more than is fair and

"Single" Explained

Reading the official definition of "single" after Mayor Simpson declared the Government's decision meant all single unemployed were being thrown off relief rolls, Mr. Hepburn quoted: "A single person is a man or woman who does not live in a municipality and who when special provision has to be made irrespective of family."

This, he was explained, meant transients and those living in hostels.

On July 22nd there were 2,000 single men on relief in Toronto, said the Premier.

"BIG TRAIN" TO "GO ON CARPET"

Future as Manager of The Cleveland Indians to be Decided

Cleveland, July 30 (AP)—Alva Bradley, President of the Cleveland baseball Club announced today that Walter Johnson's future as manager of the Indians would be determined at a week-end conference at Detroit.

Bradley said he advised Johnson last night he would meet him in Detroit Saturday to discuss the future with the club "and the welfare of the team in general."

The club President declined to discuss possible successors in the event Johnson's contract was not renewed.

"This doesn't mean it has definitely been decided to come to the parting of the ways with Walter," Bradley said.

"I have often wondered how Walter carried on the task of first all the tough luck he has had. I can't recall any manager overcoming the list of casualties in a single season that has fallen to his lot.

"It seems it has just been one darn thing after another with the result we are 9 1-2 games behind the leaders, and frankly I figure we would be on top or close to it at this stage of the race."

LABOR SHORTAGE HAMPERS HARVEST IN MANY PARTS

Badly Lodged Crops Make Cutting Tedious in West Ontario

POTATOES PLENTIFUL

Lambs Marketed at Seven Dollars Per Head

Toronto, July 30.—(CP)—Ontario farmers were in the midst of harvesting the largest hay and grain crops in 10 years this week but threshing in some districts was seriously hampered by the shortage of labor, the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture reported today.

In Western Ontario farmers of Bruce, Peel and Wellington counties hoped steady weather would hold as badly lodged grain made cutting tedious. Experienced farm hands were capable of up to $25 a month and board but farmers were willing to hire anyone to assist in harvesting.

A large part of the fall wheat hay, rye, barley and hay crops were cut in Southern Ontario last week and threshing had started in most localities. Fall wheat was reported fair, St. Catharines district but some rain fell in parts of the country which lodged spring grain, now ready to cut. Fall wheat came through unharmed and is in fine stook.

Tobacco harvesting in Norfolk County is expected to begin earlier this year and planting is already underway. There is a serious farm labor shortage in the district where farmers are offering $2.50 a day and board.

Harvesting Delayed

Rainfall in Central Ontario this week, the weekly crop report said, showed only signs of lack of moisture. New grass, however, plentiful with prices to growers around $10 a ton. Pastures in this district have also had different, but good effect. Most of the harvest and farm jobs are being done by locals.

Wet weather in Eastern Ontario delayed harvesting for the first part of the week and large areas were badly lodged by rain. In Frontenac County hay and oats were marketed in fairly large quantities at $7 a ton. Beef cattle are slightly stronger in price, ranging from $5 to $6 a cwt. Lambs, seven dollars. In Renfrew County caused considerable property loss. Hay and grain were made cutting at the present moment while the general rain was reported in Manitoulin district. Hay and grain crops ripened prematurely. The weekly crop report said: "Needed for all cereal crops unless moisture comes soon."

Seasonal work was hindered in Peterborough County where three inches of rain fell since June 1. Milk production was up and farmers were receiving a larger make this year than last.

Took Father's Place at 7 Years, Drove Team of Oxen in Fields

Jeremiah Bird Now 81, Tells How Serious Injury of Father Led Him to go to Work as Boy—"People Baby Selves Too Much Today," He Says.

STIRLING—Mr. Jeremiah (Jerry) Bird of Stirling, who celebrated his 81st birthday on Sunday, July 28th walked through his garden after the shower to observe the wonderful growth of the things he had planted in the rain a few weeks ago. In spite of the fact that he has worked strenuously at manual labour since he was seven years of age, this fine old gentleman of pioneer stock, born and raised in Huntingdon, still enjoys good health, good sight and rather hearing and still spends the greater part of each day at work in his garden, at his home on Church street. Mr. Bird is a keen observer of all the modern achievements and greatly interested in all the economic problems of the day. "People today", he said, "baby themselves too much, and have become too soft to face the hard difficulties met and overcome by the older ones."

"When only seven years old, Jerry" took his father's place, handling a team of oxen. His father suffered a serious injury and was unable to carry on the work. Jerry was scarce, so the father hobbled to the field and showed the boy how in driving the oxen. "The next thing I knew", Jerry said, "I was out to work for a neighbour for five pence a day and his keep. Since that time he has been a working man.

"Modern education," he said, (nodding toward the High School next door), "should include self-emphasise instruction in manual labour. To develop the mind through activity is very necessary, of course, and a fine thing. But to be able in addition to the Main Street Post Office which is expected to be finished within three months.

CHILD IS CAUSE OF MOTOR CRASH

Fortunately Child Was on Opposite Side of Car.

A rather peculiar motor accident occurred on the Cannifton Road late yesterday afternoon, when a motor car driven by Mrs. Ethel Davis, 3 Donald Street, collided with another automobile being driven in the opposite direction by Leo Pearson, 315 Charles Street, causing considerable damage to the latter vehicle.

According to the information given out by Officer Ivard, who investigated, the accident was caused by a five-year-old named Lawrence Comber, 198 Cannifton Road. It seems little Lawrence ran out from the curb and boarded Mrs. Davis' car by jumping on the running board as she was driving away from the curb. Mrs. Davis' attention was called to the presence of the little child and she endeavoured to stop the little fellow to jump off, when in some unknown manner her car swerved across the road and struck the oncoming Pearson vehicle, badly damaging its left side.

Fortunately the two cars came together on the opposite side to where Lawrence was hanging on to the side of the Davis car, he standing on the right running board of the automobile. The matter was amicably settled between the two motorists in regards to the damages.

Few Objections Raised To Cutting Off Single

Mayors Voice Opinions On Simpson's Criticism

QUESTION OF TAXES

By The Canadian Press

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's order to municipalities that able bodied jobless single men were to be cut off relief rolls Thursday brought few and scattered objections today from Ontario mayors. There was no tendency to fall in line behind Mayor Thomas Simpson of Toronto whose request for a special meeting of the Ontario Mayors' Association was refused.

Mayor Simpson addressed his request decisively to Mayor R. R. Wilson of Hamilton, Association President, and the Hamilton Chief Magistrate promptly rolled, declining to call such a meeting to discuss the Simpson order.

Brantford Viewed

Mayor W. M. Ryerson of Brantford was solidly behind the Toronto mayor in urging an association meeting.

"I do not agree with Mayor Wilson's action in declining to accede to the request of Mayor Simpson of Toronto that he call a meeting of the Association. I think there should be a meeting, not to air any grievances between individuals or to give vent to any preconceived opinions, but to ascertain just to what extent the municipalities are affected by Mr. Hepburn's order to cut all able-bodied single men off relief this Thursday.

"A conference of Mayors at this time could help to clarify matters a great deal. If the cut-off order is effective only for the harvest period the situation is not the best but if this policy is to be permanent or is to apply for any length of time, then the municipalities should know about it as they will be directly affected and will have to act accordingly."

Keeping Down Costs

Mayor A. W. Johnson of St. Thomas said he didn't think Mayor Simpson would be successful in getting Ontario Mayors to respond to a call to discuss a threatened cut. If a meeting he called, the St. Thomas Mayor said he would attend and would have no objection to any discussion of the relief problem, the matter of keeping down relief costs and endeavoring to "lighten the load" on taxpayers.

He said the Toronto mayor experiencing some trouble in getting unemployed men to take farm jobs because of low wages.

Woodstock's mayor, William J. MacArthur said he wasn't interpreting an any protest against the Hepburn order. "I think the move is a good one cutting single men off relief until after the harvest, at any rate," he remarked.

Woodstock Mayor

"I think, however, that the men should be placed on farms or assisted to obtain employment before they are actually cut off", Woodstock's problem has been practically solved, single jobless having been placed on farms, the only two drawing relief being ill.

The City Council in order to encourage married men has abandoned the cash relief plan temporarily, announcing at the same time that only cash the men may earn in harvesting will in no way affect their relief vouchers.

Mayor J. Albert Smith of Kitchener said Toronto's problem was not the problem of many other municipalities. "Mayor Simpson has a problem in that regard in Toronto," he said referring to the Relief order. "But that is not the problem of the smaller municipalities. Kitchener has only 175 single men on relief and that number is being reduced. Other smaller municipalities are in the same condition."

Sarnia's Problem

"What right have the mayors of this province to attempt to dictate to the Premier and the Ontario Government who were elected to govern the province?" demanded Mayor T. W. Major of Brockville, in reference to the Simpson request. "Mayor Wilson is the president of the Ontario Mayors' Association and fully competent to deal with the situation that has arisen."

Visiting at his farm home near St. Thomas, Premier Hepburn said he was not "losing any sleep" over Mayor Simpson's protest. Asked if he had any fear that his order will be the Toronto Mayor's attitude, he said: "None at all, let him rile".

LABATT ARREST

Still another arrest in the Labatt case was made when Jack Reid Bannon (Shoes), Detroit waterfront character, was taken into custody and is charged in London, Ont., with kidnapping and robbery with armed.

Mayor Simpson Wires Bennett

Toronto, July 29.— (CP)— Fear peaceful conditions in Toronto might end with the carrying out of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's order to cut single men off relief was expressed by Mayor James Simpson today in a telegram sent to Premier R. B. Bennett.

The telegram read: "Funds for direct relief are provided by municipal provincial and federal cooperation. Provincial government has by Order-in-Council directed us to eliminate all single men from 18 to 50 years of age from our relief rolls, irrespective of whether they can get employment or not. Toronto is doing its best to eliminate from its ranks those who refuse to work for unjustifiable reasons. I fear peaceful conditions here might not continue when provincial Order-in-Council goes into effect. Do you approve of federal grants being withdrawn for relief purposes from men between 18 and 60 cannot be supplied with work?"

'Boston Tea Party,' House Disturbed '162 Years After' by Cries of Taxes

Boston, July 29—(AP)—The old south meeting house, where the Boston tea party was conceived 162 years ago, again today was the site in the cry of "unfair" taxation. The Massachusetts minute women of 1936 gather there to protest publicly against President Roosevelt's new tax program.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird of Walpole who heads the recently organized Massachusetts Women has invited the women of Massachusetts, irrespective of party, to join in meeting "the immediate crisis confronting us."

Four Year Old Tapers Off Smoking When Protest Made by Reformers

West Paterson, N.J., July 29 (CP) "Mickey" Norman, four years old Sunday, has practically given up drinking and smoking. Mickey now likes cake and ice cream almost as much as cigarettes, stogies, corncob pipes, beer and hard liquor. Time was when he preferred tobacco and alcohol to sweetmeats but that was when Mickey was only three.

A year ago on his third birthday Mickey had his picture taken smoking a big cigar. The picture appeared in papers and letters of protest engulfed the Norman home from anti-Tobacco Leagues and Reform Leaders.

Then Mickey's grandmother, Mrs. Charles Norman, took a hand. Mickey began to taper off and now, Mrs. Norman says proudly, he only smokes on week ends and special occasions and hardly drinks at all.

LIQUOR PROFITS CONTROL BOARD INCREASE 47 P.C.

Lesser Consumption of Hard Spirits Aim of Board

EXPENSES LOWER

Net Profit From Nov. 1 to March 31 is $2,595,880

Toronto, July 30 — (CP)—Total profits of the Ontario Liquor Control Board were known today to be 47 percent higher than in 1934, the figure standing at $1,756,000 for the first quarter.

The figures were released yesterday by Commissioner E. O. Odette. Although liquor-store profits were down he said retrenchment in expenditures more than offset them.

Profits from the store sales plan were $900,000 less than for the corresponding period last year.

From the figures the Commissioner concluded that freer sale of liquor has not changed the province's lenient consumption of hard spirits. "And" he emphasized "that's the thing I was and am after."

Reductions in operating expenses constituted a good part of the profits. From Nov. 1, 1934, to March 31, 1935, operating expenses were cut $100,000 or approximately 11 per cents from the previous year's figures. In the first quarter of 1935 expenses went down at the rate of 21.1 percent. Mr. Odette attributed new purchases at more advantageous prices and new leases at better terms as other reasons for the March showing.

Total net profit for the period Nov. 1, 1934, to March 31, 1935— figured at $2,595,880. The Provincial Treasury also received $250,000 in individual permit payments which go direct to the treasury.

WOMAN STABBED BY UNKNOWN MAN

Attacked in Field on Outskirts of Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont., July 30—(CP)— While police sought her attacker, Mrs. Petrolla Okki, 38-year-old Polish woman, remained in a serious condition from a stab wound in the abdomen in the hospital today. The attack took place in a field in the east end of the city at a spot where there were no street lights.

Mrs. Okki's screams aroused the neighborhood. Only one house was in blocks and they assisted her to her sister's home nearly a mile away.

She was removed to the hospital later suffering from loss of blood and a transfusion was given her immediately. The wound some two inches in width penetrated through the outer wall of the stomach and pierced the liver. Neither the victim's husband or teen-aged son could advance any explanation or motive for the attack.

SEA LION IN LAKE IS ZOO FUGITIVE

Chicago, July 30.—That "sea monster" was here again today.

Bathers during the last week reported seeing the mysterious mammal, which took the name of Lake Michigan. Authorities were skeptical, but Ernest Freund said "poof". But Harold Keyes, a civilian employe of the United States Engineer's Office, came upon the "phantom" dozing on a raft a mile and one half off the shore of Cary Ind., and—anticipating doubting Thomases—snapped its picture.

Keyes' picture showed an aquatic animal which "sea monster" experts agreed was a sea lion. Finally on the pictures were external ears and a mane of coarse hair.

Authorities said the best guess was that a sea lion had escaped from zoo or menagerie.

Heavy police guards are protecting German liners at New York piers, with their signs, and at pital when hundreds of anti-Nazi demonstrators mobbed liner Bremen from threatened invasion following attempted riots that sent twenty-five to hospital, back rioters and bystanders caught in jam. Lower are demonstrators with their signs, and at right is Robert Rice, son of Elmer Rice, famous playwright, one of ten arrested.

Dog Takes Lift Seeking His Master

Lethbridge, Alta., July 30 (CP)— Lost in a wild stretch of country near here, a police dog solved a problem when he "hitched" a ride from a passing motorist and rode into town on the car-fender.

The local angler was motoring from a fishing trip when the dog bounded out of the bushes at the side of the road. He slowed down and the dog jumped on the fender and made himself comfortable, refusing to budge until the car arrived at Pincher Creek.

A few hours later the dog found its owner. It appears the owner lost the animal while fishing and the dog decided to hitch-hike home.

Bandits Slay 12 On Midnight Train

Tokio, July 30.—Manchoukuoan bandits held up the Hsingking-Tumen express last night and murdered eleven or twelve passengers, mostly Japanese, but included one Russian and four Manchoukuoans, believed mistaken for Japanese, the correspondent said. The bandit gang, numbering sixty or seventy, pulled spikes from the track about fifty miles east of Hsingking, partially derailing the night express.

When the train halted, they entered the coaches with drawn revolvers, deliberately sought out the Japanese passengers and shot them down in cold blood.

SANCTUARY INVADED

The iron heel of the despot and tyrant is evident in Germany in the interference in matters of religion. Officers are armed with warrants for the arrest of Catholic clergy who may criticize the Nazi regime, making the church subservient to the state even in matters of conscience. The attack on the Jewish population of Germany is well-known. And in the Hitler ideal of the totalitarian state Protestantism in Germany has either to become a mere appendage of the government, voiceless and spineless except under the authority of the Nazi. Fortunately men of these three religious denominations will not be repressed.

Supression of religious freedom seems the only hope of the Nazis for freedom of speech and of opinion which is most likely to be found in churches can be, they feel, the greatest foe of tyranny and absolutism founded on repression.

How long the German people of all religions will submit to this outrage on conscience remains to be shown. That they will not endure forever seems clear enough. Unfortunately the Nazis cannot see that uniformity and self-sufficiency are not the ideal and the means of righting unsatisfactory conditions but that freedom within the law and diversity of view are the means. Tyranny has the quality of shrinking and ever shrinking in its interests and its outlook until it is so confined that it is easily overthrown.

HE FINDS 3 FUNDAMENTALS

A United States Senator was challenged to state what he thinks constitutes the fundamentals which the world is most anxious to return to its recovery. Senator Tydings of Maryland bespoke a recovery by not running the government on borrowed money, taxing everything you get, by not wasting money, by feeding the unemployed, and spending as little unnecessarily as possible. That, he said, would be least burdensome when the time to pay it came. His third essential is "that we cannot increase the price of any article and increase the consumption at the same time. Fix the price of automobiles at $6,000 apiece and how many of the people who are now riding in automobiles would buy new ones?"

Rochester Democrat Chronicle says that while to some ears this may have the ring of the "horse and buggy age", it might well be tried as a starter.

RECOVERY BROADENS

The broadening of industrial operations, which during the week was in contrast to all exectations for this period, has been further extended and rapidly is outstripping all records of the last few years, according to a statement issued by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Instead of being forced to offer resistance to the awaited midsummer recession, the agency states, most divisions of trade are enabled to better their showing of a year ago without much effort.

Additional gains were registered for retail distribution during the week, in spite of the high temperatures which prevailed in nearly all parts of the country, the reports state. Fall buying at wholesale also made more headway, as retailers advanced their earlier budget estimates in view of the improved outlook.

The rise in industrial operations in the United States the agency adds, has been led by steel mills, in some districts operating at nearly double the rate at this time last year, as orders from the structural, railroad and oil divisions are complementing the enlarged volume from automotive, farm equipment and miscellaneous lines sources. Woolen mills have on hand orders which will insure operations at the current high level for two to four months. Shoe factories widened production and further increases were reported in the schedules of manufacturers of furniture, paints, hardware and building supplies.

ENGIMA AT 79

Bernard Shaw is 79 past and in his eightieth year is still writing. His work, no doubt, does not touch the wit of his prime, yet he has still the power of being the world's chief egoist and most amusing man old as he is. He is a bunch of contradictions, he lives on milk and they live on the people because the people love it, if anything, to be puzzled over contradictions.

BRITISHERS' HOMES

$27,817 new homes have been built in England and Wales in 1934, or at the rate of one for every minute and two-thirds or 40 every hour. Of the total eighty-seven per cent were constructed by private enterprise, a proof of the British's ability to save under stress and of his sanity in putting his money into homes.

DE VACA IN THE WILDERNESS

Eight years the Spanish knight, de Vaca, went,
Preserved most strangely from strange enemies,
With stumbling steps across our continent,
Immune from savage stealth and dread disease.
Ships sank beneath him, stormy seas spewed death;
But, stout of heart, he vanquished every ill,
For he was clad in armor wrought of faith
In God, in prayer, and in his own vast will.

It seemed another world he wandered through,
So alien was it to his glamorous Spain;
This land so cryptic, beautiful and new,
So rich in promise, yet so brimmed with pain.

And even in age de Vaca felt in dreams
The wild, strange lure of Texas plains and streams.

IN RESPONSE TO OUR INVITATION to Sidelight readers on Vacation to send in paragraphs reciting experiences out of the ordinary, exciting, humorous, or otherwise for the entertainment of the entire family of Sidelight readers we have received several contributions of which we think the following is entitled to first reading:

GEOGRAPHICAL LOCATION — Rossmore; domicile—a fawn-colored tent on a hundred-acre open stretch of pasture land. Wide views hummed with the activities of the Eagle Lumber Company and which accommodated the homes of nearly two thousand people, but which today is as desolate and barren as was primeval Carthage after the Romans had done their worst; object of the experiment—to discover how Abraham, Isaac and Jacob felt and meditated, while tending their flocks under similar conditions.

The scenery morning, noon and night is simply sublime and beyond the shadow of a doubt there is nothing finer in all the world. The sunrise over the Bay of Quinte, the sunset over the architectural grandeur of majestic Albert College, the myriads of stars by night, the silvery moon for lovers made, and last but by no means least, the varied nocturnal lights of beautiful Belleville, are all so awe inspiring that one exclaims with deep emotion: "How beautiful it must be in Heaven, if it is better than all this earthly paradise!"

Our tents were pitched in "Indian file" of old were similarly inspired and perhaps to a large extent their spiendid, strong characters were then formed?

Before we complete the Biblical picture, a large herd of Holstein cows and heifers are always within easy reach of the scene. They prefer to pay their social calls after midnight and, as there is no doorbell, they announce their waiting presence by becoming dangerously entangled in the ropes of the tent, to dangerously in fact that the writer's roof threatens to collapse. In haste the exemplifier of Abraham rushes out in night attire in a vain attempt to induce the sweet, amiable cows to go home and go to bed. They look at you with their big, soft, inquiring eyes as if to say: "Is this a game of hide and seek; fine, we are not a bit sleepy."

Perhaps the ancient prophets acquired patience, grace and endurance by a similar process?

But the worst had yet to come, a direct insult! A flock of cranes, with necks and legs of generous length, considered the shores of the Bay of Quinte where the writer is temporarily domiciled as their exclusive preserve. They viewed his arrival with dismay and distrust as if to say: "Confiscate our colony of crabs, but this is the guy we once saw nosing about in Florida like the dictator of Germany or Italy just come to town! If he remains here, we move unhesitatingly and permanently to Shannonville or Roblin's Mills." Has this sour, surly disposition anything to do with the crane's lean proportions?

Best wishes to all.

REVOLT IN THE DESERT
by T. E. LAWRENCE

We passed Bair long after dark, when only its latest tent-fires still shone. As we went we saw the stars mirrored in a valley-bottom, and were able to water our breakfast camel in a pool of yesterday's rain. After their drink we eased them for half an hour. This night journeying was hard on both men and animals. By day the camels are the victims of battles of their pads, and undulated over them; and the rider could swing his body to miss the jerk or a long stride: but by night everything was blunted, and the jerky rocked with shocks. I had a heavy bout of fever on me, which made me angry, so that I paid no attention to Rahail's appeals for rest. That young man had smuggled all of 70 kilometres by his abundant vigour, and by laughing at our weaknesses. At this time I was endeavouring to ride him out, showing no mercy. Before dawn he was blubbering with self-pity; but, lest I hear him.—

Dawn in Jefer came impercipibly. It brought with it a frost of sunlight, which left the earth unwashed, and deserved itself as a glittering blink against the eyes alone. Our shadow-line was so long and modified if that faint stain upon the soil below was cast by us or not. In the distance, Auda's camel-corps stirred, and stopped for a greeting. Then they went their dats, which do not provide us a relay of camels. We mounted again to get over the railway in the early light, but Rahail's past protest now. He rode beside me, white-faced, head down, and brought up only to outstay me, beginning to take a half pride in his illness.

Even had we started fair, he had the advantage anyhow in point of strength, and now I was nearly finished. Step by step I was forced to yield to a slow ache which consumed with my abating fever and left me empty-headed and weak, to close up the gate of my senses. I used to feel hot approaches to insensibility which had always been beyond my reach: but a delectable relief for one born so. I was amazed that nothing this side fainting would let his spirit go. Now I found myself dividing into parts. There was one which went on riding wisely, sparing or baiting every pace of the wearied camel. Another hovering above and to the right bent down curiously, and asked what the fool was doing. The flesh gave no answer for indeed, it was conscious only of a ruling impulse to keep on and on: but at third garrulous one talked and pondered, critical of the body's self-inflicted labour, and contemptuous of the three for its fervour.

The night passed in these mutual conversations. My unseeing eyes saw the dawn-pale from the head of the pass, below which that other part of my human lay out like sunlit map; and my parts debated that the struggle might be worthy, but that it could produce a rebirth of trouble. This spent body toiled on and on, and took no heed, indeed, rightly, for the divided nerves said nothing which I was not capable of hearing in cold blood; they were all my natives. Tireless, taught by some such argument, spilt up the soul. Had he gone on, to the furthest limit of exhaustion, he would have had his conceived regiment of thoughts and acts and readings ranked around him as separate entities, springing like vultures, the passing in their making of the common thing which gave me life.

Rahail collected me out of my dreams, and by petting the headstall and striking me, while he shouted and sang, got me to my knees. We were wandering toward the Turkish lines at Abu el Lissan. He was right, and to make a long story back to reach Beirs safely. The incident took the whole night, and only in chatting we rode out upon the Gea. Here Rahail left me, and I rode on the middle hour of the day in sleep, since by our slowness in the afternoon over Bair we had lost the possibility of reaching Akaba within the twenty-four hours.

We rode in the early afternoon: easier now and exchanging jests with the guard at the last entrenched evening crept down. When we got near Akaba Nesib, the second, found the sun veiled behind level bands of low clouds in the west, and enjoyed a rich twilight at the Hejaz soft. In him the mist stamped up gently from the sand, and conchatting we rode out upon the Gea. Here Rahail left me, and I rode on the middle hour of the day in sleep, since by our slowness in the afternoon over Bair we had lost the possibility of reaching Akaba within the twenty-four hours.

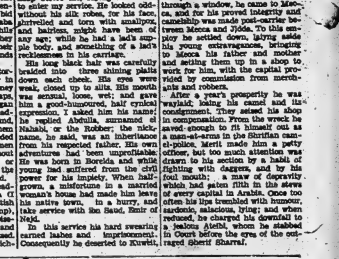
"PRODIGY" WORKS 19 HOURS DAILY



Forced by a consuming ambition to become a concert pianist, and to achieve great bearing as well, Catherine Stayton, 13, of Oakland, California followed a daily schedule of 19 hours of work, four hours of sleep and no play whatever, for almost two years. Her "workday" starts at midnight and ends at 7 p.m., when she retires to catch four hours of sleep. Her work is broken only by intervals of 12 minutes each, during which she takes her meals and becomes a member of the family to read history to her. Eleven hours of her days are devoted to piano practice. Besides long hours of musical practice, she claims to have memorized 600 classical selections. Here is the schedule of the young prodigy: Midnight to 2 a.m. piano practice; 2 a.m. to 3 a.m. Latin; 3 to 5 a.m., piano practice; 5 to 6 a.m., German; 6 to 6.15 a.m., breakfast; 6.15 to 8.15 a.m. piano practice; 8.15 to 8.15 a.m., physics; 8.15 to 11.15 a.m., harmony; 11.15 to 11.30 a.m., lunch; 11.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m., piano practice; 1.30 to 2.30 p.m., history; 2.30 to 3.30 p.m., French; 3.30 to 4.30 p.m., mathematics; 4.30 to 6.30 p.m., piano practice; 6.30 to 6.36 p.m., Greek; 6.30 to 6.45 p.m., mathematics; 6.45 to 7.30, English; 7.30 to 8 p.m., Bible study; 8 p.m. to midnight, sleep.

WOMAN ON RELIEF FACES CHARGE

Purchase of 4 Cars, 2 Motorcycles, Beer, Furniture, Charged

TORONTO, July 30— During the three years and some months she was on relief Mrs. Swannette Woyce "drew herself" to three automobiles a couple of motorcycles, about $400 worth of furniture and $40 worth of beer and ale, it was alleged by the Crown in Women's Police Court yesterday. Mrs. Woyce was charged with obtaining $295 of relief money by false pretenses.

The beer bill, said Mrs. Woyce, had been run up behalf of a male relative. The coverage had been ordered by the doctor because the relative had a "serious heart condition". Sums of money in her possession had been loaned by a friend until her five sons got jobs, she said.

"As for the cars, one had been purchased by the eldest son for $21.

"Another car cost $120, and it was for my son, who was in no condition to ride a bicycle," said Mrs. Woyce. The cars were not used for joy-riding; they were used by the boys only to hunt jobs or go to work."

Explaining her bank account, the woman said that her sources of income included her sons' salaries and money paid her by a roomer.

"Don't you realize, madam," said His Worship, "that the relief is not for the purpose of paying off debts —supplying cars by the hundred —or for the purpose of buying furniture."

"If the policy you adopted were followed throughout the Province, every one would be starting up business on public funds or supplying himself with the luxuries of life," concluded His Worship.

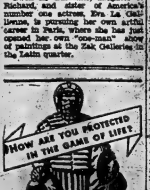
Changing her plea to guilty, Mrs. Woyce was remanded to July 31, for sentence.

JEWEL ROBBERY WELL EXECUTED

Necklace Worn by Marie Antoinette Believed Taken

New York, July 30.—(AP)— A ruby necklace which jewelers claimed once adorned the neck of Marie Antoinette was the loot of a band of thieves today after a daring jewel robbery.

The necklace valued at $10,000 was seized with other gems valued upwards from $40,000 during the rush hour hold up yesterday from the store of Nicolai Muhe on 57th avenue.



Two robbers found only tagged two clerks and within two minutes cleaned out the show windows and showcases. Frightened pedestrians hurried by th front. Traffic-jammed autos honked. Neither those nor the shrill blasts of the busy traffic whistle of a nearby policeman disturbed the efficiency of the robbers.

The Marie Antoinette necklace was made up of 35 flat-cut rubies of from one to two carats each, set in gold filigree with small diamonds and with a ruby and diamond clasp.

Points to Remember While Picking Berries in Bush

Never Go Far From The Road or Sound of The Horn

Overburdened huckleberry bushes in the hills and valleys through the northern part of the county will soon be calling their annual parties of berry pickers from the city and country, and once more news dear patches will contain accounts of people lost for days in some swampy or wooded wilderness, it is pointed out by William Hill, Ottawa, ex-professional picker.

"Each year it's the same. Each year car loads of parties go out with their little pails bound for a day's berry picking. Most of them come back, but some others don't. Perhaps they are found a day or two later miles from the spot they were last seen. Sometimes they are never found at all."

"There's nothing like a berry patch to turn you around in the woods or the hills. People enter it with and keep picking. They get so interested, that even the time is forgotten. As they pick they wander. The first thing they know they're a mile or more away from the spot they first started. Then they try to find their way back. Suddenly they realize they're lost. Then they get panic stricken. They'll run around in the woods and keep getting farther away all the time. If they sat down to think things out they'd be much farther ahead".

"Stay within sight of the road, or keep with the main party, when you're huckleberrying", adds Mr. Hill. "Know which is north and south, and the general direction from which you came. If you can't keep within sight of the road, stay at least within hearing of the horn on the car. A good many lost people have been given the right direction back to the machine just by being able to hear the car horn being operated by some member of the party."

Huckleberries, it was disclosed by a preliminary survey of some of the well known sections, were never as plentiful as they apparently will be in the county this year, it was stated. Favorable weather has aided their growth and the bushes are loaded.

POLICE COURT

In the absence from the city of Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., who is holding court in Napanee and Kingston today, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook, presided over today's local police court proceedings.

Only one case was presented, it being a domestic case arising out of a family argument, that resulted in an alleged assault. His Worship dismissed the accused person, and endeavoured to reconcile those implicated, without success. B. O. Dunnan, K.C., and R. D. Acourt were the solicitors concerned and assured His Worship an amicable conclusion might be arrived at providing a separation was forth coming. The matter was left in abeyance.

Wanted on a charge of fraud a man giving his name as J. H. Clarke of Kingston, was arrested on Front Street by Plainclothes Constable Izard and Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien. The warrant for Clarke's arrest was forwarded to Belleville from Napanee. The accused man will be turned over to the Napanee authorities this afternoon.

His Worship signed an information laid by a local Celestial, who claimed wages from a local restaurant proprietor, who was arraigned in Yesterday's court on a similar charge. The information will be executed this afternoon, local police officials stated at the conclusion of today's police court.

BANDITS ACTIVE IN MANCHOUKUO

Hold Up Express And Murder in Cold Blood

Tokyo, July 30—(AP)—Manchoukuan bandits were reported by the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency today to have held up the Hsinking-Tumen Express and slain a number of passengers.

Despatches said the bandits derailed the night express about 90 miles east of Hsinking, capital of the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchoukuo, last night and deliberately sought out Japanese passengers for death.

Of the 11 or 12 slain, the Rengo correspondent at Hsinking reported, one was a Russian and four Manchoukuans, apparently mistaken for Japanese. The passengers were reported to have been shot down in cold blood.

Sergeant Imamura of the Independent Guard Corps of the Kwantung (Japanese continental) army was the first victim of the bandits, the correspondent added, and after he had got the slayers burned his body and danced around it, shouting "down with the Japanese."

An unestimated number of persons were wounded, among them five Japanese and three Manchoukuans. Twelve guards were reported killed after attempting to beat off the bandits and Japanese and Manchoukuan troops gathered here in an effort to rescue the prisoners and capture the slayers.

Dives for Rudder Fails to Reappear

PORT HOPE, July 30.—Jumping from his motor launch to recover the rudder, Percy Emms, 36, of Bewdley, 10 miles north of here, sheered off in the current and drifted in Rice Lake shortly before dark last night. Dozens of boats thoroughly scoured the district and no trace of the youth could be found. Search parties will be resumed tomorrow morning to drag the area.

Early Monday afternoon, the victim, accompanied by at least three lady companions and G. Nantel and G. Peart of Port Hope, went out in Hamma's motor launch, the Red Wing, Off Pinsers Point, two miles east of Bewdley, the boat lost its rudder. The owner is stated to have dived overboard and failing to return to the surface, either hitting his head on the bottom of the boat or becoming lodged in the weeds.

Hamma conducted a refreshment booth at Bewdley and managed fishing parties. He knew the lake well and was an excellent swimmer. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. S. Emms of Bewdley and two sisters. He was a Mason.

Dancer Admits Slaying, Hurling Body in Swamp

Chicago July 30.—(AP)— Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty announced Mrs. Evelyn Smith, former burlesque dancer, confessed early today she alone killed Ervin Lang, cut off his legs and with the aid of her Chinese husband, Harry Jung, threw his body into a swamp near Hammond, Ind., July 6.

Dougherty said he and Police Lieut. Thomas Kelly secured the admission after eight hours of questioning during which Mrs. Smith was twice confronted by Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, mother-in-law of the slain man and alleged instigator of the slaying.

Mrs. Smith at first denied Mrs. Dunkel's purported story she had hired the former to kill Lang for a fee of $500 of which $100 was paid as a retainer. But, Dougherty said after Mrs. Smith was brought into the presence of her accuser for the second time she told what Dougherty said was a "complete confession."

Story Corroborated

The Attorney said the alleged confession corroborated almost completely the story Mrs. Dunkel told after Her arrest July 10, when she was alleged to have admitted hiring Mrs. Smith to slay her son-in-law because of jealousy of Lang's attentions to other women since the death of Mrs. Dunkel's daughter, Mallie, in 1934.

According to Dougherty Mrs. Smith said she and Mrs. Dunkel invited Long, 28-year-old grocery clerk, to Mrs. Smith's apartment the night of July 5 and after he became unconscious from drinking whiskey Mrs. Dunkel left. Then, Dougherty said the woman admitted, she strangled him with a rope.

She was then quoted by the officers as saying she left the apartment and purchased a hacksaw, returned and cut off the victim's legs. Mrs. Smith, Dougherty alleged, then called Jung, and together they placed the torso in a trunk and wrapped the legs in a blanket, put the load in Jung's car and drove to near Hammond and dropped the trunk, blanket and saw in a swamp.

AT THE 'BELLE

"Stranded"

Brent Co-starred in Excellent 2-Hit Program

The most dramatic, and the greatest in heart interest of all the Warner Bros. productions, "Stranded" is at the Belle today and Wednesday, matinee daily with lovely Evelyn Brent and George Brent in the leading roles.

"Stranded" is gripping drama, although there is a comedy relief here and there, but as that is humour in every walk of life.

It centres about the life of a score of the Travelers Aid, who thinks only in the terms of humanity. She is in love with a young engineer who is building the largest bridge in the world and who considers human beings only as cogs in an industrial machine.

The clash of characters is the strong point in the story, although the action at times is fast and as thrilling as the wildest melodrama.

Kay Francis in the role of the Travelers Aid worker does one of her greatest characterizations. George Brent is excellent as the unfeeling engineer. He seems to live the role and some of the scenes give him the best chance of his screen career.

Patricia Ellis is wonderful as the villainess of the production. This is her first experience as a film menace, and definitely lifts her out of ingenue roles.

Others in the cast who deserve special mention are Donald Wood, as a special worker, honest to love with Miss Francis; Barton MacLane, Robert Barrat, Joseph Crehan, William Harrigan, Hugh O'Neill, Frankie Darro, June Travis, Mae Busch and John Wray.

The picture is a Frank Borzage production, directed by him with his usual skill. The story, "Lady With a Badge," by Frank Wead and Ferdinand Reyher.

"White Cockatoo" Unique

There is enough thrilling action, humour, laughter and romance in "The White Cockatoo" the second sparkling hit picture on the Capitol program, to supply the plots for half a dozen ordinary film melodramas. The picture is based on the thrilling novel of Mignon G. Eberhart and is the first of this favorite author's mystery tales to reach the screen, Edwin C. Hill the vanished reporter who has introduced the latest World News events to be exhibited on the same program.

The feature attraction "Stranded" will commence daily at 2.40, 7.20 and 9.50 p.m. The added feature "The White Cockatoo" commences daily at 1.45 and 8.35 p.m. Performances commence daily at 2.30, 7.10, the last complete show commencing at 8.35 p.m.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Rigger and Crawford by Financial Service.

Stock buying generally is not of a weak variety, as the reduced brokers' loans and large outright buying suggest, but a slight increase in the emotional approach to stock purchases can be detected. Sentiment toward stocks has travelled a long way since mid-March and the extremes of pessimism were allowed full rein in Wall Street.

Majority opinion from New York is still optimistic as to the long-term outlook while urging interim caution. For instance, The Financial World states: "After their long advance, good prices seem entitled at least to a breathing spell and irregularity of course may develop at any time. But the healthy expansion which is being witnessed in the heavy goods industries appears to be a good indication that there is a long term basis for the current rise. Also the broadening movement still has much further time to run. Thus retention of well selected stocks continues to be fully justified, and the appearance of any significant price concessions from present levels would constitute advantageous purchasing opportunities."

In answer to a shareholder who was inquiring about the possibility of dividend payments, Mr. Sam Bronfman, president of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, intimated that the payment of dividends in the not too distant future was not at all improbable. In connection with the financial Service after the annual meeting of the Seagram interests with the National Distillers, Schenley and Distillers-Seagrams were doing the greater part of the quality liquor business in the United States. Although he would not give any figures in connection with the results of the past year, Mr. Bronfman stated that the report would be most satisfactory and that shareholders would be entirely pleased with the results obtained. With general business conditions improving gradually, and the purchasing power of the public increasing accordingly, Mr. Bronfman believes that the demand for the better grades of liquor should amply reflect such betterment.

BROOKMIRE COUNSELOR.—In connection with the subscription list which the stock market has experienced since March, the fact should not be lost sight of that earnings in numerous industries have fully kept pace with the advance. Bearing this in mind, and remembering that further substantial increase in business activity may well be anticipated by further credit expansion and continuance of the policy of keeping actively invested and promptly employing new funds remains advisable.

BARON'S (THE TRADER)—So long as the relationship between money and stock yields remains as it is, and the technical condition—which has helped by an extensive brokerage loans and a moderate renewal of European buying, continues, there is no potent influence making for broad-scale liquidation. With the earnings factor neutral, so to speak, for the time being, the psychological element, determined by the new business policies, promises to be the most vital speculative consideration. Further revival pushes ahead and becomes general in the public at large, and if the latter begins to return to the market when the secondary and more speculative issues should certainly lead the leadership heretofore held by standard investments. The most significant fact is that no long-term speculative structure yet exists to be lopped over.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto July 30 (CP)— Prices wilted slightly in spots under the effect of a thin summer demand on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange. An early sell-off in the New York Board also helped to discourage buying and there was little support in the market when the rest of the list was soft. Other base and gold and silver shares were slow.

Mining share prices were pared slightly in today's operations which were far from a state of activity. Trading was fairly certain toward the senior gold group for Hollinger and Kirkland Lake properties, about 1-4 for Dome. Other metal groups were marked slightly by small turnover.

Noranda was the most active of the metals, acting true to form at 58 while in the silvers Bear dropped 1-2 and Beaver 1-4 each.

Some of the secondary golds cased back. Sherritt touched 1.60, off 10 cents and Little Long Lac was holding around 4.40 this afternoon. Given 1-4 cent, Preston recovered up 4 cents to 2.34 on good turnover.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, July 30.—(CP) — Liquor shares divided the interest with the rest of the Toronto Exchange, Canadian and Cockshutt Plow in today's trading on the section of the Toronto Exchange. Gains up to 2 points registered in the buyers with Walkers prominent in the list while the Oils were steady to strong Profit taking developed toward the end of the day above the 16 mark. Net gains were outnumbered by losses on the Board at the close.

Canadian Industrial Share Market observed unmoved the sell-down of the New York Market today and held steady to firm in most issues, Dealings with trade quite active in the Liquor and Oil Groups and also in a few specialties including Fanny Farmer, Canada Cement and Dry. Price changes were showing by early afternoon.

In the early trade Distillers Seagrams crowded the 21 mark but forfeited the gain while Walkers common held an advance of 2-8 at 27 5-8. Reported settlement of the smuggling charge against Brewers and Distillers of Seattle released some buying orders in that issue and it retraced 1-2 cents at 1. The Oils were steady to strong and Ford A held unchanged at 28 1-4.

NEW YORK CLOSE—

New York, July 30 (AP).— The stock market sagged under a heavy profit taking wave today but came back later to cancel or reduce its losses.

Shares that managed to get up fractions to a point or more included Auburn, Boeing, United Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oils of N.J. and California and Texas Corp.

The rails and most of the utilities were narrow. Among the losers were American Can, American Telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Gas and Public Service of N.J. The late curb was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, July 30 (AP)—The Stock Market suffered a rather brisk shake-out today as traders cashed in some of their profits and the belief the recent advance had been a bit too rapid.

The reaction was attributed largely to technical factors. Orains were a trifle softer and seldom marked time.

International Nickel and Canadian Pacific were both a shade lower among Dominion stocks. On the curb, Aluminum Co. moved up a fraction, while Lake Shore was a trifle off. Government bonds were steady. Montreal funds continued unchanged at 99 7-8.

Shares of Auburn pushed up some two points and improvement was registered by Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Pacific Lighting.

Indians Break Losing Streak Defeating Tigers, Reducing Detroit's Lead Over Yankees

12 Straight Losses Before Able to Get Off Floor

CARDS LOSE

Pirates Take Game After St. Louis Rallies in Ninth

(By Edward J. Neil)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

All good things must come to an end somewhere and by the same token it's a long major league losing streak that has no turning.

So today Mickey Cochrane's Tigers, headed pell-mell toward their second straight American League pennant, were rallying around for a fresh start, their mad rush stopped for the moment by the one team, they had reason to know them, Cleveland Indians. And at the same time Indians, up off the floor for the first time in 13 days, in matches with the Bengals, moved on to Chicago, eyeing third and they don't have to play Detroit every day.

For five innings yesterday in one of the six scattered games in the major League General, Alvin Crowder maintained the spotted Tigers have lost by every Cleveland most of the season. Tigers were sticking steadily at Willis Hudlin and led 3 to 0.—Cleveland had gotten only three small hits.

The end had to come somewhere and it came right there as crowder started hitting Detroit batters, first with singles, doubles and finally Joe Vosmik's long home drive. In the sixth run of the sixth inning big Hudlin ended it as Joe was only trying to stretch the belt into a home run. That was all the Indians got but it was enough to beat the Tigers 7-5 and make things more livable for Manager Cochrane.

Tigers Great Rally

After nicking Hudlin for five single runs along the way, one of them a homer by Joe Vosmik, the Tigers put up a great fight in the ninth, filling the bases with one out on singles by Jo-Jo White and Cochrane and an intentional pass to Hank Greenberg. But Thornton (Lefty) Lee relieved Hudlin, fanned Owen with three pitches, and forced Bill Rogell to pop up foul.

The defeat gave Tigers a lead over the idle Yankees to 3 1-2 games.

While Joe romped home after St. Louis Browns 7-3 behind Lee Stine's three-hit pitching, Cards lost three out of four for the series.

The only game in the National League played were Pirates and the world champion Cardinals, who dropped their second game in the four game series to Pirates 3-2. Red Lucas far outpitched Wild Bill Hallahan but a home run by Pepper Martin in the fourth, a two base error on a fly ball by Paul Waner in the sixth, followed by Whitehead's single, made it close.

A cluster of three singles by Lloyd and Paul Waner and Arky Vaughan, plus a long fly, counted two for the Pirates in the first, while Lloyd Waner drove Padgett home with the winning run with in the third of another two base hit and three singles in the seventh.

Cards, like Tigers, made a gallant effort in the ninth, but with two on and two out Manager Charley Virgil Davis fouled out the ball game.

PRINTERS NOW IN THIRD HOLE

With a smashing 13 to 2 victory the Simpsons softball aggregation now only covered the league leading London Lunch nine, but pushed the league leaders off their perch and moved into sole possession of first place in the local intermediate softball league last night while the Ontario Intelligencer nine moved into third position, directly behind the "munchers," following their 25 to 17 win over the Loblaw squad the same loop.

The London Lunch nine were literally helpless before the deliveries of the imported pitcher, Bateman, used by the Simpsons, as he struck out 16 Lunchers and limited the Kikes-led aggregation to two safe runs. The losers used three hurlers in their early attempt to stop the barrage of hits coming from the Simpson bats as Hughes, Cole and Tobe all laboured in vain on the hilltop for the losers, while Bateman literally mowed the local down Bkz chaff before the wind. Simpsons blows hit by Bateman, Cole, Moon and Clarke. A six run outburst by the winners in the ninth decided the issue.

While all of this was going on the Ontario Intelligencer nine were making merry at the expense of the Printers to the tune of 25 to 17 on the Yeomans Street diamond. The game proved a free hitting orgy with both teams hitting profusely throughout. Harris hurled the entire games for the Printers, while Fisher and Quigley laboured in vain for the "proceeds" nine. An eight run splurge in the initial frame gave the "Intelligencers" an advantage they never relinquished, as their gang mounted their score by bagging seven runs in the fourth. Last night's Mercantile softball games resulted in a drastic change in the league standing with the Simpson nine now leading the league, London Lunch second and the Printers' perched in third position.

The lineups for last night's games:
Printers—Harris, Hinchey; Fisher, White, Carlejoy, Duval, Blair, Thompson, Hartigan and Miles.
Ontario Intelligencer: Lunberg, Guyer, Oliphant, Canning, Harris, Ling, Philp, Doyle, Kemp.

RADIOS HELD TO TIE SCORE BY PICTONITES

Three Hurlers Used For Three Innings Each

DIAMOND BAD

Errors Play Part in Nearly All The Runs Scored

Presenting a make-shift team on the field the Belleville Beverly-Warner seniors battled the Picton intermediates to a 7-7 tie in a nine-innings exhibition baseball game played in Picton last evening, the game being terminated on account of darkness by the officials in the ninth inning. Each team procured a free hitting one with the honeyeaters getting the pellet for a total of 16 safeties, while the local senior club only collected eight safe hits from the combined pitching efforts of Church and Bishop, who toiled on the mound for the league. Local Nuts used three local roundsmen, starting with Alex Weir, then resorting to Bud Wilkins and finally using Jack "Chief" Williams for the final three frames.

The locals opened the scoring early in the initial frame, when they scored three runs on an equal number of hits, coupled with two miscues by the locals. They added one run in the fourth, fifth and ninth to come from behind and tie the count. The Belleville nine got six of their seven runs in the fourth inning, when the locals batted around the list and ran bases like wooden horses traversing a merry-go-round. Only one out was made, when Ellsworth Ellis was caught napping off first base. Errors aplenty were injected into the pastime, the Picton playing field being rough and uneven in both the infield and the outer garden. The game was played in practice purposes by both clubs in preparation for the league double header to be played in Belleville on Wednesday afternoon, when the Picton and Belleville intermediates will be followed by the regular C.O.B.L. game between the Peterboro and Belleville clubs.

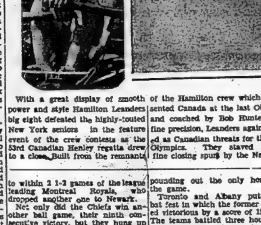
TORONTO USES THREE HURLERS

Defeat Albany 15-12, Knocking Out 19 Safe Hits

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse Chiefs continued their winning ways last night moving up to within 2 1-2 games of the league leading Montreal Royals, who dropped another one to Newark.

Not only did the Chiefs win another ball game, their ninth consecutive victory, but they hung up another shutout behind the basketadalical but nevertheless effective pitching of Flint Rhem and Rhem allowed Buffalo six hows but they were well spaced and he had the situation under control at all times. Chiefs reached Ken Ash, Buffalo's ace flinger, for nine safe blows, bunching three in the opening frame, three more in the third and two in the fourth.



In taking the league leaders into camp Stewart collected 10 hits off Ray Fritz, five of them for extra bases. The score was 5-1.

Howard LaFlamme, right hander, went the entire route for the Bears, allowing eight scattered singles and over senior champions of United States to win the race. View of the finishing sprints is shown above. Meanwhile Charlie "Chuck" Campbell of Toronto, retained his Canadian singles sculling honors by defeating the club-mate Johnny Coulon easily in the last half of the pounding out the only homer of the game.

Toronto and Albany put on a fast pace in which the former emerged victorious by a score of 15 to 12. The teams batted three hours and two minutes in the scoring spree and eight pitchers saw service, the Senators using five and the Leafs three. All of them were scored on.

The Leafs got 19 hits and the Senators 13.

TWO RECORDS BROKEN

Lindsay, Ont., July 30 (CP)—George Danzig, publisher of the Roumanian News, Cleveland, belayding at Lumge Haven, Sturgeon Lake, broke the season's record for large bugs and bass on the second day when Sunday he landed a 20¾ pound muskie and a 6¼ pound black bass.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

It seems as though some people are never satisfied. For some time past numerous baseball fans throughout the community have been repeatedly asking for a first-class baseball game. Although the Intermediate O.B.A. league is the only baseball organization in the B.A.B.A. west one further and are not only angling for a game, but threatening to put on an interstellic league game to boot, all for the same price of admission. Before going to all these ends a few local fans want to know why they're not having the senior game first? Some people are never satisfied, even when the Argonauts are loosed right into their laps.

Unless there are some drastic changes in the schedule of the meeting for the Peterboro-Belleville game—Bill Callestine and Jack "Chief" Williams will be the opposing battlers. Just whether Coach Knotty Lee will be included in the Leafs' pitching contingent or not remains to be seen however, as President Hugh Cassidy said and rightly so, that he disagrees during Saturday's game and the fat way in the fire. Incidentally we hear that there is no love lost between Lee and Cassidy since the Kingston club also, all of which goes to show it does not sometimes pay to be too outspoken in regard to on one club. Baseball players can usually be depended upon to be equally as temperamental as they are stars at times, but for once we have known to come down off their high horses just as fast as they climbed aboard, leading to predict that Coach Knotty Lee will be here with the "Sin Horns" on Wednesday afternoon.

There is some little controversy being raised between the Oshawa and Belleville clubs in relation to the playing of the postponed game on Aug. 5th. It is hardly necessary day that game was ever postponed. At any rate it seems the Radios are the ones who are burned with the Oshawa nine here oh Civic Holiday, but that the Radio Brass are not called upon to make-two trips, they naturally should not expect two guarantees of $35.00 each as per league arrangements. If the Radios are willing they are entitled to their expense money for both trips, President Charlie Mudget announced the game would be played on Thursday Aug. 8th as a twilight game, which is the date previously submitted by the Oshawa executive as a possible date for the re-play.

A few upsets were registered in local softball circles last evening in both the Senior and Mercantile Leagues. To start off Geo. Kitay Limited's team of stars were beaten out of first place in the Mercantile loop, when they were defeated by the slants of Ir. Bateman, the Sidney imported pitcher used by the Simpson nine in an effort to interfere their position by a clean-cut victory over the Loblaws and we now find the Simpsons holding down the top position of the Mercantile loop race. Incidentally there is many a red face on the London Lunch team this morning and also considerable talk being heard among the other clubs, in relationship to the above defeated and imported pitcher, L. Bateman, as many ardent baseball followers are floating around town to the effect that "if one team can import players at this stage of the game, well we'll bring in a whole team while others are shouting we'll show 'em, we'll use whatever players we wish to" no matter from what angle the fans look at it, there is still plenty of talk going on about player Bateman and after all that's the answer to any peeving organization....get the players squabbling and the fans talking. Looks as though Young Canadas and St. Pauls pulled a faux pas on the Aleanites.

With time on their hands and just marking time until Wednesday, the Stewart-Warners took a jaunt over to Picton, where evening did not a handful of the villagers a thrill by playing the Doyle-Church aggregation a seven-all tie game. What the actual gained we cannot say but it is no secret, that the game proved a total financial loss to both organizations as the local gate take on in was in the neighborhood of $1[illegible]. Manager Barry Doyle gave the Radios $20.00 for the trip, which did not defray the locals' expenses, thereby causing both clubs to lose money on the day's outing. Both clubs wanted a practice game, however, so perhaps the financial loss can be balanced with the desired practice acquired, however. Coach Mills tossed out a patched up team and even injected himself into the line-up and did the receiving for four innings. What was in there it took time off long enough to collect two hits out of three official times at bat in local circles of the day. It was a good outing and doubtlessly will serve its purpose, that being to relieve the minds of the Radios until their game versus the Petes on Wednesday.

Seeing ourselves as others see us, because here's what the Peterboro scribe says in relationship to Saturday's game:

Because of a hip early ball game, Belleville's team is no less from the point of view. Not counting fight to it. Although you've got to give the Bellevonians credit for keeping trying all the way—more than Oshawa did in their similar encounter here one week ago. The Lee crew leaked freely in the field while Belleville bested them in every department. Lee was a tough day for pitchers, both sides, using two and some of them shewing smack. Chief Williams was batted in the showers early, the first time he has been knocked from the box this season. He didn't look good at all. And the doctor said Bill Wilkinson showed improvement. With three hefts in one game that keeps up is a new record several times over.

While the baseballers are baseball and golfers are in the rough, the pugs, racers are to be holding sway on Victoria Park on Wednesday just the same as ever, they assure us.

YOUNG CANADAS, ST. PAULS WIN

'Bunt' Miller of Canadas Limits Redmersville to One Hit

Young Canadas and St. Pauls A.C. advanced in the local senior softball race last evening as the former downed the Redmersville entry 3 to 1 while the Foster Ward crew bettered their standing by defeating the Aleanites 14 tb 6, the Young Canadas defeating the Redmersville nine on their home diamond, while the Aleanite reverse was taken at Central Park. The victories elevate the winners into sole possession of second place in the league standing, while the Aleanites are left in a bad fourth position standing.

Behind the stellar pitching of Chuck Barriage the St. Pauls A.C. pounded out a one-sided 18 to 4 victory over the Aleanites at Central Park on Sidley lapboard in vain, on the hilltop for the losers. Barriage "bit" his mates for 18 hits well scattered, while the Foster Ward nine netted a total of 14 hits from the deliveries of Sidley. The Aleanites opened their scoring collection of four runs in the first inning, following which Barriage, completely subdued by Barriage, completely subdued by Barriage. An eight run splurge by the St. Pauls A. C. put the game in the decided advantage in the fifth.

Young Canadas Win

With their ace hurler, Bunt Miller, in true metals the local Young Canadas continued their triumphant march towards the leadership of the local Senior softball loop, when they advanced into second place in the league by virtue of a 3 to 1 victory over the Redmersville squad on the latter's diamond last evening. Miller was in rare form and barely a ball passed the softball's ball of fame when he limited the homesters to one small hit, that secured for the latter registered by the Redmersville nine. Miller was in rare form and the purple his perfected game, the homesters being retired in order in every inning except the second, fourth and seventh, when they managed to get the ball rubbed the local hurler of a pitcher's cream.

Besides hurling good ball Miller helped his team to victory with a double and a timely single while all the local boys connected for singles, Ford, Frank Barnes, Andrew singled as and a double lead all hitters of the day. An interesting softball game will be played at Central Park tonight, when the league leading Canadas clash with the third place Alemites.

Wild Horse Runs Again

PEPPER MARTIN . . . the "wild horse" is wild again.

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports

The Wild Horse of the Osage, as the press box dubbed John Leonard (Pepper) Martin in the world series a few years back, is snorting again.

Helping to pace the galloping Cardinals in their furious dash after the Jittery Giants and now the Chicago Cubs, Pepper has been pounding the ball near the .340 figure.

The Moniker Fits

The nickname is particularly appropriate. Martin, for long periods goes along peaceably with the rest of the pack, content to grab quickly in baseball pastures. Then suddenly, like a scalt cat, he springs into blazing life, becoming for the time a terror at the bat and on the base trails.

Before the world series of 1931 he was a run-of-the-mill ball player, but in the seven games with the Athletics he wrought an unforgettable picture in baseball's album with his daffy base-running and .500 hitting.

In 1932 he lapsed into mediocrity. There were signs of the old life in a 1933 when he led the league in runs with 122 and stolen bases with 26. Last year he romped again, stealing 26 bases, and, though he hit only .298, his world series batting mark of .355 helped materially in the Cards' victory. Like the rest of his mates, Dizzy Dean, Medwick, he was eclipsed by the Beast.

Stars as Pitcher

Martin is 31, born in Temple, Okla., Feb. 29, 1904. He grew to five feet nine and one-half inches, with plenty of power in his broad shoulders. He was 19 years old and a pitcher when he started a long career in the minors at Ardmore, Oklahoma, scene of the Dean Cardinals, picked up his trail at Greenville, in the East Texas league in 1924. Stops along the way in eight years of league ball before he reached the Cardinals to stay were Fort Smith, Houston, Syracuse and Rochester.

Martin's nationality is Irish and Dutch. He married Ruby Alyne Pope of Oklahoma City in 1927, and has two daughters. During the winters he makes his home at Oklahoma City, he hunts, and spends long evenings in his workshop where he turns out clocks and furniture—in a strange hobby for a "wild horse."

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

The air was unusually close and oppressive. Sonia felt as listless as ever allowed herself to feel. There was something ominous in the gathering storm; she did not know what the lightning would reveal to her before the night was out. Ahead of her was the unknown.

She was approaching the big adventure; the greatest in life. Wealth position . . . everything that could be wished for. Security. Marriage. Only one thing was lacking—that knight across her. Did it matter so attractive and marvelous as it had a week ago? Did she still hear the wheels of the train would reverse and run her back to Scotland—and the east?

She laughed, gave herself a little shake, and rose.

Whatever's ahead of me, I'm going through with it," she said. Never turned my back on anything yet.

Sonia stepped across and glanced herself in the little strip of mirror below the baggage-rack, straightening her hat and the neat waves of dark bronzed hair over her ears with a deft touch. She was alone in the corridor compartment just then, and it was a marvelous face that looked at her from the glass.

A perfect oval, nothing classic about it, but modern and vivid. An adorable nose that lifted back ever so lightly from a firm passionate little mouth and a delicately rounded chin. Dark hazel eyes, with little gold flecks in a rare light or glass; eyes that looked—at whatever was before them with humour and also unabashed courage.

It was not surprising that Banister Cosse had fallen for her. He was one of many; it happened that all of them had been poor. She was poor herself; she knew men as only girls thrown on her own resources can know them and no man had ever stirred her deeply —until just a short week ago.

That was finished—to be thrust behind and forgotten. The train slowed with a grinding of brakes.

"King's Rest!"

She stepped out on the dark platform of the little station; the only passenger to alight. Sonia held up her ringer to the solitary porter who was loafing along the platform and galvanized him into life; in a few minutes he had her baggage out, a steamer trunk and a long dress-case.

As she glanced round, wondering at the desolation of the place, while a distant thunder-clap echoed along the hills like a ruffle of drums, a motor-car swept up, dark uniform with silver buttons and a chauffeur touched his cap and smiled.

"Lady Miss Rose Mary, Madam? For the fraction of a second he paused, as for the first time he saw Sonia's face. But he valued to that from all conditions of men. "Mr. Cooke's car is waiting."

"How far to the house?" asked Sonia, accompanying him.

"Few minutes' drive, Madam. The baggage-car will bring your things."

They did things well at Mr's Mim. She was ushered into a superb limousine with deep cushions and fragrant flowers in silver vases, rooms in a silver-gilt vase; a car that sped away as silently as a thing in a dream.

Sonia sank back with eyes half-closed and a sigh of content. After all this was the life to which she had been born. For her that little hill had collapsed and faded out when she was seventeen. Since then, four years of struggle with no one but herself to depend on. A struggle foolishly faced, never afraid to try fresh ground and new scenes, but seldom anything other than a mere living and cheap clothes. The burden of fatherless days, the sad end of men a girl with her looks was bound to be up against, working for precarious jobs. Bannister Cosse had rescued her from all that.

It struck her, as the car rolled up hill, how deserted the neighborhood seemed. Not a house, not even a cabin or a cottage by the way. That is common enough in Scotland, for tricts. But she was used to crowded London; and the Atlantic liner had seemed to her as lonely as this.

Suddenly, as the car neared the park gates in the glare of the headlights, she saw a black figure standing motionless against the hedge away in front. As they slid past, she caught a glimpse of the dark sinister face and a pair of bright watchful eyes half hidden under a childish cap.

The briefest glimpse, yet it flashed a danger signal to Sonia's brain and set her nerves tingling. She knew that she was well. It carried her back instantly to the "Armenia"—and Brian Chalmers.

Her hands clenched in her lap, and she drew in her breath as Sonia closed her eyes and thought. It was impossible—an absurd form of fatigue. She was seeing things that had no existence—the man couldn't be here.

Anyway, it was no use worrying. She was in the hands of fate; she would face whatever lay in front of her.

The car halted before tall iron gates, that swung open and closed behind it with a clang that seemed to bid defiance to the outside world. A shadow-like figure sat in a windmill before the house, the chauffeur opened the door and Sonia stepped out.

She paused, staring up at the front of the building. It seemed something unlike—vast black mass with lights and impressive as a dream castle, but dark as the pit. For an instant a shudder of fear passed over her as she looked at herself in the glass of the window and—turned.

The next moment it was aided into blackness.

In the glow it looked to her curiously sinister and forbidding. A ghastly thrill of uneasiness ran through her; she shook the feeling off with an effort, and laughed.

"Childish fancies to the Park Tower came!" said Sonia as she mounted the steps and the great swing doors opened to a blaze of light; the bulky figure of Selby stood on the porch, with a respectful smile of welcome.

For a moment the light and warmth dazzled her, in contrast to the gloom outside. The vast hall was a marvel of beauty, stretching up to a vaulted ceiling of oak. The floor was covered with a deep pile carpet spread with tiger-skins; on a hearth big enough to clasp in a fragrant fire of cedar . . . and it was burning.

A door opened quickly and Bannister appeared; a commanding, distinguished figure in evening dress; his eyes lit up like a boy's.

"Sonia! My dear—"

He led her into the drawing-room, and as the door closed he took her hands in his.

"Your train's late, and I've been imagining the most ghastly things —that you might fall me after all. And I couldn't have borne it. And here you are!"

Her hands were cold as they lay in his, but she looked at him with laughing eyes.

"Here I am, Bannister. You needn't have feared I'd fail you. I'm good at keeping my word . . . I've come three thousand miles to you—"

She fread herself, hearing a rustle at the door as Selby came in.

"May I have your keys, Madam?" he said. "The maid will unpack for you."

Sonia looked at him. She knew little of butler, but she made a quick estimate of Selby.

"Yes to keys; the little dress-case is all you need take up. Please leave my trunk downstairs."

"Very good, Madam." Selby bowed and withdrew. Bannister looked at her with consternation.

"Sonia! You don't mean you won't stay? I didn't think . . . I mean—of course, I'm alone here, but—"

Sonia laughed aloud; she had a delicious little laugh, and looked at him with twinkling eyes.

"Dear Bannister, how funny you are! I wouldn't care if we were alone in the Arizona Desert. I'm modern all through—the latest model. When we're alone there's something I'm going to let you do, but even if I want what you say. But I'm going to be quite sure that you do. Something you don't know—that you've got to listen to.

"You're going to have a square deal, and so am I. And now, Bannister, please let me go; I want a bath and a change, and a little time to myself; I'm a dusty, disheveled traveller."

"Of course— you're tired; you're not yourself, Sonia dear," he said. "Come here."

CHAPTER SEVEN

He led her to the sideboard, filled two long-stemming glasses with old Madeira, and handed one to her. A moment later, she took it and glanced at him over the rim, her eyes dancing with light and gold flecks that sparkled like the wine.

"Old times, Sonia," he said softly, "and the wonderful time coming!"

When he set down the glass, she had filled out. In the hall she met Mrs. Selby, a commanding figure, who curtsyed to her and led her upstairs. Sonia had never encountered anything quite like Mrs. Selby. She reminded her somehow of a keeper jangling keys at that huge waist from a woman's prison. She never thought to cross into her head at such a time as like her wrists were surely frayed.

She was shown into a superb bedroom, heavily curtained and bright with flowers. A pretty, pretty olive-skinned maid in a rather daringly cut uniform was unpacking for her.

"Your room, Madam," said the housekeeper, standing at the door. "I hope you will like it—that we shall make you comfortable."

There was something about Mrs. Selby that jarred on Sonia.

"Thank you. I am sure you will," she said, and, taking a wrap from a chair, she passed through into the bathroom. Mrs. Selby, after a curtsy, left her closing the door.

Deborah Selby noticed that Sonia's over-coat was torn, and inspected, but she drew from it a marvellous evening frock of pale flame-colored georgette that she

FINE SHOWING OF HORSESHOE CLUB

Stirling Club Defeated Only Three Times in 13 Games

Stirling, July 30—Entered in two leagues South Hastings and Central Hastings, the local boys have turned in an excellent record having played a total of 13 games and suffered defeat only three times. Mr. James Mitchell president of the club is very much delighted with great work of the various teams and states that they are reasonably sure of a play-off berth. Since the winners of the Centre League play off with the winners of the South Hastings League for the championship and the Stirling Club is entered in both it is safe to count the Stirling boys in for at least the semi-finals.

On Thursday evening before a large gallery of interested spectators the local squad beat the snappy "A" team of the Trenton Airport in an eight all tie and with only one more game on the schedule their efforts have resulted in 4 wins, 3 losses and two tie games. The Rneyp for Thursday's game was as follows:

Trenton: McKim, Jones, Johnson, Pirteau, West, Jenner and Jackson.

Stirling: Mitchell, Fox, Linnels, Reid, Bateman, Dalland, Kemp, Kelly, P. Hulin and the score 8-8.

In the South Hastings League the Stirling club have played four games won 3, tied 1 and lost none with this record their season's performance it is easy to see why they are getting such favorable praise from the fans who find their way to the courts for every tournament.

Tennis Tournament

On Wednesday afternoon the Tennis Club of Tweed visited the courts of the Stirling Club for a tournament which was very concluded from the standpoint of score. Cliff Bateman and Lorne Baldwin scored a win for Stirling in the first of the matches but although they defeated L. Morrison and R. Sayers of Tweed 6-4 and 6-2 the latter for the rest of the afternoon the Tweed club had a very decided edge. The second pair of matches are quite happy about the fine afternoon, perfect weather and a delightful social atmosphere and a delightful social atmosphere served to make the outing a real success. Invariable fixtures in the men's doubles were all taken by Tweed players with one exception Mr. Lowland and Lorne Baldwin tied with T. Morrison and Mr. Hughes.

Lunch was served on the lawns by the members of the Stirling Club at the close of the tournament.

Lawn Social

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church West Huntingdon held the very successful social on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haggard on the Madoc road. In spite of the coolness of the evening which was unusual for this time of the year, after the heat of the past few days the attendance was very good. Booths displayed merchandise of homemade candy, ice cream and cakes were well patronized. The place was moved out on the porch and several very interesting talks were offered by Rev. J. A. Kofford and Arthur Donaldson, both of which solos were greatly enjoyed. At the conclusion of the entertainment an opportunity for friends to gather and discuss matters of the day and Ethiopian situation, the political outlook and even the Co-Operative trek had their part in the evening discussion. In many parts of the province were gathered they groups each discussing the topic which appealed to them most. These gatherings are both restful and helpful for the busy farmer after the same line-up as for the seniors.

Umpires for all games were Forster, Blackburn and Bateman of Belleville.

Hungerford girls defeated the Sidney farmerettes by a score of 13 to 9 in an interesting first round engagement, leaving the team in the initial frame.

Five games were played in the boys' group, Teams from Madoc and Sidney Township met in the first engagement which went to the Madoc lads by the score of 7-5. Sidney—Kelderman, Mcmurtry, Mc-Johnston, Chisholm, Morrison, Thrasher, Kingston, Short.

In the second contest Huntingdon climbed Rawdon for a three score as the previous contest 8 to7, although the losers made a fine showing in the seventh, when they scored 5 runs, one short of overcoming the lead.

Rawdon—B. Heath, P. Stewart, Wright, Hall, Morton, Bateman, G. Broadworth, G. Oddie, H. Brown, D. Williams.

Huntingdon — Rickman, Mosby, Fraser, Tomilson, Shaw, Reid, Rodgers, Heath, Devoin.

Hungerford — Weldon, Graham, Morton, Simpson, Rashotte, Geraldi, Hungerford, Marsh, Yeomach.

Thurlow — Atkins, Sullivan, Thurlow, Clapp, Sweet, Allen, Reynolds, Reid, Whelan.

The two winning teams tossed for the bye, with Huntingdon the winners, and Hungerford were next in the semi-final, the southern township earning the right to meet Rawdon in the final finish by virtue of getting the big end of a 7 to 6 score. The game in question was practically the same as for the first game between the two teams, Williams replaced Simpson on the box for Rawdon.

In the final struggle Sidney won out by the score of 7 to 4 in a close hitting engagement, Sidney taking the second year in which they have won the softball title, and to retain the silver trophy for another year. The presentation prizes were given on winning it a third time. Bateman replaced Heath on the Rawdon mound for relief, and with the same line-up as for the semi-finals.

Umpires for all games were Forster, Blackburn and Bateman of Belleville.

Neighborhood Workers

Through the generosity of Association last week overjoyed at the improvement shown in her guests. The baby's checks began to fatten out after the first week, she wrote, "and I am keeping them longer than I've been able to give them a chance to get really strong".

Hastings Nursery Association is doing a splendid work in providing special recreation to the appeals for aid.

Over 350 applications on behalf of other children are, however, on file at this present time, and are coming in each day from the District Welfare Workers. 60 per cent. of this total is under five years old, ranging from 5 to 13 years of age.

There is a little cripple boy of 11, who longs for games even in the streets with other boys on account of a badly crippled arm. He is pale and thin. They will give him two weeks of happiness in the country.

There's a little girl, six years old, with dark hair and big blue eyes. Her mother has just returned from hospital and is still quite ill. There is also a little brother who have been taken care of by a kind hostess. The little girl was so thrilled ready to go. On the very day she was to leave her brother fell ill and was unable to take her. If you have ever felt disappointment, even bitter disappointment, you will know how this little tot feels. Who will change her face to sunshine day after day. If you feel you can, post yourself as a supporter of housing a child, could you take a child, daughter or baby and start them off on the highroad to health? They'd be eternally grateful to you.

A hostess who did this very thing wrote to the Neighborhood Workers Association has another interesting story to tell. She has become of young mothers, with little babies, if they are forced to remain in the city spending hot, stuffy day after day. If you feel you cannot provide for the expense of housing a child, could you take a young mother and her baby and start them off on the highroad to health? They'd be eternally grateful to you.

RELIEF MANIFESTO STIRS DIVERSITY OF MAYORAL VIEWS

Some Fear Municipal Administration Means More Taxes

SOME IN FAVOR

No Indication Found Other Provinces Fill Follow Ontario

(By the Canadian Press)

Immediate reaction throughout Ontario to the Provincial Government's decision to hand administration of relief back to the municipalities and make fixing grants today varied from an expression of satisfaction to a declaration the order might mean bankruptcy.

In a number of instances the completed agreement with the views of Premier Hepburn was expressed. In others Mayors feared the change might mean increased taxation, a step they hoped they would not have to take.

Dominion Clarvan

A Dominion-wide canvass today gave no indication which eight other provinces would follow Ontario in relinquishing administration of relief to provincial municipalities.

Possibility of some change was seen in Saskatchewan but the relief question remained in abeyance pending the return of Premier J. G. Gardiner from the East. Saskatchewan municipalities now bear a share of the cost where they are able financially to do so.

In British Columbia where the Federal Government contribution is 50 per cent of the cost, 50 by the Provincial Government contributes 40 per cent of the cost. In unorganizing municipalities and the municipalities above the remainder but provincial contributions are not in excess of $18.75 maximum a month for male and $16.50 and $4.75 for each dependent.

Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments in Manitoba each bear the cost and with the Federal share cut from 33 1-3 to 20 per cent last year, the municipalities carried the added cost.

Alberta contemplates no change in its system whereby municipalities now are responsible for relief administration within their own districts but financial assistance from Federal and Provincial Governments is allotted on basis of percentages of total cost.

HOW EUROPE CAR VED UP AFRICA

It is an old established custom among nations with imperial ambitions, to look toward Africa. At present six European nations have divided among themselves practically the whole continent. Abyssinia remains the only independent and the largest "virgin" territory, and Italy, in the person of Benito Mussolini and Marshal de Bono, is looking toward this area of 350,000 square miles with evil eyes. France is the largest land owner in Africa, with Britain, Belgium and Italy following second. Together they control over half the area and the destinies of nearly 100,000,000 natives.

The 11,460,000 square miles that make up Africa are divided as follows:

	Area	Pop.
	Sq. Mi.	Population
France	3,967,610	33,440,500
Gt. Britain	3,450,692	47,351,900
Italy	946,734	1,310,000
Belgium	922,083	11,500,000
Portugal	787,826	8,284,950
Spain	128,666	784,300
Egypt	350,000	11,000,000
Ethiopia	350,000	10,000,000
Liberia	45,000	1,750,000
Independent	45,000	1,750,000

If Italy succeeds in conquering Abyssinia, it will have annexed land three times the size of Italy—and 10,000,000 people to buy Italian products, and a land of inestimable wealth in minerals and cotton.

Too Many on Relief Here, Mayor, Promising Check-Up

Preserves Silence on Hepburn Manifesto Over Relief

Following a close conference with relief officials and special council in the city hall today, Mayor Geo. O. Tice smiled enigmatically when pressed for a direct statement regarding the new Hepburn manifesto and the probable cost to the city under the new relief arrangements, for nursing the relief problem municipalities with direct cash payment as aid from the Ontario Government.

"I'm not ready to say what the amount yet until I learn more from the Welfare office at Toronto. But I will say this relief must be cut and cut further in this city. At the present time there are altogether too many on relief and we intend doing something about it. There is no excuse for people to work to be living on the taxpayers, particularly at the present time when there is easy work to be had.

"We have just checked up the latest figures on individuals. Although we have been doing some drastic cutting, there are still a number we have been unable to get around to yet. I'm going to put in another day on the job, and will have one of the most thorough checkups in this city's history," he added.

During the peak last winter a total of 600 families were receiving relief in the city, numbering about 2,330 individuals, figures at the Central Relief office revealed.

"Any man" warned Mayor Tice, "who can't, like his wife refuses to do his share of work when called upon by the city will be cut off the list immediately."

Germans Disgruntled, Living Costs Mount

Berlin, July 31—(AP)—The German government today faced its most serious threat in its much publicized "National Unity" in wide popular dissatisfaction against price increases. A large part of the population appears disgruntled concerning the essential increase in the cost of living.

Statistics of the Institute for Business Research reveal prices of food articles have increased from the index figure of 89.7 in 1932 to 112.3 in 1935.

The prices of meat and meat consumption average 46 per cent higher than six months ago.

Chivalry to Girl Costs Man Life

"Brooklyn, N.Y., July 31 (AP) — A man who parted with a nickel today to be chivalrous ended by paying with his life.

William Burke, 34, arrived with Miss Georgina O'Brien at a convenated railway station. He found he had a single five-cent piece His companion had no money.

"Take this," he said, proffering his lone nickel. "I'll ride, and you see."

Miss O'Brien slid the coin into the slot. Burke descended to the street and began a 100-foot climb up a pillar. Just as he was about to grasp the platform and swing up to it he slipped and plunged to the street. He died in hospital.

Script Criticism so Rare- by Author Likely to be Preserved in Museum

Hollywood, Calif., July 31—(AP)—Rudyard Kipling's criticism of the script for the filming of one of his own stories is a rare in all that is way into a British museum.

It is Hollywood's only memento of his personal interest in the movie version of a story he has rendered exclusively in favor of an anti-Jewish play entitled "The Hebrew". It was reported today from a Barrarian source.

The story of the old drama of the life of Christ the new play portrays the hero instead of an English girl by a Jew. The leading part, it was said, will be played by Anton Lang, the "Christus" of the passion play.

FANTASTIC TALE OF KIDNAPPING FROM DYING LIPS

Says He was Mutilated by Supposed Rejected Suitor

POCKET KNIFE USED

Mutilation Expertly Performed Says Physicians

Chicago, July 31 (AP)—A man who told police he was Walter J. Bauer, 36, of Cleveland, O., died today after police said he told them he was kidnapped at Ann Arbor, Mich., forced to drive here and then mutilated with a pocket knife by his abductors.

Bauer said he was a chemistry professor and had been taking graduate work at the University of Michigan Summer School. Otto Salerino said he was seeking his abductor and attacker was a man he knew slightly. He supplied police with a description.

Bauer told the officers he was married three weeks ago and the only theory he had was a rejected suitor of his wife had mutilated him.

The officers said Bauer told them he met the man at 26 in a hotel on the outskirts of Ann Arbor, where both were guests. Later they left the hotel at night, the officers said he related, and was gated for him by

PLASTER FALLING CAUSES ALARM

Crowds of curious people from the upstairs window of a residence on Station Street about 9.30 last night attracted a passing police officer, who immediately sent in the fire alarm. Firemen who arrived on the scene discovered that the plaster had fallen off the ceiling of one of the bedrooms. The plaster is said to have caused the dense smoke for a moment and the window being open the smoke rolled out just as the hose was going by."

Commission Will Make Arrangement

Members of the Civil Service Commission, who desire to go on the pilgrimage to Vimy next July 9th, but have not received the leave to take care of getting suitable time on can now rest at ease. All civil servants have been notified through the heads of the department, that they can arrange to have their three weeks' holidays this year advanced to next year, thus the combined leave of absence for two years can be taken. This will give them six weeks leave, which should be sufficient for the trip. Those desiring to do this have to obtain a certificate from the Canadian Legion verifying their eligibility to enter the pilgrimage and forward the certificate to Ottawa.

Motorists Detoured Off Coleman Street

A new culvert is being constructed across the roadway at the lower Coleman Street near the end of James Street. The culvert is eight feet wide and is being constructed of heavy steel girders reinforced with concrete. All Moscow motorists in travel on the Bay Bridge road will have to go up Coleman Street for a few days as the route by Coleman Street is temporarily closed due to the construction.

MICK FED WORMS NEW SALES APPEAL

There's a reason for trade going on among the bait selling fraternity of this city, but so far one youthful resident has not found the right edge. Simple announcement of the fact that he has bait for sale, has been replaced by the more effective advertising that his fishworms are "healthy and milk fed."

Making the rounds of the city this week, the youthful promoter has carried the fight into the customer's camp. Cause is home earned, advertising the bait for sale has produced results far above expectations, he reports.

Prince Edward Cheesemakers Discuss Problems of Trade With Ontario Dairy Director

G. H. Barr, Toronto, And Prof. Gibson, Kingston Attend

PLAIN SPEAKING

Director Gives Findings After Examining a Number of Cheese

Thorough discussion of a wide range of subjects connected with almost every angle of the industry, and illuminating addresses given by Mr. G. H. Barr, Director of Dairying for the Province of Ontario, and Mr. E. Idings, Superintendent of the Eastern Ontario Dairy School, Kingston, J. L. Irwin, Dominion Dairy Grader and others, featured one of the most successful meetings of cheesemakers of the Prince Edward District, held in the office of Mr. Irwin this city last evening.

Factories from almost every district of Prince Edward County, as well as a few from the South Hastings district were represented at the meeting, presided over by Ernest Hunnell, demonstrator and president and chairman of the evening.

Following the reading of minutes of the last meeting, by the Secretary G. W. Henderson, Ben Gill, the meeting was thrown open for general discussion.

"Just by way of comment," asked Mr. J. L. Irwin, "how many patrons have your factories had as a result of the recent cow test and income bonus arranged by the government?"

More Patrons

A poll of members present revealed that Black River factory had added four new patrons; Purdon, none; Stirling, none; Consecon, three; Weller's Bay, none; Sidney, one; Wellington, five; Hillier, six; Cressy, four; Elmwood, one; Point Traverse, none; Bay Side, one.

Introduced to the meeting by Chairman Trumbell, Mr. G. H. Barr, director of Dairying for Ontario gave a highly interesting account of the situation which cheesemakers in the eastern counties were confronted with, namely, the weather by the use of more heat and higher temperatures in curing.

"This is the sixth or seventh week I've been out this year on an inspection trip in the city that is most interesting year I have ever had in the business. Things are happening in these factories and through the Province that have never happened before. And I'm safe in saying that instructors and graders are showing more good betterment in the matter of making cheese this year than ever before. This is also showing more good judgment in handling milk in the hot weather than ever, I've never seen finer cheese made in a hot spell, or as many good cheese."

Director Barr's Findings

Starting in Russell County, Mr. Barr travelled through the counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Perth, Lanark and is now working west through Hastings. During his trip, he declared, he has been able to closely observe the work of the factories in the districts.

"I say, as the general way, that the cheese makers are cutting the finest and cooking the best and are taking the finest curds. One thing struck me during the hot weather, and that was I saw very few cheese running grease. The way the makers were handling the curds has had a great deal to do with this."

"To get firm curds in the old days some used to put more salt in it. This makers have started to raise the temperatures at the beginning. Grass is better this year than for the past five or six years. Some makers have found difficulty in getting the body into the cheese. I have noticed that in some factories cooking is being carried on to temperatures ranging from 105 to 106 degrees.

"No it doesn't destroy the texture of the cheese. We have noticed it in pulled curd (several perfect plugs during my trips). I think it was like a candle for smoothness and texture—and some of this cheese had been cooked to 106. It has been, however, have been cooking to 106, with the curd staying in for about two hours. I was surprised myself at this high temperature. This was one of the most noticeable things I've seen so far this year."

Stiff Cheese

"All we are afraid of now," continued Mr. Barr, "is 'stiff' cheese; there were more graded last week than for some time. A little too much salt is perhaps the reason."

"The acids are good. Some curds properly are the men who are making the cheese. I have not went today," pointed out Mr. Barr.

"If you had good, sweet milk you wouldn't need to cook that much, would you?" queried a member.

"I think you would in this year, there seems to be a condition in the milk this season," answered Mr. Barr.

"Remember", impressed the Director of Dairying, "I'm not in favor of high cooking, but when you go into a factory and find Cheese cooking up to 106, using also about two and one half pounds of salt, and find the cheese absolutely right, then you must agree that there's something in it."

Up to the last few days there have been surprising few reactions local defects noted in cheese this year, pointed out Mr. Barr. "We've got a lot of real cheese makers in now this country."

Dairy Grader's Remarks

Mr. J. L. Irwin, Dominion Dairy Grader of the local office, emphatically stated:

"Here in Central Ontario, the quality of the cheese during the past few weeks has been up to the usual standard. The cheese have been showing too much acid and mechanical defects."

Prince Edward district hasn't had as many mechanical defects, while this doesn't apply to that section, but we have had some quite serious complaints from that section."

"My idea is that there is too much acidity being added in this district. Also it is too heavily salted.

Green Shipments

Warning about green shipments of cheese was given by Mr. Irwin. Regulations it was pointed out, say that ten days must elapse before being offered for sale, but the majority of the makers are taking this requirement to mean that cheese can keep it on your shelves, the better. If flavors are going to develop in the cheese let them develop here and not overseas. Some of the cheese J. Irwin graded have been offered within four-days. If you would just skip a week and not offer a single cheese for sale, you'd get a better off."

A suggestion that some fast ripening cheese of the Cheshire type which could be produced in the central district to meet the ever increasing bone consumption was given by Dr. A. G. Gibson, Deputy Minister of the Eastern Ontario Dairy School. Dr. Gibson featured the world's fair comment upon the one and one half cent bonus, except that it was just one sign that it will be the cheese industry as a whole was being recognized officially by the Dominion government. "This is just a beginning, the start of something, a tangible move on the part of the government after the industry has been battling so long on its own feet."

Value of Patrons' Association

The Cheese Patrons' Association was described by Dr. Gibson as an association "which should produce results". "We mustn't expect everything to be done at the start, and even for it to run smoothly at the start; there will be mistakes made, but things will shape up in the end right."

"The exceptional season this year, with a wet June and July and a condition of "muggy" weather has been extra favorable for the development of yeast and "bugs", Dr. Gibson pointed out. "Increased acidity, but you must have a certain amount of acid to get a good Cheddar cheese, declared the superintendent. "You must also get the moisture down to 36 per cent with proper cooking and by cooking the curds higher and cutting them finer it will all will help.

Temperatures

"As an old Cheshire cheesemaker, I have never heard of such temperatures as 104, 105 and even 96. If we find the science underlying the fundamentals of cheese making, we have a foundation upon which to work."

A suggestion that junior farmers be given a thorough grounding in the fundamentals of cheese making while they are of school age, was made by Dr. Gibson.

Although there is room for improvement in the majority of factories, many of the best cheese in cheesemaker are due to the raw milk supplied. "This is not said disparagingly", pointed out Dr. Gibson, "Most farmers want to do right, but many factories are not fully acquainted with the principles of thorough cleaning and sterilization of equipment and keeping it clean. Farmers must realize the necessity of clean milk, and how it could apply equally to cheese or butter-making."

Greater home consumption of cheese is just one way of reviving a lagging industry, declared Dr. Gibson. Some effort, he declared should be made to increase the consumption in Canada.

"As it is now most of the cheese made finds its way overseas. We must hold onto the cheese market we now have over there; things are not as black as they may look. I am not referring so much to quality of cheese sent there, but to the quantity. If we had had that same little ago we would never have lost the market to New Zealand."

Ripening in Bulk

In this effort to increase home consumption, however, care must be taken against "Cheddar cheese, the present Cheddar cheese, world famous for quality, declared the speaker. "Cheddar cheese is a type that is mild and we cannot alter the general principles of cheddaring and still retain the typical Cheddar type.

"Suggestions have been made, principally in the United States advocating of putting the cheese in bulk and allowing it to ripen there, then packaging them for the trade. Over across the border, however, I am safe in saying I've never had the art of Cheddar cheesemaking, and young cheesemakers over there are anxious to learn the principles of make in Canadian schools.

"It was also suggested that cheese be put in packages and sold in small prints, but the middle man would be done away with. We would learn, would be the man who made all the profit from it."

For Home Consumption

"If we are to increase home consumption we must do something a little different from that which has been done; we need a quick ripening cheese made of silk, and perhaps a cheese of the style of Cheshire cheese which can be ripened in six weeks or six months or twelve months. We would like to sell it as fresh Cheddar on the local market we must be sure it is good, natural and right."

Coupons which could be tendered by housewives with every cheese purchase and good for the present of a suitable cheese dish for the family table when tendered, might result in more cheese being sold, pointed out Dr. Gibson. Old country homes, it was added, all have a suitable cheese dish as one of the central decorations on the table.

Wm. Hicks, Instructor of the Prince Edward District group for a few brief remarks tendered the thanks of the meeting for the privilege of using the office of Mr. Irwin, "I'm sorry that there have been so few cheese so far for this season, but it has not been through the fault of workmanship of the cheesemakers. The season has been a lot of trouble with rainstorms and frosty nights this year. We have made a complete checkup of all pipes and whey tanks and equipment. We have good cheese, you must first of all have cleanliness," impressed Mr. Hicks.

Judges in Competition

At the coming competition to be held by the Prince Edward County members, some time in August, Mr. Pullow and Dr. Gibson will act as judges, it was unanimously decided upon. Before accepting the thanks of the meeting, Mr. Irwin pointed out that a joint meeting of Prince Edward County district cheesemakers and the makers of Hastings County would be soon arranged and suggested that such a meeting be held in this city in the near future at which clean discussion of problems connected with the industry would result in considerable benefit to all makers.

Refreshments served to makers present last evening were: G. W. Henderson, Ben Gill; J. D. Henderson, Black River; Wm. Hicks, Waupoos; E. W. Henderson, Consecon; Wm. Atkinson, Northport; Ernest Trumbell, Demorestville; W. Wheeler, Sidney Factory; Herb. Gardiner, Consecon; Ernest Hunnell, Bristol, Elmbrook; John Hall, Foxboro; Geo. Dowsley, Maple Leaf and Arthur Bigby, Consecon.

POLICE COURT

No sessions of local police court was necessary in Belleville today, Magistrate Ponton having left the city on his annual holidays. Only a few minor cases have been dealt with in the community during the past 48 hours. Motor accidents were also at the minimum.

Arrested at the town of Napanee on a charge of operating a car improperly sight transients were brought before Napanee police court held yesterday afternoon before Magistrate C. H. Baker, K.C. They were found guilty of charges and fined ten dollars and costs. The fine not being paid the two transients were lodged in the county jail for a period of 30 days in default of the payment of the fine. Their prosecutors were the provincial riding on C.N.R. trains by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who made investigations of the cases.

William Perry, Toronto motorist, reported striking a hydrant on Front Street, Belleville yesterday afternoon. Mr. Perry informed the authorities he had approached the hydrant, but in order to manoeuvre to alight from the automobile, but in doing driving one wheel into the fender of the vehicle struck the hydrant, knocking off the nipple. Mr. Perry willingly made restitution. The fender of the car was also damaged.

Kiwanis Club Hold Luncheon At Oak Lake

Despite threatening skies, Kiwanis members with their wives and friends threw off cares for a time and became young again at Oak Lake on Tuesday evening. The entertainment ran the gamut from a sumptuous repast, served ideally under delightful conditions to a marshmallow and wiener roast under the stars with the water lapping the shore and flames shooting high in the skies. The social portion of the evening was spent at the dance pavilion in bridge and dancing and when Auld Lang Syne was sung shortly after the midnight hour, the whole company voted the affair one of the best. Those members, who failed to put in an appearance and also lost their attendance missed one of the most pleasant evenings the club has spent together in some time.

The company gathered shortly after seven o'clock and along the beach at Birds, tables were set, the ladies of Stirling Presbyterian church catering the repast and they are to be congratulated on their efforts. Cliff Barragar, genial president of the club presided, with Ed. Shapiro as master of ceremonies. Rev. J. A. Kofford, pastor the Stirling Church gave the principal address and it was most timely and appropriate. Considerable merriment was caused during the luncheon by members pulling stunts. At the conclusion of the repast, each of the tables enjoyed a horse shoe pitching and the barnyard antics of some certainly proved they knew their stuff.

All moved over to the pavilion where Jack Grant and his Aces were ready to provide an interesting dance program. Phil McKee as master of ceremonies announced that everyone had a good time. Bridge tables were also in use and Mrs. Ed. Shapiro and Mrs. Cliff Tilley was awarded the prize. It is understood that the funeral of Eddie Shapiro gave her most of the points, she totalled. Breaking up about eleven o'clock the party wended their way to Searles' Beach on the south side of the lake and there seated around the camp fire, the party roasted weiners, drank coffee and lemonade and had a sing song. The lady telling the best story, this being Mrs. Ernie Pitcle, created a number of laughs.

Address Timely

The speaker was introduced by the president and Kiwanian Kofford said he was impressed by Eddie Logan, who also coupled with the expression of a vote of public thanks, who prepared the splendid supper. Mrs. Cliff Tilley also responded in a gracious manner. Rev. Mr. Kofford stated, that people was indebted to men of the type of Logan from time and also inclined to let things slide. "Kiwanis stands for home" said the speaker, but he remarked it was a good time to drop in and drop to think seriously. "Science tells us we are worth about 54 cents, but as for the chemical properties we concerned but how much are we worth to the organization you are connected with?" asked the speaker. Another question "how much are you worth to the world wants? was answered by "as much as you put into it." Kiwanis could be no higher ideal for the greatest man in the world made that his ideal.

Rev. Mr. Kofford told his listeners that the members could not value the worth of the club to the individual in dollars and cents if true values are to be estimated. He reviewed the work done by the club and showed that thousands were looking at the world through rose colored glasses all on account of the Kiwanis movement. The speaker closed with "He also asked "How much has the organization done for you?" and thought it should deepen the service channel of a member's life.

Soft Music Rouses Boy Lying in Coma
Colorado Springs, Colo., July 31 —Music was used today to arouse Curwin Hull, 11, from semi-coma caused by blows police said their father inflicted in an attempt to kill him.

The melodies were brought into the room by radio as the boy reclined, motionless on his hospital bed. Shortly afterward, a violin was brought to the hospital Corwin has not spoken and appeared to be in a coma.

Shortly, as the music began, the boy lifted himself on one elbow. He smiled, but did not speak. He listened intently for eighty minutes and then dropped into sleep.

Earliest Threshing in Some Years In West Huntingdon District

West Huntingdon, July 31— The great holiday season is being duly observed here and a large number of visitors have been present at family reunions and personal visits are taking place. Those of the young people who attended the Junior Farmers picnic at Tweed on Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. G. Wright, Annie and Gladys Cook, Vera Wilson, Vera Moon, Mona Wright, Hilda Haggarty, Evelyn and Marjorie McInroy and Messrs. Chas. Wright and Elmer Wilson. The Misses Evelyn and Marjorie McInroy, Mona Wright and Hilda Haggerty assisted the Rawdon softball team, and were successful in winning the silver trophy for the second time.

The Mission Band of United Church held a picnic on Friday at the home of Miss Georgia Pitman with an attendance of over forty. After a short program of readings and singing, many races and games were enjoyed by all.

The results of the races were as follows:

Children 5 years: Margaret Haggarty.

Children 6 to 7: Muriel Thompson.

Children 8 to 10: Russel Sills.

Children 11 to 12: Jean Thompson.

Children over 13: Annie Cooke.

Girls shoe race: 1 Annie Cooke 2 Margaret Moorcroft.

Boys wheelbarrow race: 1 Elwin Chare, 2 Dave Haggarty.

Children hopping race: 1 Marion Hammond, 2 Geraldine McLeaning.

Senior hopping race: 1 E. Carr 2 Leah Carr.

Throwing rolling pin: 1 Leah Carr, 2 Mildred Moorcroft.

Women's running race: Mrs. C. Wright.

A tasty lunch of cake, sandwiches and ice cream was then served to the children which brought the happy outing to a close.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church held a lawn social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haggarty, South Front Street, on Friday evening and an enjoyable time was spent by all. The proceeds which are to be used for redecorating the church, amounted to $14.50.

Mr. Golden McInroy started out threshing on Friday when he threshed a large field of barley for Mr. Howard Arnold, of Church St.

This is perhaps the earliest for threshing in some years and Mr. Ashley states that his yield of barley was greater than expected. This is an extra busy time for the farmers as the hay crop is all harvested yet and the grain is ripening fast and is also difficult to cut as the ground is getting hard. Cork' Joke Proves Fatal And Cats Don't Forget

CATS GET READY

New York, July 31.—Along the stained bar of Billy Ray's Baymen's Rest, where claim-diggers and fishermen of the Canarsie shore and their children and children's children nestled together with a fringe of sporting gentry and holiday-makers, small change lay provocatively for hours on end and there was reason for it.

Pete and Minnie, Billy's champion change-snatching crows, which like as not, often made up the overhead of the rambling two-story shack that Billy ran as a hotel for twenty years until the fire three years ago, were out in the ash can back of the shed. Billy, circumspect, avoided the Baymen's Rest all day, wandered along the beach kicking at stones.

There was little else that Billy could do with his trained crows after the fire razed Jerry Cole Black, fighting cats that whip their weight in wildcats, got through with the black birds. It was a battle of the century and Billy, who saw them all, knew a good one when he fought, too, back in the eighties, when even the Queensberry code having seen it. There wasn't enough left to stuff as a single bird.

How It All Started

Pete and Minnie, customers like Billy himself, got after the whisk-ers of Tom and Jerry last week as a diversion from picking up silver on the bar. Tom and Jerry laid ambush for them, Billy, sensing trouble, put the crows in their screen-fronted cage in the woodshed back of the taproom back of the bar. Pete, the Plymouth Rock rooster, a fighting cock as Billy's present as Billy was back in the days when he fought George Dixon was set off guard.

The cage, on a six-foot platform, seemed safe enough and on the perch in front Billy rigged a beer bottle case to make it tough climbing. He started to rig up the rope to the electric shock wire charging the edge of the bar—a trap for unwary customers—or else put a false bottom in the case.

"I couldn't make up my mind," Billy said, "before the dang cats made up theirs."

Tom and Jerry, dragging their weight to the woodshed roof, got in through a vent. They made a four-foot jump back of the case, pushed the screen in and got into the cage.

Billy was dickering for a mess of fish at the time but the bartenders heard it.

"The crowds crowed as the cats out like the Old Harry," Billy said. "Pete and the Rooster got up somehow and batted with their wings for the whole fight, diggin' in his spurs, but he couldn't make it into the cage. Tom and Jerry paid no mind to cussin'; they finished off the crowds in no time."

"What'd you do to the gol-dang cats, Billy?" said Cy Cole, a fellow digger, one of Billy's circle of cronies, piped up from the near-by wharf of the Tambo II.

"Nothing," said Billy heaving a stone at the cats as it made the water. "I think I want to bring them cats up as sinners."

Tom's Exploits Recalled

Billy marked back to last winter. A wharf rat bigger than a tomcat came up from the piles beneath the Rest, went back of the bar and chased Billy's biggest bartender out into the street. The clam diggers, who shoot them for a day's limit, were out of season. Tom and Red, scarred like a patchwork quilt and with the temper of a mountain lion, rescued the bartender and took on the rodent of a ten-minute battle in which, as usual, he emerged the victor.

Until supper time Billy was in low spirits. Billy, the 74-year-old parrot, perched on the Dummy, lifeless robot of the proprietor reading a paper in the corner of the bar, got no bull. A fat man sat in the rubber-legged chair and squashed it to the floor, but the bird had nary a smirk. Billy ruffled through his collection of pictures of old-time fighters, framed on a dog-eared copy of his father, William A. Ray of the First Maryland Artillery in the Civil War.

Then he got up quickly. A crony was sidling up to the frankfurter stand. Billy, a lightweight still, for all his gray hair, was behind the stand in a twinkling and served the customer himself. He drenched the hot dog with mustard, draped it with sauerkraut and handed it over. The customer took and paid-ed. Bill had palmed off a rubber frankfurter skewer.

Holding his sides, he scampered to his supper in his quarters back of the bar. "It's the mustard that does it," he yelled back.

TO THE HARVEST FIELDS

Mayors of Ontario will not convoke a meeting to protest the Provincial Government's order putting off relief rolls, single men under certain conditions. It is clear that they feel that there is work to be had and that the Government's decision is based on that assumption. In Belleville, according to authorities who are in touch with relief matters, the edict does not apply, for the city lists have been thoroughly weeded of single men who are able to work.

Tonight off relief go thousands in this province whose duty it is to find work, especially work in the harvest fields. Some may feel that this is a drastic action and that the work should be found for the men first, but the question of unemployment is one that requires drastic action owing to mounting costs. It cannot be gainsaid that there are no doubt some single unemployed who will not seek jobs or have been so far weaned away from actual labor as to scarcely know the routine to take to find a job. To be out of work without relief may be a healthy corrective to a number of these men on the verge of becoming more and more confirmed. Men who don't seek work won't be allowed to eat of the province's bounty which is becoming more and more limited. It is well that men should realize this. Many young men will, no doubt, gladly get work.

The harvest season is the most fitting time to read the order to those young men who are jobless and have not found work. It would be the greatest crime against Providence if the grain were crops to go to waste and lie to rot in the fields when there are thousands of men who can do harvesting. The season is the healthiest and lovliest for outdoor work. Let the men who willingly or under the compulsion of the order or of need will consider themselves lucky when they are asked to work for their own good.

The increasing difficulty of meeting mounting taxes has placed a tremendous burden on the shoulders of municipalities so that no waste of energy and money can be permitted. Not to urge single idle to take the job at hand would be offence against the physical and moral welfare of those who can work. Unemployed who are idle through no fault of their own will be looked after but it is clear that a little urging is needed in some of the men by getting those, who can work, to go to the jobs when jobs are offering, in this instance, the stable and substantial. It should rouse a man's pride to work and garner crops for the good of those now on relief and of those who will require relief during the coming autumn, winter and spring seasons and also of those others of the population who are not on relief and are bearing a great and heavy burden on their own behalf and for the sake of those who are on relief.

FILM DRAMA AND OPERA

Color films of opera and the advent of Shakespeare on the screen are features in the screen and sound art. Max Reinhardt, the German producer of "The Miracle" and one of the greatest of stage figures of the present day, is about to begin the production of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" as a genuine work of art and predicts that the regeneration of Shakespeare among the common people will be achieved through the sound picture. He has under contemplation, "Twelfth Night" and "Hamlet", the latter ought to be the test supreme as to whether the poet-dramatist can live in the sound picture in the theatre of the common people.

Picturizations of works of art like "David Copperfield" and "Les Miserables" have been successful but with the novels it must be admitted that some parts have become to the audience quite what they are or have been to the reader. Too much cutting has to be done. Even in the case of plays which are much shorter but have been written for a three hour production, there has to be a great deal of condensation to fit into an hour and a half of film fun.

Radio dramas from the works of Shakespeare have been largely mutilations. No one who never read Shakespeare could gather from these "shorts" what the plays are like. Fortunately the film does not mutilate like that. It cannot for there is a high quality of art in the sound films and the screen has time and the visual appeal to help.

LATE SUMMER DAYS

Lightly the wind stirs all the swaying tree-tops,
Brightly the sun lights up each vale and hill,
And through the days and nights the birds are flying southward,
With all their music still.

Gayly the sumach flaunts its robes of crimson,
Bright as the dawn that heralds the new day,
Oh! how the heart rejoices in the summer
That it might last for aye!

Lord of the earth, Who gives the changing seasons,
Lord of the harvest with its gifts of gold,
Grant that Thy peace—the harvest's full fruition—
Our hearts may o'er enfold.

COMING BACK TO GANNETS, and the disputed identity of the strange bird haunting the marshes at Deseronto—one correspondent expresses the view that it is not a bird at all but the disembodied spirit of some great Indian Chieftain long passed over into the Happy Hunting Grounds but permitted to return to earth in the likeness and body of a bird. Be that as it may our Front Street Nature Lover is not satisfied with the classification of Gannet given by Editor Moore of Trenton and claims that from the description given of Deseronto bird it is a wader and the Gannet is not. Mr. Canned, according to Reed's Bird-Guide, has the following characteristics:

Primary color: black; rest of plumage, white; back of head tinged with straw color, bill and feet bluish black; mottled above and streaked below. This species is the largest and most northerly distributed of the Gannet family. Thousands upon thousands of them breed upon high, rocky islets off the British coasts. The largest nesting places used by them in this country are Bird Rock and Bonaventure Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence; in these places they nest by thousands, their rough piles of seaweed touching each other in long rows on the narrow ledges.

A harsh "gannet" cry.

Range—North Atlantic; breeding, on the American side, only on Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Winters along the whole Atlantic Seaboard, south, often in large flocks out at sea, and rarely coming on land.

So, there's your Gannet—we have already given the text book description of the Ibis.

If the Deseronto folks will just take a photograph of the strange visitor or bring it in person we'll call a meeting of Editor Moore of Trenton, the Front Street Naure Lover, and all other students of bird life who can be gathered together, headed by text books and photographs, settle once and for all to what family the Deseronto stranger belongs,—and if in all things seemingly with agreement cannot be reached we purpose to refer the whole matter to Wallace Havelock Robb, Poet of the Birds, who knows his birds, none and foreign, and settle forever and aye the identity of the bird. In the meantime if there are any more of our readers afflicted with strange birds or strange and elusive identity, just send in the description and we will endeavor to solve the mystery.

OUT WHERE THE WEST BEGINS they certainly know how to write obituary notices without copying the set form handed down for generations and embalmed in the press of yesterday and today. Following extracts from obituary in Wichita Beacon of January 11, 1935, show that even an obituary has possibilities of superstory writing:

"He bore no false witness against his neighbor. He loved his neighbor as himself, and more. He gave of himself and his, and as he did so he was given stewardship of possessions which he held in sacred trust. His vision was as broad as the vast plains which he loved. He knew Nature in her varying moods. He spoke the language of the streams of the woods and of the flowers and trees. He walked with the lowly as he stood among those of high estate.....His employees were his associates and friends. Children gathered at his knee.....In Wichita are scores in mature life who received cheerful sentiments from this man who lived that he may go, his ripe age attesting to the virtues that he never surrendered for a moment through the years. He was charitable as have been few men..... "For I was hungry and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in.....Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

REVOLT IN THE DESERT
by T. E. LAWRENCE

Sharraf's stern sense of public decency punished Abdulla with severest of his chastisements, from which he very nearly died. Then he entered Sharraf's service. On the outbreak of war his position orderly to the Dakhil, captain of the Ageyl with Feisal, His reputation grew; but the mutiny at Welh turned Ion Dakhil into an ambassador, Abdulla missed the commendation of the ranks, and the Dakhil had given him a written character to enter my service.

The letter said that for two years he had been faithful, but dishonest; that he was full of vice and shame. He was the most experienced Agreil, having served every Arabian prince and having been dismissed each employment, after stripes and prison, for offences of too great individuality. Ion Dakhil said that the Nuri Shaalan would kill himself was a master-judge of camels, and as brave as any son of Adam; easily, since he was too skilled-and to one danger. In fact, he was the perfect retainer, and I engaged him instantly.

My service was only once did his taste cells. That was at Aleeby's last expedition, when I was temporarily provost-marshal rang up to say that Abdulla man, with weapons, found sitting on the Commander-in-Chief's doorstep, had been led without riot to the guard-room, where he was eating oranges as though for his pleasure. I went down and found my son, one of Feisal's dogs. Orange-peel was scattered about.

So Abdulla experienced his first telephone conversation. He told the Emir Ali that such a one, Gannet, according to Reed's Bird-Guide, has the following characteristics:

Primary color: black; rest of plumage, white; back of head tinged with straw color, bill and feet bluish black; mottled above and streaked below. This species is the largest and most northerly distributed of the Gannet family. Thousands upon thousands of them breed upon high, rocky islets off the British coasts. Following extracts from obituary in Wichita Beacon of January 11, 1935, show that even an obituary has possibilities of superstory writing:

"He bore no false witness against his neighbor. He loved his neighbor as himself, and more. He gave of himself and his, and as he did so he was given stewardship of possessions which he held in sacred trust. His vision was as broad as the vast plains which he loved. He knew Nature in her varying moods. He spoke the language of the streams of the woods and of the flowers and trees. He walked with the lowly as he stood among those of high estate.....His employees were his associates and friends. Children gathered at his knee.....In Wichita are scores in mature life who received cheerful sentiments from this man who lived that he may go, his ripe age attesting to the virtues that he never surrendered for a moment through the years. He was charitable as have been few men..... "For I was hungry and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in.....Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

GIVER OF GIFTS

O Giver of Gifts, in Thine own wise way,
Give me in the years ahead
The grace to ask from Thy bountiful store
My portion of Living Bread.

O Giver of Gifts, in Thine own wise way,
Give me the power to see
The mystery deep in the lengthening day,
The beauty of land and sea.

O Giver of Gifts, in Thine own wise way,
Give trust that is grounded deep,
That I may be wise in the darkening night
May I Thy footsteps keep.

O Giver of Gifts, in Thine own wise way,
Fresh courage bestow each day,
For praise or blame grant me power, of will,
Clean thoughts and kindly way.

O Giver of Gifts, when the years are full,
When I reach Thy throne above;
Then may I come rendering life that I owe,
Be-de-cmed by Jesus' Love.

However, for the time, the Arabs were possessed, and cruelty of governments, and bitterness of peoples, besides, my men were blood-enemies of thirty tribes, and only for my hand over them would they have ordered in the ranks, each day. Their seeds prevented them combining against me; while their unlikeness gave me sponsors and spies wherever I went. Besides the Arabs and Damascus, between Beersheba and Aqaba, I by service nearly sixty of them died.

Fighting Withdrawal

We waited in Guweira for news of the opening of our operation against Tafileh, the knot of villages at the northern end of the Dead Sea. The Zaagi had been entrusted to Nuri Said, Jafer's chief of staff, command of two armoured cars, a gun, and some machine guns. They were working from Jefer. After three days their post came in. As usual Nasir had directed his raid with skill and deliberation. Jurf, the objective was a strong station on four stone buildings with outerworks and trenches. Behind the station was a low mound, trenched and walled, on which the Turks had set two machine-guns and a mountain gun. Beyond the mound lay a high, sharp ridge, the last spur of the hills which divided Jefer from Siah.

Bishop Farthing Protests Continued Annulment Protestant-Catholic Unions

Montreal, July 31:—(CP)—Sharp protest at continued annulment of Protestant-Catholic marriages, when performed by non-Catholic clergymen has been made by Rt. Rev. John C. Farthing, Anglican Bishop of Montreal, in outlining the stand of his church on the question.

In a statement issued last night protesting the recent judgment of Mr. Justice Alfred Bruneau in Superior Court annulling a mixed marriage, Bishop Farthing said:

"This would make the sons of that union supersede the civil law," he said. "Ang in the question of marriage would put the children of the Pope above that of the King for all citizens of this province, both Roman Catholic and non-Roman. Such a position is unthinkable to the great majority of Canadian citizens."

Protestant minister, Bishop Farthing called for the churches to co-operate in an effort to find a "solution of the difficulty . . . . by which would preserve the rights and liberties of all."

He protested the action of Mr. Justice Forest in rejecting a Privy Council decision to declare the marriage void. On May 18, 1933, Mr. Justice Forest annulled a mixed marriage because the girl was under age and the proper consent of her parents had not been obtained. The banns had not been published properly and for alleged physical defects, Bishop Farthing's statement said. He also questioned whether the authority of the Privy Council's decision was clearly emphasized.

"This is a matter of Canadian citizens."

District Golf Trophy

Belleville golfers are taking unusual interest in the Eastern Ontario District Competition for which the Kingston Whig-Standard has donated the above trophy, which stands 22 inches high, and members of the Belleville Golf Club and of the Quinte Country Club in Trenton have signified their intention of participating in the tournament, which will be held on Lake Ontario-aqui Club course at Kingston on Monday, Aug. 5th. Formal invitations have been received by the two clubs at Belleville and by clubs of other centres, including Napanee, Gananoque, Perth, Brockville, Cornwall, the four Ottawa clubs (Ghuni, Rivermead, Chaudiere and Royal Ottawa), McKellar Golf Club, Thousand Island, Trenton, Cobourg, Oshawa, Carleton-Place, Peterboro, N.Y. and Peterborough. Besides this handsome trophy numerous prizes will be awarded.

Clubs in Eastern Ontario and in northern New York State are keenly interested in the event, which is to be an annual tournament to be played at Kingston. The fraternizing of golf enthusiasts in the territory about Lake Ontario cannot but have a healthy result in comradeship and in a better understanding. In addition the games will bring to Kingston many golfers and a great deal of money which will help still further to foster and develop the golfing facilities of which Eastern Ontario clubs are so proud.

Such a tournament will in the end mean more inter-club games, which members of the Bay of Quinte Country Club and of the Belleville Golf Club are only too anxious to have. The two local courses are courses of which Belleville is proud and local hospitality is too well known to need comment.

The Kingston Whig-Standard, in donating the trophy has made a worthwhile contribution to the sporting life of Central and Eastern Ontario and of Northern New York.

AS A CEREAL

OR IN COOKING

it's FINE either way!

It's so handy to have a package of Kellogg's All-Bran in the kitchen. Serve it as a cereal. Use it also as a wholesome ingredient in your muffins, breads, omelets, waffles, etc.

Kellogg's All-Bran supplies "bulk" to aid regular habits. All-Bran is also rich in vitamin B, as well as iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct common constipation, due to insufficient bulk in the diet. In severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The "bulk" of All-Bran does not break down during digestion as does that of leafy vegetables, and is therefore more effective for relief than the needed "bulk." It is a delicious laxative food . . . ; far better than pill medicines.

Get the redund-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS CROWDED DAILY

Changing Countenances Marked Year by Year at Sports

Shouts of glee, rollicking rounds of laughter pervade the East and West Belleville playgrounds these days as the kiddies play to the sand, slip down the slides and merrily glide through the air on the swings.

The attendance at both playgrounds this year has been very good. The boom attendance of the day is in the afternoon when about twice as many more find amusement than in the mornings. Wednesday afternoons and Saturdays are very poor periods for good attendance, due more than likely to the fact that Wednesday afternoon is a half holiday and many of the families around go on picnics, Saturday is a great shopping day and most mothers take the children downtown with them. Not all small children play at the grounds; many older and bigger kids find keen delight in the swings and slides, and also enjoyment in minding their younger sisters and brothers as they play.

Every year a change of faces is seen at the playground as each year is no exception according to Miss Lorna Gordon and the two are the supervisors at the West Belleville grounds. Perhaps this is due to more new families having moved into the city and many of the children of last year have chosen themselves too old to play around with the smaller tots and several of the kids who were forbidden to go last year by anxious parents on account of their tender age, are allowed to go this year.

BADGLEY FAMILY HOLD RE-UNION

On Wednesday, July 24, the park at Tweed was an ideal place for the third annual gathering of the Badgley family and descendants. Quite a number attended for the first time, although the crowd was not as large as last year, probably owing to the distance and the busy time of harvest. Representatives were present from Toronto, Belleville, Campbellford, Cannifton, Corbyville, Melrose, Prince Edward, Thomasburg, Thurlow and Tweed. The younger members thoroughly enjoyed the swimming and games while their elders kept busy tracing their relationship and getting acquainted with their family trees (a copy of which many saw for the first time).

The record dates back to Sir Robert Lawrence of Ashton Hall, Manchester, England, who married Lady Anna Trafford in 1286. One of their descendants, Sir John Lawrence, of Ashton Hall, married Mary Townley of Corby Castle in 1603. They were married at The Hague, Holland, came to America in 1711, lived in Boston, Halifax, Walpole, Mass., and New York State.

Their granddaughter, Lady Polly Lawrence, married Samuel Badgley of New York State, who with his family came to Canada in 1797 with the U. E. Loyalists and settled in Thurlow, receiving from the Government grants of land for himself and sons. The next gathering is to be held at Oak Lake in July, 1936.

NEW YORK CALLED TOO FANTASTIC

But Night Clubs Are Found to be "Real Nice"

ST. LOUIS, July 31.—After a week among the "cliff dwellers" in New York and Washington, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Mahnkey, self-styled "ridge-runner" was glad to be back in the shadow of her native Ozark hills.

Mayor La Guardia, ex-Governor Smith and the Empire State Building were worth travelling half-way across the continent to see, Mrs. Mahnkey admitted, but she was "anxious to get back home in Oasis (population 27) and rest."

The 58-year-old woman, plump and grandmotherly, obtained the trip after being adjudged the nation's best country newspaper correspondent in a magazine-sponsored contest.

"I saw the Palisades along the Hudson," she commented, "and the beautiful Shenandoah River and the Blue Ridge mountains. But where me the White River and the Ozark bluffs any time."

"They took me to one of these night clubs in New York. It was real nice, like any other good party. Not quite like a church social, though."

Mrs. Mahnkey, dressed in "dumpy clothes"—a Summer print dress white hat and white shoes—tossed a verbal bouquet to New York reporters, but found the spirit of the city "too fantastic" to please her.

"The newspapermen in New York were right nice to me," she said. "One smart young man, a college graduate, too, was surprised because he said I knew more about literature than he did. I reckon they don't have time to read much in New York."

Climbing back on the train bound for home and her forty-fifth year of writing local items for The Taney County (Mo.) Republican, Mrs. Mahnkey summarized her trip thus:

"I reckon it didn't seem so scifling, you know I'd like to go so fishing, and I'm not much of a fisherman; it's a dumbed passtime when there's been no drouth."

ROUTS U. S. DAVIS CUPPERS

GEORGE PATRICK HUGHES

C. B. D. TUCKEY

Rout of the United States Davis Cup team was made complete when the British doubles team by G. B. D. Tuckey HUGHES and George Patrick Hughes LEFT, came from behind to snatch victory unexpectedly from Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryan. Scores were 6-3, 1-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2. The obscure Tuckey was the man of the hour, dominating the court with service and volleying. Allison and Donald Budge having previously lost their singles match es, the American were vanquished in three straight contests, a manner seldom known in a game at which they once ruled the world.

REPORTER REPORTED HELD BY BANDITS

JOHN G OETTE

John Goette, correspondent in Peiping, China, for Central Press Canadian and Ontario Intelligencer reported abducted by Mongolian bandits, is shown (arrow) in a Japanese trench near Shanghai in 1932. Dispatches from Tokio said the newspaper correspondent was being held for $100,000 ransom. He is shown at typewriter (RIGHT).

FRANKIE PARKER'S BACKHAND SEEN IN DETAIL

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Night Alarm"

Fire Chasing News Reporter Stirs Up Laughs and Thrills Galore

Not in months has there been a motion picture showing at the Capital Theatre that has caused such comment as that of "Party Wire" now playing for the last time this evening. It is a story that is most realistic and true and could happen in any town where party lines are still in vogue for telephones.

How eavesdroppers on the 'phone almost ruin the supplying of a girl by misinterpreting a conversation carried on with a young man she intends to marry. The girl is played by Jean Arthur and the young man by the handsome Victor Jory. Others in the cast include Charles Bragwin, Helen Jerome Eddy, Helen Wesley and Clara Blandick.

On Thursday the Capitol will present a double feature program comprised of two excellent features. Perhaps the more spectacular of the two being "Night Alarm," a powerful story of mystery, romance and thrills.

It concerns a fire-chasing news reporter who neglects his own column when he hears the fire bells. He succeeds in unearthing an arson ring who have been muleting the insurance companies out of thousands. A romance runs through the picture that involves pretty Judith Allen and Bruce Cabot, who plays the role of the reporter. Others in the cast are H. B. Warner, Betty Blythe, Pat O'Malley and Harry Holman. The fire scenes are said to be the most realistic ever produced on the screen.

The second feature, yet one that is strong enough to be billed singly, is the hilarious farce of Desmon Runyon that concerns the confession of a condemned prisoner who begs to break into scholastic football. Their efforts to impersonate college men are very funny. Of a great cast assures the movie fan of many hearty laughs. It includes such names as Patricia Ellis, Cesar Romero, Arthur Crabbe, Andy Devine, George Barbier, Warren Hymer and George Stone.

A Fox Movietone completes the excellent program for the week end.

The Capitol management wishes to announce to its patrons that beginning next Monday it includes Civic Holiday, the evening performance will start at 7 p.m. instead of 7.30, as at present. This will enable the theatre to present the two features twice each evening.

Diorama Shows Doctor And Patients

One of the most interesting displays seen in some time is on view now in the show window of the Naborhood Shoe Store. The hall, and the lame and the deformed cripples have been flocking to the little town of Williamsburg on the way between Morrisburg on the St. Lawrence, and Ottawa on the Ottawa—a town with more than 50 moustrap in the wilderness" and the world making a beaten path to his door. In the window referred to is a "Diorama," showing the scene of Dr. Locke's Outdoor Clinic, in miniature figures, with scenery showing the old barn and all the familiar surroundings. The figures showing the patients waiting treatment, many in wheel chairs, and one actually under treatment are very life-like and the display is a most interesting one.

TO HELP GERMANY?

If Fraulein Helene Mayer, German women's fencing champion now at Clarremont, Calif., college, accepts she will probably be only non-Aryan member of Germany's 1936 Olympic team. Invitations to try for team has been sent Fraulein Mayer, a Jewess, commiting announced.

AT THE REXLE

"Age of Indiscretion"

Thrilling Drama of Truths About Love, "College Scandal" Unique

Another great problem of today has found its way to the screen as a piece of enthralling entertainment in "Age of Indiscretion", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's dramatic story of millionaire mother-in-law's fight for the custody of a child of divorce. Dealing with a situation oftentimes echoed in the courts today, the new picture opens to-morrow (Thursday) for two days, at the Belle Theatre, with a large cast of featured players, including Paul Lukas, Madge Evans, Helen Vinson, May Robson, David Jack Holt and Ralph Forbes.

Climax in Courtroom

Miss Robson plays the battling mother-in-law who goes to court and uses her millions in an attempt to gain guardianship of his son from Lukas, following the divorce of a philandering wife. The dramatic climax in the courtroom where the veteran actress addresses the judge in support of the most gripping courtroom episode since Lionel Barrymore's famous trial scene in "A Free Soul". Lukas, as the father fighting for the custody of his child, has one of the most dramatic roles of his career and Miss Evans, fresh from her triumph as Dora in "David Copperfield" is equally cast as the secretary whose position in Lukas' household is misunderstood.

The story revolves about a publisher whose wife leaves him and remarries. Her mother-in-law insists that she sue for custody of the child of her first marriage. When all else fails the determined mother-in-law frames the publisher. The case is brought to court and the story closes with an unexpected and sensational denouement.

Has Elaborate Settings

A great publishing house, a winter cabin in the high Sierras, night clubs, mansions of the rich, and a huge ice skating rink are among the pretentious settings climaxed by the sensational trial sequence.

"College Scandal" Exciting

Capers on the Campus are revealing in fascinating adventure story "College Scandal", the second feature picture on the same program with a cast of youthful favorites including Kent Taylor, Arline Judge, Wendy Barrie, Julie Haydon, William Benedict and William Frawley. "Zeeland, the hidden Paradise" a gorgeous travelogue in beautiful Technicolor will be exhibited on the same program.

Kay Francis Leaving

Charming Kay Francis' wearing many beautiful gowns designed by Orry-Kelly is appearing at the Belle tonight for the last times in her most thrilling adventure story "Stranded", to be presented with Ricardo Cortez and Jean Muir and Helen Vinson. Now. The last complete show starts at 8.40 p.m.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON—In loving memory of a dear father, Frank Wilson, who crossed the river, July 31, 1924.

He was a dear good father,
So patient, kind and true,
There was never a cloud as heavy as you.

But he saw the sunlight through.
Sometimes when I think of father
He seems to be so near,
And I can hear his dear voice saying
Don't worry daughter I am here.
Death cannot divide us from father
Nor sever the cords of love,
He is just resting sweetly with Jesus
In that beautiful home above.
Never remembered by Daughter,
Mrs. Curtis Fox. 31-1t

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank Wilson, who passed away, July 31, 1924.

Sweetest of memories are all that are left,
Of our dear father, one of the best,
A father who's heart was as pure as gold,
On his father's worth can never be told.
You often said we'd miss you,
Yours to Rest, forever, dear.
We lost the best and dearest friend
When our father, went to rest you.

—Sadly missed by Wife, Sons and Daughters.
Not today but every day.
In silence I remember.
—Son Frank. 31-1t

NEW YORK TORONTO WINNIPEG

TORONTO MINING CLOSE

Toronto, July 31 (CP)—Weakness in the gold group and general strength in the base metals marked price movements on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange today. Dome dropped back to 38¾ for a loss of 1¼. Volume was only fair and bulked mainly in the medium-price gold issues. Oil shares were slow.

Mining shares gave a mild display of weakness, chiefly in the golds. Dome dropped a half point, Lake Shore ¼ and Wright Hargreaves 10 cents while Hollinger firmed to 13.90.

Macassa and Reno sold down ½ to 8 cents each and smaller recessions were posted in the early trading for God's Lake, McWatters, Sicoe and McKenzie.

Kirkland Lake continued up ¼ to 3.81; and other base metals were barely firm. In the silvers action was spotty and prices mildly soft. Eldorado sold off to 1.21 down 3 cents and Frontier Exploration and Castle were very off slightly. Oil issues continued slow.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, July 31 (AP) — The stock market rallied today at its forenoon firmness during late trading today.

At the beginning of the final hour shares selling one to two points higher included Western Union, Consolidated Gas, North American, Delaware and Hudson, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Collins and Aikman, Columbia, Philip Morris, General Asphalt, Westinghouse, Nash Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and General Motors. Mining shares surged sitthay sharply under modest offerings after remaining inactive most of the day. U. S. Smelting led the decline. The list was long and firm. Sales approximated 1,800,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS
(Close)

Toronto, July 31 (CP)—Due to a buoyant demonstration in the liquor issues, the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange had its heaviest trade in some weeks today. Brewers and distillers occupied the role of leader with a turnover of almost 30,000 shares and the price pushed up about a point to around 95. Other liquors were up as much as ½ but failed to hold all the gains. The general tone was strong with higher prices rising in the oil, food and steel groups.

Brewers and distillers fell better than a point on profit taking sharply upward on heavy buying. Trading about 25,000 shares in the first two hours, the stock advanced to 91 and was holding at 95 cents this afternoon. Canada Malting was up 2 points.

Ford of Canada strong at 28¾ and higher prices ruled for International-Nickel, Bell Telephone and most of the food and steel stocks. Brazilian and the oils were unchanged.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, July 31 (AP)— The stock market resumed its upward trend in a fair amount of enthusiasm today after successfully hurdling further profit taking barriers in the opening hour.

A steady tone was maintained by such Canadian stocks as Canada International Nickel, McIntyre and Hollinger. Failing to hold the early rise Hiram Walker improved a major fraction while Lake Shore held unchanged at the opening but later in the day advanced a point to 3-8 cent lower at 99 7-8 cents.

Base metals were included Consolidated Gas, Western Union, North American, Westinghouse and Studebaker Gains among these and other active shares were generally less than a point. There were exceptions notably in the case of Western Union which added nearly 3 points to its quoted value.

Trading during the march higher included Inland Steel, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, Anaconda Copper, Delaware and Hudson, N.Y. Central, United Aircraft and Transport Corp., General Motors, Nash Motors and Bethlehem Steel.

MOSCOW CABLE READ AT HEARING

Inspector Fish Tells of Search in Toronto in 1931

Regina, July 31.—(CP)— Argument by defence in the preliminary hearing of six unemployed relief camp strike leaders was set for tomorrow as the Crown today considered its case fully presented.

Sergeant Frederick Lemaire, Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigator, took the stand as the Crown's last witness late yesterday.

Inspector George W. Fish, R. C. M. P., now stationed at Vancouver, told of executing a search warrant at 341 Euclid Avenue, Toronto, in August, 1931. He said 341 Euclid Avenue was the residence of Tom Ewen, then national secretary of the Communist Party.

Documents seized at that time included a letter, signed by Ewen, addressed to a man named Carr in Winnipeg, dated July 14, 1931. It referred to "Workers' League of Canada, Canadian section, Red International of Labor Unions."

Evidence submitted was a telegram, dated at Moscow, March 6, 1931, signed "Bill Dunn" and addressed to the Workers' Unity League, Toronto.

Chicago White Sox Come On To Cause both Tigers, Yanks Plenty of Trouble in Race

Only 3 1-2 Games Back of Leaders and One Behind Yanks

LONG HOME STAND

Cards Practically Out as They Lose to Reds

(By Edward J. Neil)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Tigers and Yanks, all tangled up in the fight for the American League lead, might pause with good effect today and take a peek back over their shoulders.

Jimmy Dykes' White Sox are coming on again like the fellow that learned to play tunes on the three lessons everyone laughed, when the White Sox cut out a terrific pace this spring. It couldn't last, and it didn't. Yesterday the combined, faded, then the Tigers started coming on the pace.

But regardly, behind them White Sox have held grimly to third place. Now they're back from a long stretch on the road. They play 32 of their next 40 games at home, friendly home lot as Comiskey Park, Chicago, normally proves a game behind the second place Yankees, 3 1-3 behind the pace setting Tigers.

Actually they're just as good as either. The only steadiest Yanks and Tigers have is that they have played more games. Each of the three has lost 37. The Tigers have won 57, the Yanks, 52, the Sox 50. It's stretch a lot disadvantage.

White Sox Win

Opening this big hoop stay yesterday White Sox whipped Cleveland 8-6 and chipped a full game from the leaders' margins as Tigers bowed to the Rough Browns 8-6 and Yanks were nosed out by Athletics 6-5.

At the same time Chicago Cubs got off to a slow start by thumping Pirates 9-6, cutting another half game into New York's lead as Giants split a double header with Phillies. Cubs, on a 10-game winning streak, with 21 victories to lose in the last 26 starts, now are but a single game back in second place.

Johnny Vergez and Joe Bowman, former Giants, clipped the New York cause yesterday, teaming to win the first game for the Phillies 11 to 5. Bowman held the Giants in to his while Vergez hit two homers. Hal Schumacher put the Phillies in their places 4 to 2 in the second game, fanning 10.

The Cards slid off some more as Cincinnati Reds rose up and smote the world champions 6-3 when Benny Fry, fourth pitcher for the Reds, singled home the winning counter in the ninth.

While home runs by Pinky Higgins and Paul Chards were leading Red Ruffing and Yanks for the A's, Bowman pulled off schoolboy Rowe who has been having a tough time of it lately. The Tigers went down fighting again after the Browns led once 6-0.

Fritz Ostermueller of the Red Sox pitched a wierd game, beating Washington 11-4. He allowed only four hits but walked 12 as five Washington pitchers issued free themselves and were stung for 13 hits besides.

O'Mahony Tosses Ed Don George Out of the Ring

BOSTON, July 31.—(AP)—Danno O'Mahony, 27-year-old Irishman, was hailed today as the first undisputed wrestling champion since the salmy days of "Strangler" Lewis.

Before a Braves' field crowd estimated at 45,000 O'Mahony gained a 90-minute one-fall victory over Ed George, illo claimant, last night by tossing him out of the ring.

Under the prevailing code, which the announcer described as "world championship rules" George has 20 seconds in which to regain the ring. When he failed to return in that time, the referee, Jimmy Braddock, heavyweight boxing champion, declared the Irishman the victor.

The decision enraged the George Camp and his seconds stormed into the ring. One of them, Frank Delamano, tried to attack Braddock and the consequent Max Zivver launch-ed a right to the jaw, that floored his would-be assailant.

Shortly before being counted out, George twice hurled his opponent over the ropes.

YESTERDAY'S STARS!

(By the Associated Press)

Benny Frey, Reds, —Singled with two out in the ninth to drive Jim Bottomley with winning run against Cards.

Julius Solters, Browns—Drove in three runs with homer and two singles to help whip Tigers 8 to 6.

Paul Richards, Athletics—Belted homer with one on to beat Yankees 6 to 5.

Johnny Vergez, Phillies— Two homers led attack that beat Giants first game of double header.

Hal Schumacher, Giants—Fanned ten Phillies to win second game.

Bill Lee, Cubs—Set Pirates down with four hits after relieving Larry French with none out in first.

AAJMAA A. C. ADDS TO LEAD

Defeat Alemites, White Losing First Game in Nine Starts

Aajmaa A.C. moved further into the lead of the local senior softball loop by virtue of a 13 to 4 victory over the Alemites at Central Park last evening. The Aajmaa victory practically assures the Bowler-led aggregation of first place in the league while the loss sustained by the "lubricants" demotes them to a bad third place position.

Vic White started on the hill-top for the losers, it being the first loss chalked up against White in nine consecutive starts. Johnnie Bawden hurled eight hit ball for the winners, never being in trouble at any stage of the pastime. Bawden whiffed nine Alemites batters, while White retired four via the strike out route.

Carman Cook, Aajmaa short stop, was the big hitter of the day as his two baggers, a home run, a triple and a double, Kiser and Hanna also hit for the circuit as the Aajmaas collected 18 safeties. Besides hurling good ball Bawden collected the spheroid for three safe blows. Boyle was the only Alemite hitter to count more than one single hit in the scoring columns.

The box:—Alemites— Ridley, Flagler, Dickey, Jordan, Boyle Halsey, Morgan, Cook and Vic White. Aajmaa— Hann, Tuttle, Hanna, Cook, H. Bawden, Gray and J. Bawden.

Mercantile Softball

Three games of softball were played in the local Mercantile League in Belleville last night, when the Leaders' team defeated the Loblaws 27 to 14, Recreations downed Corbins 14 to 13 while the Finch squad were losing to the Ontario Intelligencer aggregation by a 16 to 14 count.

The club to make the most of their victory was George Kikes' London Lunch team as their victory elevates them into a tie for first place along with Simpsons. Cole batted for the Lunchers and limited the Loblaws to ten safeties while the vanquished aggregation was called upon to use two hurlers as the Kikes-led crew pounded out a total of 30 hits. Offensive blows were by Cole, Westfall, Fisher and Simpson.

The most interesting game of the trio was the ten inning battle between the Recreations and Corbins "lockmakers", with the former riding to a tenth inning run to win when R. Morgan tripled with one aboard. Dunn and Palmer formed the Recreation battery, with Carson hurling again for Corbins. Fisher and McGuire worked as batterymates for the Corbins, R. Morgan was the star of the game as he hit three circuit blows and drove in the winning run in the tenth with a triple at their Yeomah's Street grounds.

At the Old Albert College Field the Ontario Intelligencer "printers" came from behind to down the Finch nine in the ninth inning after trailing the league leaders. A five run spurge by the victors in the ninth gave the "inklingers" an advantage, but the Finch hitmen tied the solo score and scored six runs in the fifth to assume the advantage. Five runs in the seventh assured the "printers" of victory, however. Gene Doyle and Len Jenkinson were the winning hurlers, both being hit rather hard throughout the game, Doyle purely a hitting bee, that saw many extra base blows registered by batsmen of both teams.

The line-ups:—Ontario Intelligencer—Jenkinson, Doyle, Oliphant, Canning, Harris, Ling, Philp, Kemp and Sheridan. Finch— Chumbley, Giffin, L. Jenkinson, Dimmle, Sabine, Jenkinson, Temple, Pullen and Boyle.

DAY BY DAY

Thanks to the efforts of Ernie Gibbard and Max Freeman, the two Eastern Ontario executive members on the O.B.A.A., a definite conclusion as to the category of the clubs in the Bay of Quinte League was arrived at during a recent O.B.A.A. meeting. First and foremost and for the information of the Picton Club, and also Belleville, Napanee is to remain in intermediate "A" class, while Picton and Belleville will be allowed to continue in the "A" series. If, however, Picton and Napanee should finish the league schedule a tie, then a post season series is to be played between these two clubs, that is after the O.B.A.A. play-downs are completed. In the meantime Napanee will enter the "A" play-downs, while Picton and Belleville will play off to decide which club will continue in the "B" play-offs. A rather complicated set-up, but one that should satisfy all that are concerned.

In reality the club that seems to be on the well-known spot now is Picton, and all seems that this club seems to have little difficulty in defeating the Gilbault-owned aggregation, but when it comes to battling the local Fannuzzites, well that seems to be a mat horse of a different color. After a rather queer set-up in the local intermediate series, Picton will have Napanee and Picton finish the schedule a tie and then have Belleville knock the Doyle-led crew off in the league play-offs. While all this would be a guess as to who would continue in the "A" play-downs, but when they finished their season, then Picton could come back into the picture, if they were eliminated by Belleville, and still battle it out with Napanee for first place in the Bay of Quinte. The whole thing is quite simple, that is, if you say it fast.

Following this afternoon's Peterboro at Belleville C.O.B.L. struggle the Radios have five more games to play, two at Kingston, one in Oshawa and three at home, two with the Brewers and one with the Ponies. As the first three clubs participate in the league play-offs this year, about all the Radios have to do is win approximately three of these games to finish "in the money" but a far better plan would be to win 'em all and finish on the top rung of the ladder. Should the locals have lost two straight now, their usual number before going on a winning streak, so we look for more pleasant surprises during the remainder of the season.

In about ten or fifteen days the Belleville Riwanis Junior baseball team will be participating in the junior O.B.A.A. play-downs. The local kids have been playing off-and-on exhibition game with clubs from the Bay Quinte Baseball loop, but still need added practice. A local baseball fan recently suggested that a three game series could be arranged between the players of the 1934 Crystalaire and the present junior club. The idea is an excellent one as it would give the Riwanis kids an opportunity to stack up against players of their own category. With players like Bill Hammett, Rendy Langman, Don Thomas, Dean Ford, Sero, Little, Semark and others still available, a good team of youngsters could be banded together to give the Riwanis kids the much needed practice as well as a good ball game.

While in conversation with Promoter Clem Allen recently we learned that Matchmaker Allen is contemplating one banner boxing show early this fall, one that is to surpass his inter-city, Ottawa-Belleville, card of last spring. Then again the indoor season will soon be with us again and will see the return of the wrestlers in our midst. Incidentally we observe where Riwanis "Tarzan" Canterwine is back in Canada and wrestling in Toronto. The local promoters could be assured of a banner house with a drawing card like Canterwine on their card.

Softball fans in all four corners of the city are coming into their own these days. Last night there were four softball games played on different diamonds in Belleville; three games in the Mercantile league and one in the Senior Softball League. The latter game should interest the minds of many in relationship as to what team will finish at the top of the heap. The Aajmaas made merry at the expense of the Alemites, the final count of 13 to 4. The Aajmaas have two more games and must win both in order to finish a tie with any second placed club, that is should the latter two clubs be remaking games, so it looks as though the Aajmaas are "in". With St. Paul's, Alemites and Young Canadas battle it out for the other position in the playoffs. Apparently the Recreation win over the Corbin "lockmakers" was a thriller last night in the Mercantile loop, the game going ten frames before the Recreations won 14 to 13. Other winners in this league were the Ontario Intelligencer and the Ontario Intelligencer. Incidentally they are staging a torrid race in this loop as well.

Contrary to the pre-bout guesses of the big city sports writers, Danno O'Mahony, Irishman, last night's wrestling crown before some 45,000 fans at Boston when the big Irishman threw Ed Don George after something like 90 minutes of gruelling mat mauling. Incidentally Jim J. Braddock, newly-crowned heavyweight boxing champion, was the third man in the ring and drew the wrath of George's handlers upon his head for the final decision. Many of the boys along Broadway seemed to think it was "in the bag" for George as O'Mahony was whispering something about going home to old Ireland all of which proves something or other, or does it?

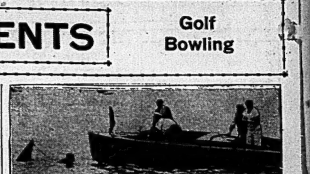
GOLF

BY ALEX MORRISON

I've been trying for weeks to get a set of iron clubs light enough to suit me. Nearly all of the clubs on the market to-day are much too heavy for me and I'm sure that the average player has plenty or trouble controlling them.

In the days of hickory shafts iron clubs had to be rather uniform as to weight. With the coming of steel shafts the club-makers have been able to add weight to the clubheads. The way in which this weight is added in most cases makes the club too heavy to be nicely controlled.



The present type of clubhead is all right when it comes to pounding down on the ball, but it prevents the playing of delicate cut shots and the fine shading in loft that used to characterize the champion's game.

Build up on the results you're getting with your short iron shots. You may be among those handicapped by clubheads that are too heavy.

The player doesn't live who thinks he has much bend the position of his head. Certainly little enough has been said about this part of the swing.

So many players think that they hold their heads in the right position when it moves all over the place A common fault is to let it drift forward so that it is over the left leg at the finish of the swing. This finds the top of the body swaying forward. The ball invariably goes to the right of the intended line. The clubhead is dragged through the hitting area instead of being swung with the necessary snap.

The player's head should remain behind the ball until well after the moment of impact. Then both clubhead and ball will travel properly.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"Sonia," he said, "I'm the luckiest man living!"

She glanced at him from under her lashes, and smiled as he took her hand and laid it lightly on his arm; he led her to the dining hall where Selby drew out for her the great oak chair at the head of the rose-lit table.

There was never anything gauche about Bannister. Quickly he had Sonia at her ease; she talked brightly and vivaciously about New York, as completely self-possessed as though she had presided at King's Sim House all her life. Selby and the young footman waited, soon they retired to the drawing room, where Selby set the coffee on a little table by the hearth, retired, and left them alone.

It was Sonia who broke the first silence. As soon as Selby was out of the room she took Bannister's hands in hers.

"Your house is marvellous, Bannister," she said, "and so are you. I'm learning more about you all the time. And now I want you to listen to me."

She put him in his arm chair by the fire, and seated herself gracefully and carelessly on a little ottoman beside him.

"I'm not a great talker, but there's something vital I've got to say, which affects us both, and you're going to hear it. Then it'll be your turn; my answer's ready."

She leaned her arm, round her knees and looked up at him thoughtfully, her head a little on one side, a charming trick she had.

"Your letter brought me all this way. I'm not going over that ground again. But Bannister I don't want you to feel that I'm on your hands. I've left a way out. Before starting, I secured a job in London; I've made a job in its way, with an American firm. They'll take me if you find after all, that you don't want me. There's a thing I've never given up yet—my independence."

She held up her hand.

"No—let me finish. I liked you Bannister, when you were out there with me—it's only a few months ago. Twice you asked me, and I said no; I'm sorry afterwards. And— and glad when your letter came; so honest and generous, offering me again all I'd thrown away. What right had I to go on doing that? I was sick of poverty; of living hand to mouth . . . and everything. One asks a great deal from marriage; I'd so little to bring to it. Good-will, perhaps, and loyalty—there I wouldn't fall you."

"Those are good things."

"And I can't remember! In nearly everything you've read and shouldered above most of the men I know. I do like you, Bannister. But I do not want this to hurt— I don't love you."

"Why should you?" he said. "I'd give my life to teaching you even that."

"Why should I! Why it seems to me that if a man who has as much to give as you doesn't give himself he marries, he gets very little. But I've always hoped for more. I want to love. It never came to me; something wrong with me, I suppose. I thought it never would. But since then—"

"Don't go on. It's enough that there's no one else."

"No, one else! How do you know there isn't? When I wrote that letter, it was true. No one had ever made my heart beat. But after—it had to happen like that, I suppose —I met some one who could—and did."

She turned her head away.

"Nothing could come of it— except trouble. And nothing ever will. Finished!"

Sonia stared into the heart of the fire, but Bannister stood.

"Ships that pass in the night," she said wistfully. "Ships that pass in the night."

She looked up at him.

"That's all, Bannister."

He put protecting arm gently round her shoulders.

"My dear girl, you didn't need to tell me."

She looked up at him, rather tremulously.

"Well, I thought! I ought to, Bannister. It seems to me you're due to have a straight deal. That's over. She laughed, but her voice was taught of hurt. "Now — what about you?"

His eyes were bright with passion as he leaned towards her.

"It may be little about women, Sonia. If there are men who understand them, I don't. I don't even know how to talk to them. No woman has ever appeals to me. I've never had time. I've never met one I met you. Only without even wanting to, you've taken my heart in your two little hands and you'll hold it for all time. And I don't ask you now how I love you—I'm older than you but my life and all I am and have are going to be making you happy; I want you so!"

He had a wonderful charm; she could feel the man's power. And yet big her heart beat now, how he did not love her as she understood the word. There was only one thing behind this obsession he had for her, something she felt to be unfathomed, a big rather her to her feet.

"I'm ready, Bannister," she said. "When you wish. But—don't ask too much of me tonight."

He felt that she was tense and strung up; uncertain even now. He studied her for a moment.

"You spoke of a straight deal," he said. "You've met me in a moment, dear, and look around you. Tell me what you think of me."

"Do you mean the house? Of course, it's very wonderful; I never saw anything like it."

"Oh, the house, that's nothing. A great house is a lordly mess dear, not an asset. There's the Cooke estate, and the Cooke inheritance; great fortune as things go now; twelve thousand a year—"

"Bannister, we surely needn't go into that, need we? I'm here to take it all for granted . . ."

"Take nothing for granted," he said firmly. "As you've been so frank with me, I'm going to be absolutely frank with you. You've spent plenty of people who won't be slow to tell you the facts that you have got to hear now; I prefer somebody get them straight from me. The Cooke fortune is mine, and yet not mine. I have it only while I live.

"Not long ago I came into it—a great inheritance. I'm tenant for life, under the Cooke will. It's held for me by the trustees, and I have the income. I can't leave it as I choose; if I died tonight that would be the end of it."

"While you live?" she repeated. "And then—"

"The estate is entailed; it goes to my children."

"Your children? You've never married . . . you have no children."

"No."

"I see," said Sonia.

She looked at Bannister. It came home to her as it had never done before, the compact she was making . . . she was in this man's hands. And with it, like a quick flash at her heart, the memory of young Brian Chalmers; whom she had known so short a time and had learned to love, and who never spoke of love to her.

"So," he said, "it will be ours. Sonia—yours and mine, dear, for all time."

His lips smiled as he said it; he was very close to her . . . she closed her eyes as his arms passed round her. She felt a touch on her neck, a click and a chilly hardness, as though a chain were fastened about her throat. A strange little shiver crept through her.

Sonia opened her eyes, and gave a little involuntary gasp of amazement.

On her bosom rested a superb single diamond. It hung there, flawless, a great blazing star of frozen fire.

Sonia stared at it fascinated. It might have been a twin sister to the Cullinan or the Koh-i-Noor; such a gem as makes history . . . a king's ransom would hardly have bought it. A fortune in itself. Such a marvel of beauty that hardly a woman in the civilized world would not have looked at it unmoved: . . . As her breast rose and fell it twinkled and flashed with living fire.

"Bannister!" she said breathlessly.

He met her eyes, and smiled.

"The Cooke Diamond, Sonia. Just a family heirloom. One of many."

He took her hands in his, and drew her to him.

"A beautiful thing, isn't it? I never valued it till now. The token of your love for you. My pledge to you Sonia; and yours to me."

CHAPTER EIGHT

He drew back a pace, for the door creaked and Selby appeared, stolid as ever, his eyes resting only for a moment on the diamond Sonia was wearing.

"Call for you on the telephone, sir."

"Answer it yourself, man!"

"Beg pardon, sir—it's private and urgent."

Bannister went out.

"It's Barber!" said Selby before his master could speak. "He's on the job; shall I handle him?"

Bannister swore under his breath for a moment, nonplussed, stolid as ever, his eyes resting only for a moment on the diamond Sonia was wearing.

"Call for you on the telephone, sir."

"Answer it yourself, man!"

"Beg pardon, sir—it's private and urgent."

Bannister went out.

"It's Barber!" said Selby before his master could speak. "He's on the job; shall I handle him?"

Bannister swore under his breath and, quite novikky like in the library, snatched up the phone receiver that stood unhooked on the desk. Selby followed.

"Hir, Cooke speaking!" said Bannister.

A hoarse chuckle came over the line.

"Mister Cooke! Know your old pal's voice eh? Get that Bannister, get it good. You have my letter, eh? Well, I'm on the job; all I handle him?"

Bannister swore under his breath and, quite novikky like in the library, snatched up the phone receiver that stood unhooked on the desk. Selby followed.

"Hir, Cooke speaking!" said Bannister.

A hoarse chuckle came over the line.

"Mister Cooke! Know your old pal's voice eh? Get that Bannister, get it good. You have my letter, eh? Well, I'm on the job; all I handle him?"

Burden of Relief Costs Put on Municipalities By Premier M. Hepburn

Ultimatum to Become Effective on September 1st

PAY PER CAPITA

$7.50 per Month For Bankrupt and $5 For Solvent Districts

Toronto, July 31—(CP)—To save approximately $10,000,000 yearly and maintain the solvency of the government, Premier Hepburn today notified municipalities, bankrupt and solvent, the province's relief payments to them would henceforth be made in lump sums and not in amounts, which varied greatly from month to month.

The ultimatum the Premier laid down yesterday and set out from Sept. 1 in all the 17 bankrupt municipalities, where the government assumes the total relief burden the constribution will be a maximum per capita payment of $7.50. Under the system inaugurated by Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare, and still in effect, per capita costs in the bankrupt municipalities ranged from $2.50 to $12.50 per capita monthly.

In solvent municipalities, excepting the unorganized districts of Northern Ontario, the government's maximum contribution will be $5 per capita. The present basis in Northern Ontario will remain in effect for the time being.

Premier Hepburn's announcement regarding the complete revamping of the relief system followed closely his other edict from Aug. 1 all bodied single unemployed would be removed from the relief rolls.

Single Need

Under the new Hepburn plan municipalities will also be required to assume full responsibility for relief administration and the welfare department's only check will be through inspectors in 22 provincial divisions.

Coincident with the announcement was news 140 out of 200 visitors of indigent homes under orders of the Welfare Department had been released. At the same time 24 accounting staff members at Windsor were notified their services were no longer required.

The thing had come for the government to give back to municipalities as far as possible the entire problem of relief, Premier Hepburn stated.

"We find", he declared, "where the municipalities are administering relief the per capita cost is much less than where relief is administered entirely by the Province. At present we pay practically the entire relief in bankrupt municipalities and at the rate we were going total relief costs for the province were mounting to $36,000,000 a year."

His added 60 cents out of every dollar of revenue received by the province was going out in relief payments. "About 2,000,000 people were working to support 400,000 in idleness."

Better Able to Handle

Implementing a remark it was the government's intention to reduce the Welfare Department to a "mere shell" the Premier said it was only logical municipality officials were closer in touch with the relief problem as it affected them and were therefore better able to handle it.

Of the present approximate cost of $36,000,000 yearly, Mr. Hepburn believed at least $750,000 could be lopped off under the new lump sum payment system. In administrative costs alone he figured $560,000 annually could be saved.

Chicago, July 31 (CP)—"This" said Angelo Siroose, picking up an item her he found in the street, "is the way to make a mid'wen shot." Then he swung lustily as his girl friend watched.

The item struck an automobile fender, then careened off Siroose's head. He was revived in hospital.

Eve brought Adam out of Eden, but what a pleasant place she has made the earth to live in since! We're thinking particularly of her modern incarnation—the twentieth-century Eve' who is so skilled in the new art of living . . . Her method is no secret. She will tell you herself that she reads the advertisements. From them she learns how to brighten her living-room with sunfast draperies, and how to buy good, wholesome foods for her family. Advertisements of a magnificent piano prompted her to give her children a musical education. Her guests enjoy her taste in ginger ales.
